AND ACTIVITIES

Five facets of University life bring students of varying backgrounds and interests together in a community of diverse activity and purpose, which is pervaded by the one common goal of all — graduation.

ATHLETICS

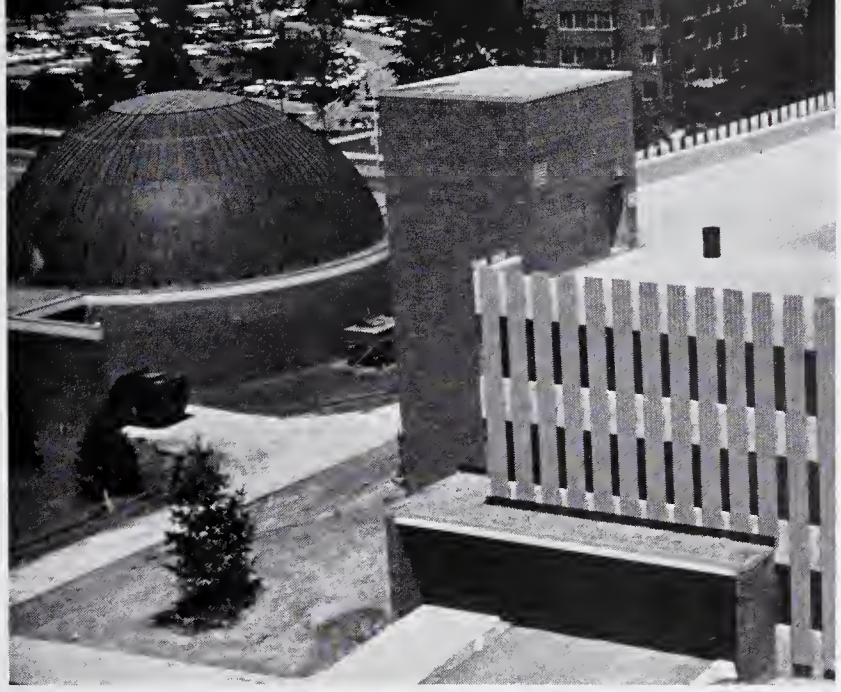

ACADEMICS AND SENIORS

And on a quiet walk across the campus
on a Sunday afternoon,
one can only imagine the activity
that awaits the morrow.

And before he graduates,
every student has a special place
where he goes . . . . for more intensive study.

An atmosphere of expectancy creates a mood for the blend of tradition and progress.

SCHEDULE

Seasons blend with the personal, activity with mood, in a University where life is as varied as the thought and backgrounds of its students.

. . . and who knows where one might find solitude . . . and silence.

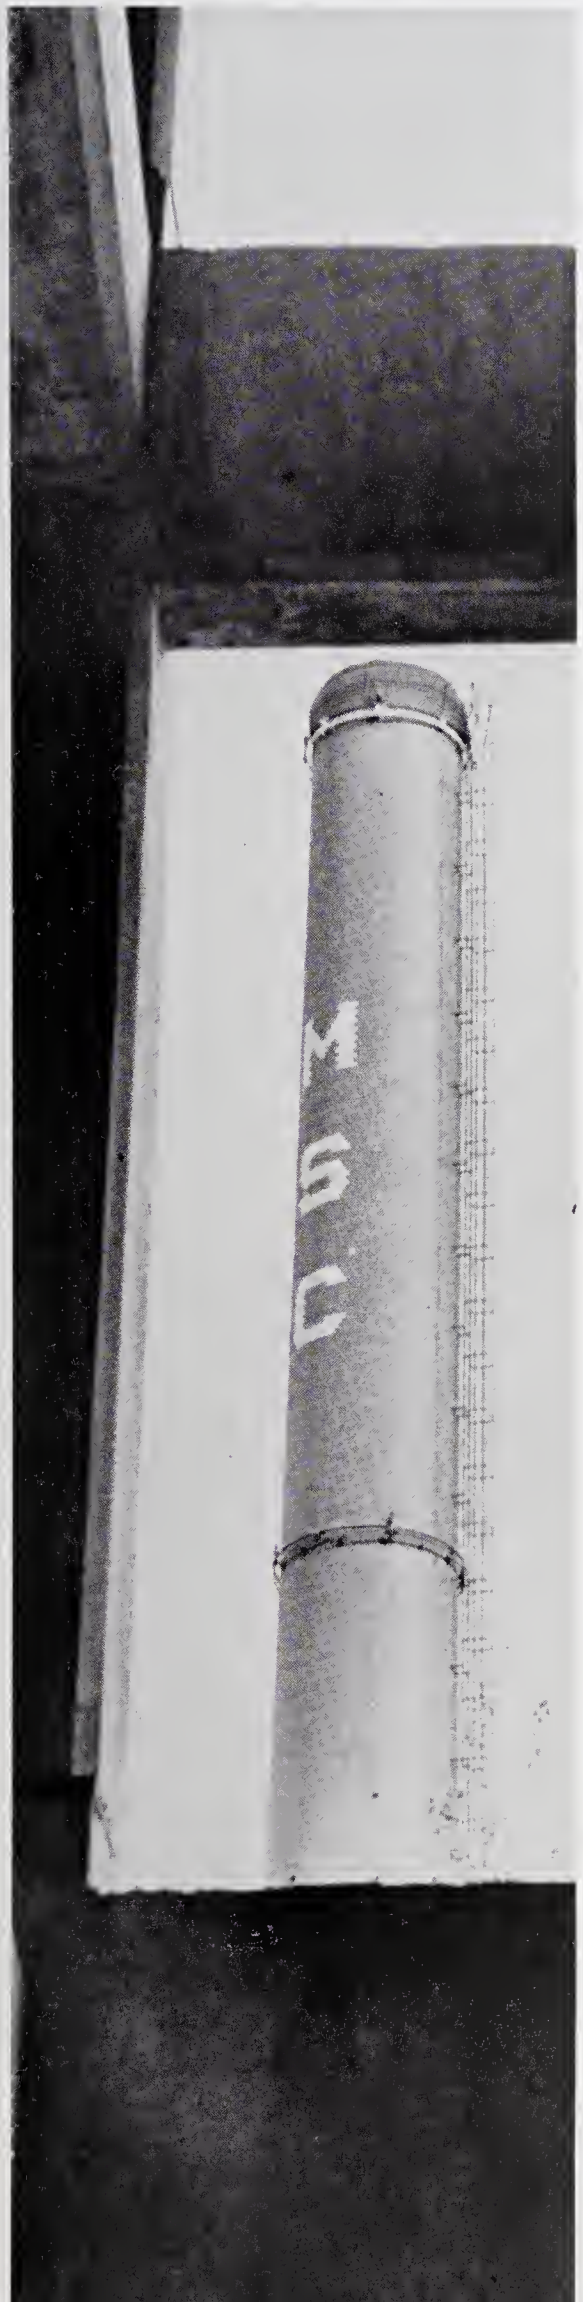

The hurry, the hustle, the unending activity make a campus a place of progress for young and old.

U.S.

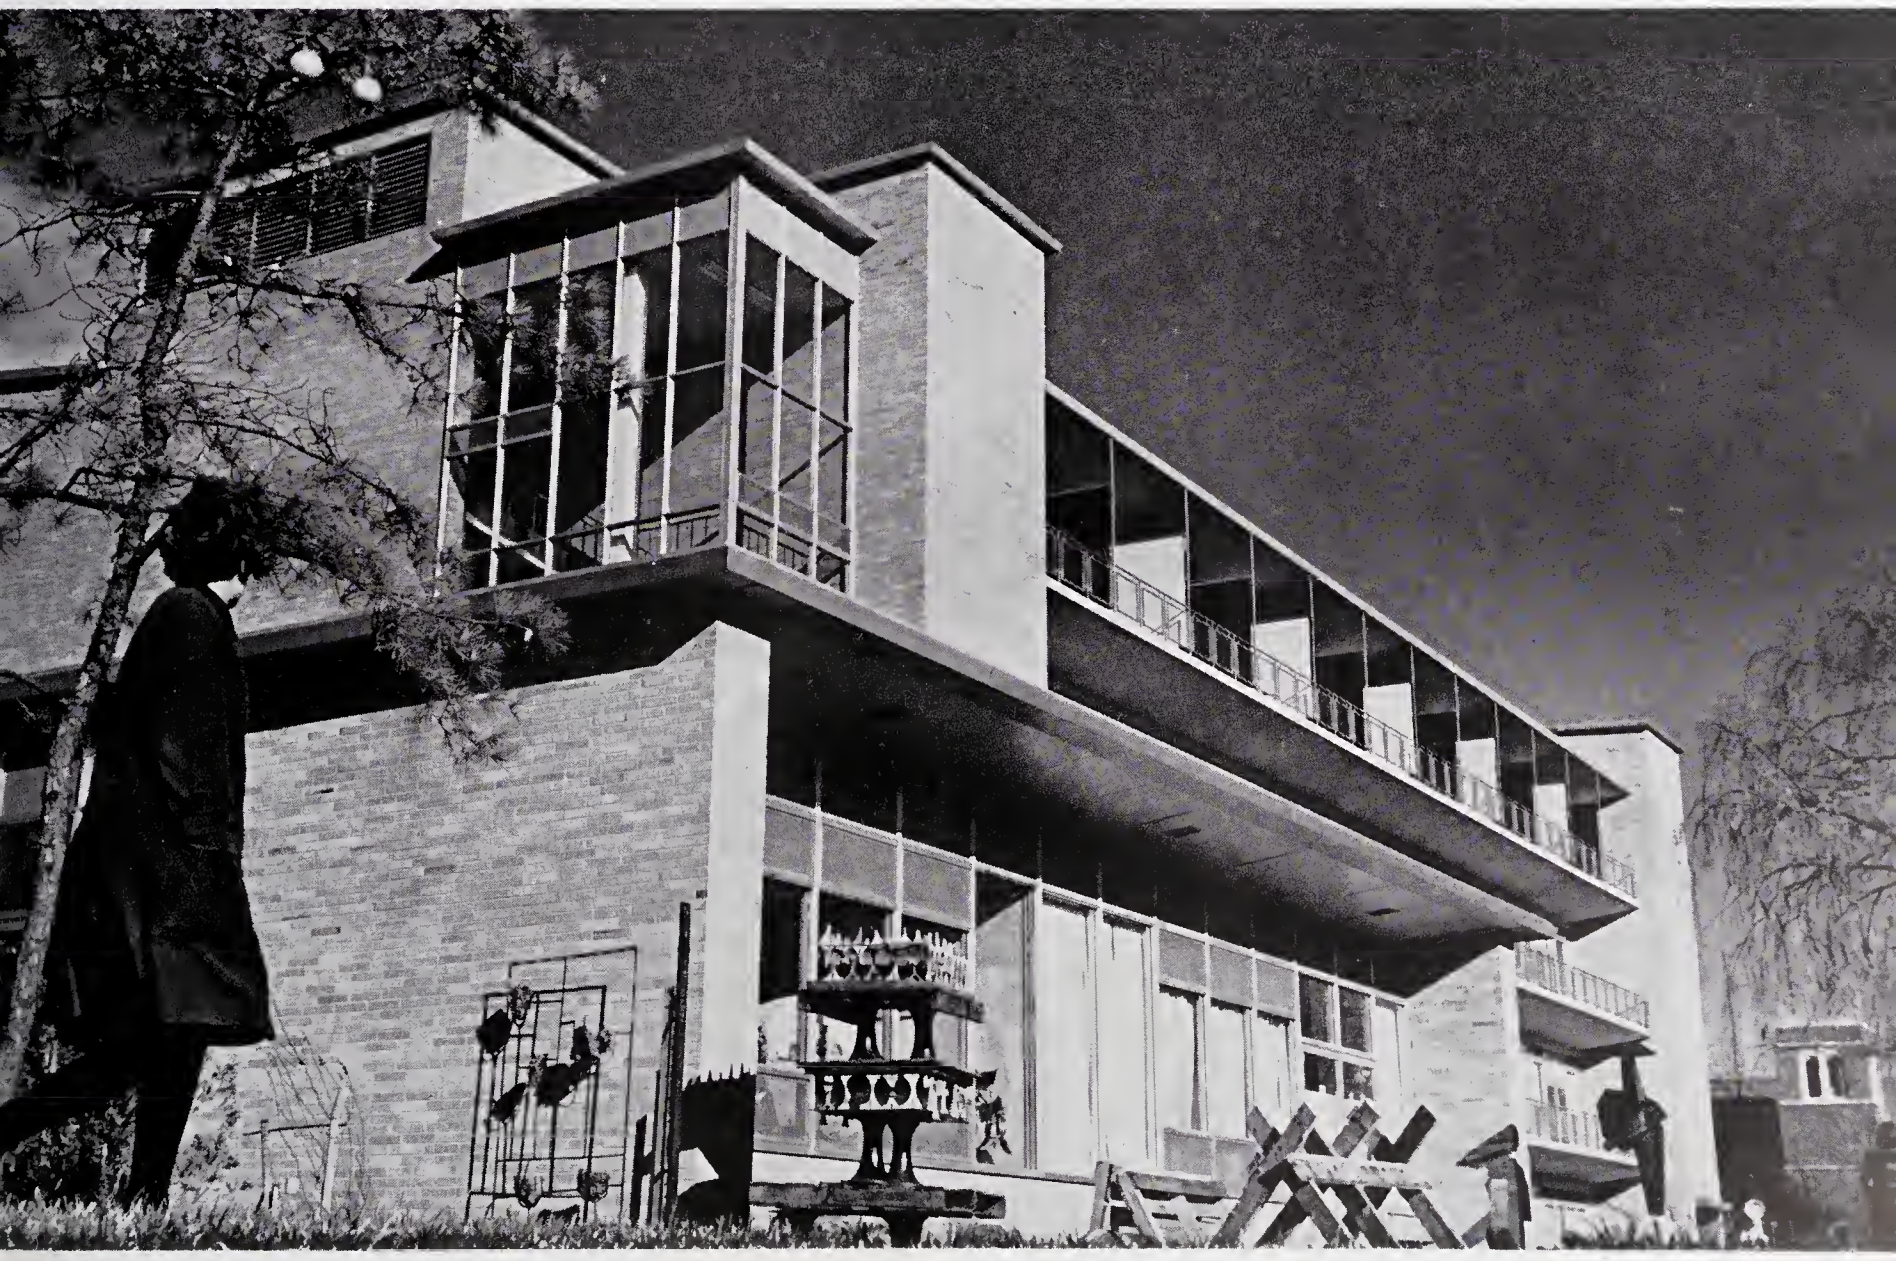

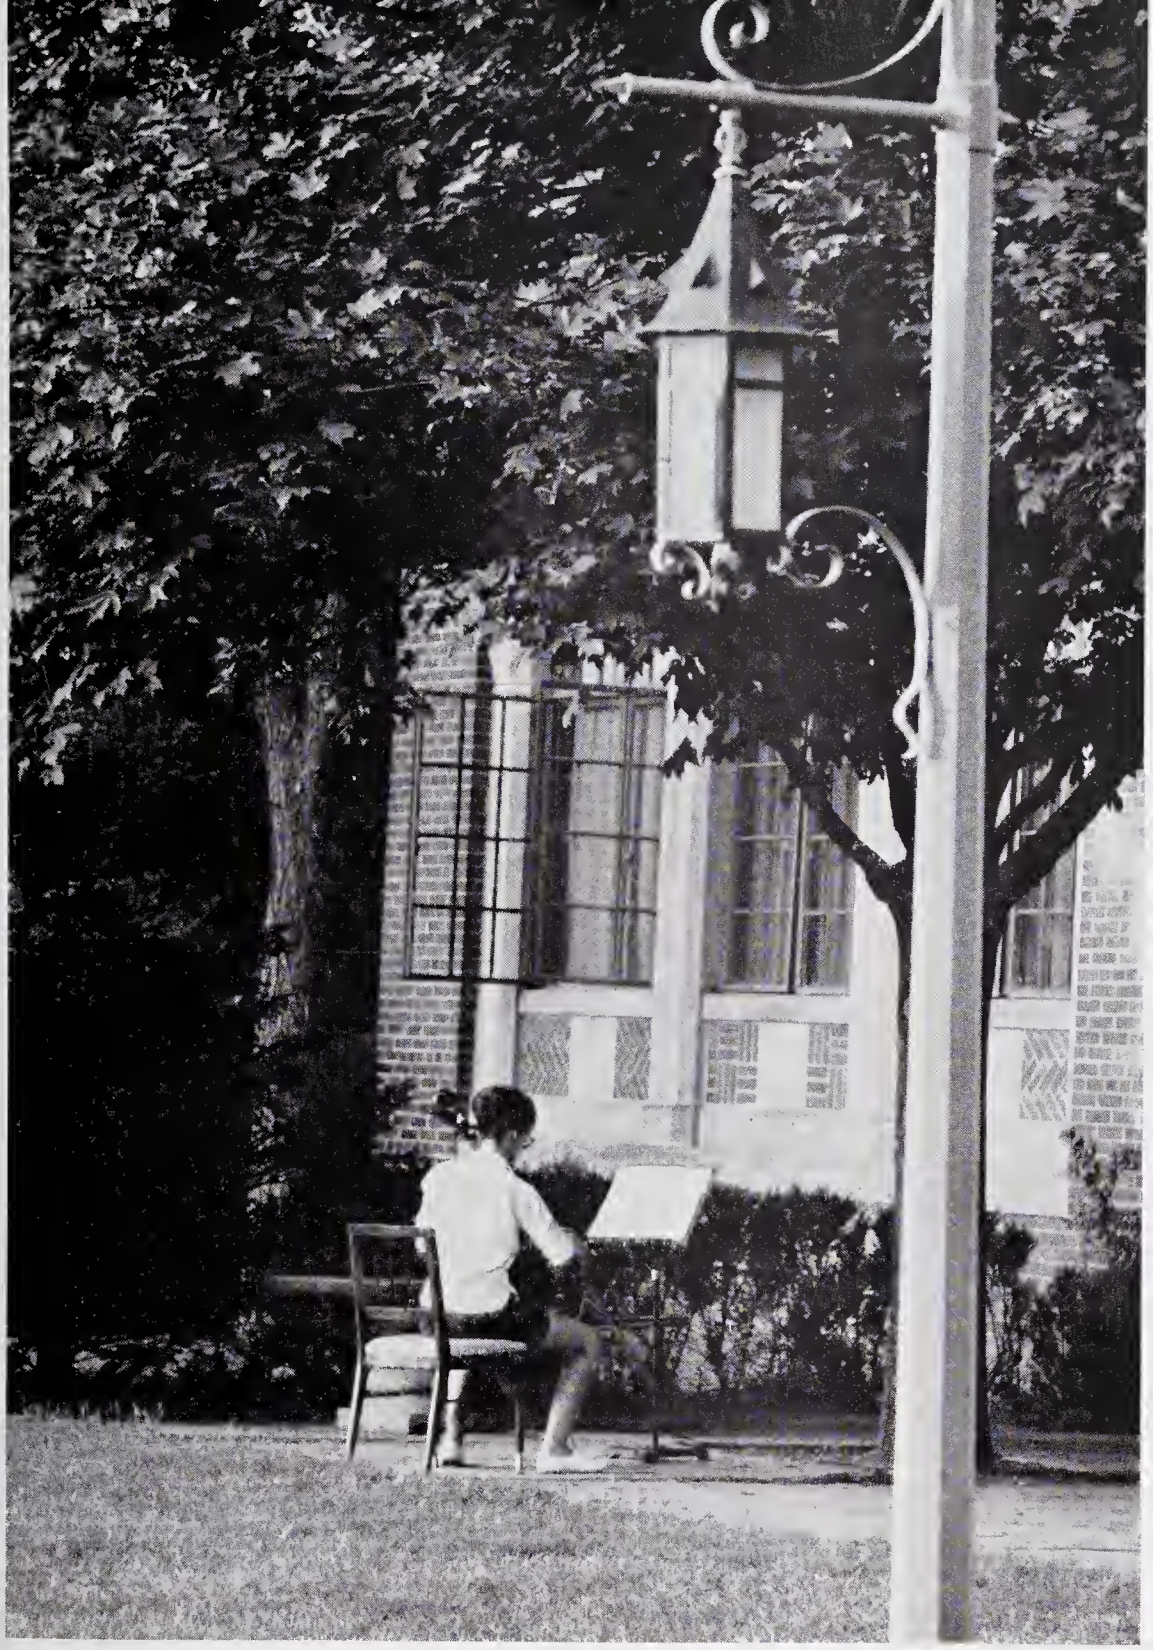

A varied campus satisfies varied interests, and the members of the University community find enjoyment in many places, many ways.

As the warmth of spring
slows the campus pace, one reflects... and is reflected.

The tempo begun early in the morning does not diminish with the end of day as students attack "things not done".

ADMINISTRATION

The changing face of the University is a constant reminder that when in the quest of knowledge, one cannot stand still.

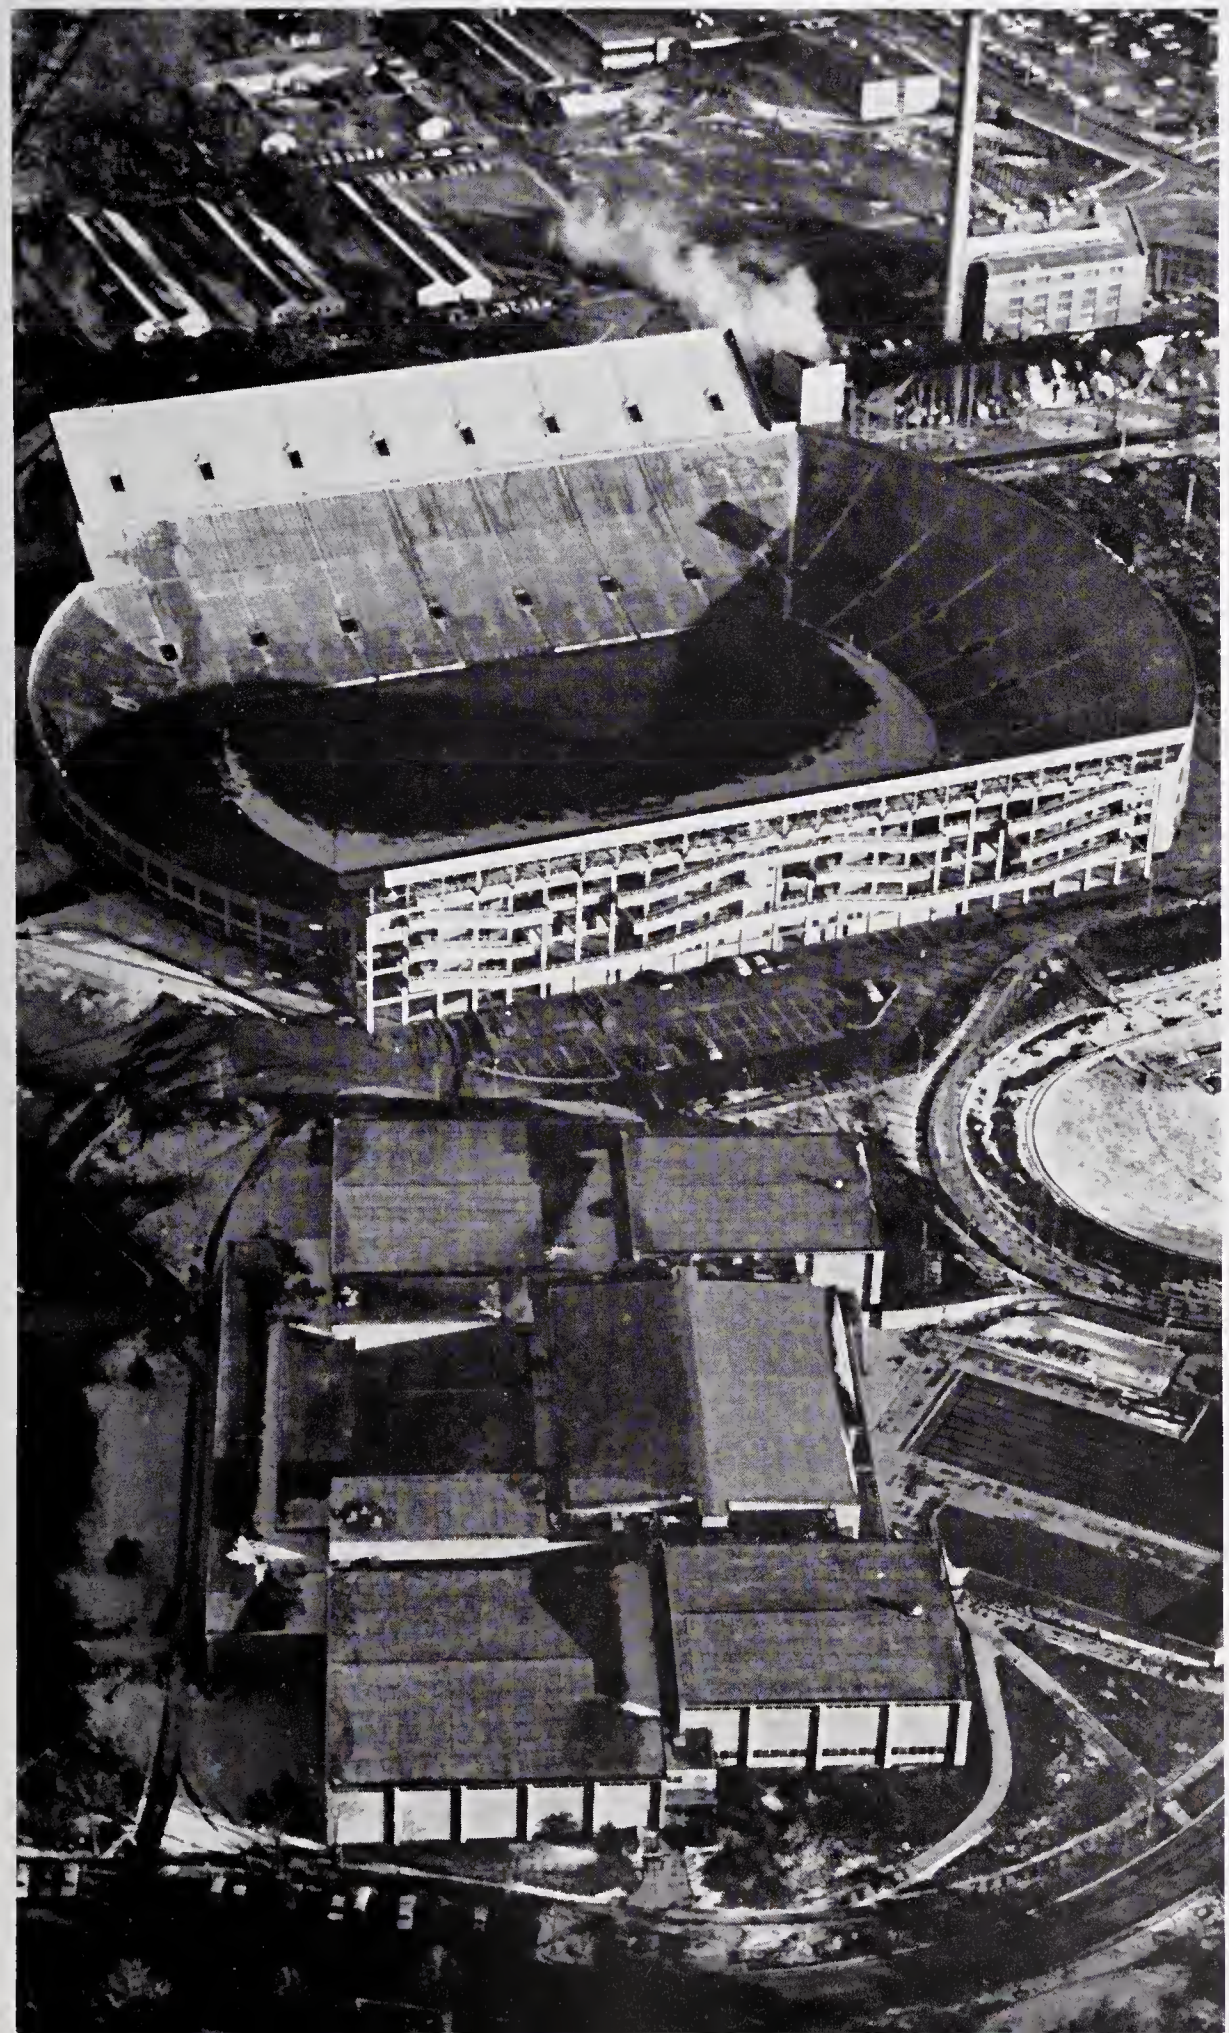

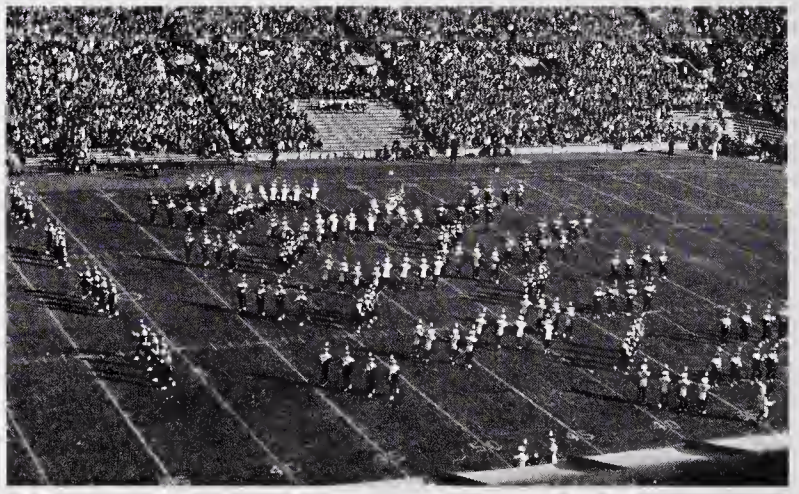

Though only a part of University life, athletics seems to serve as a rallying point for University pride . . . . .

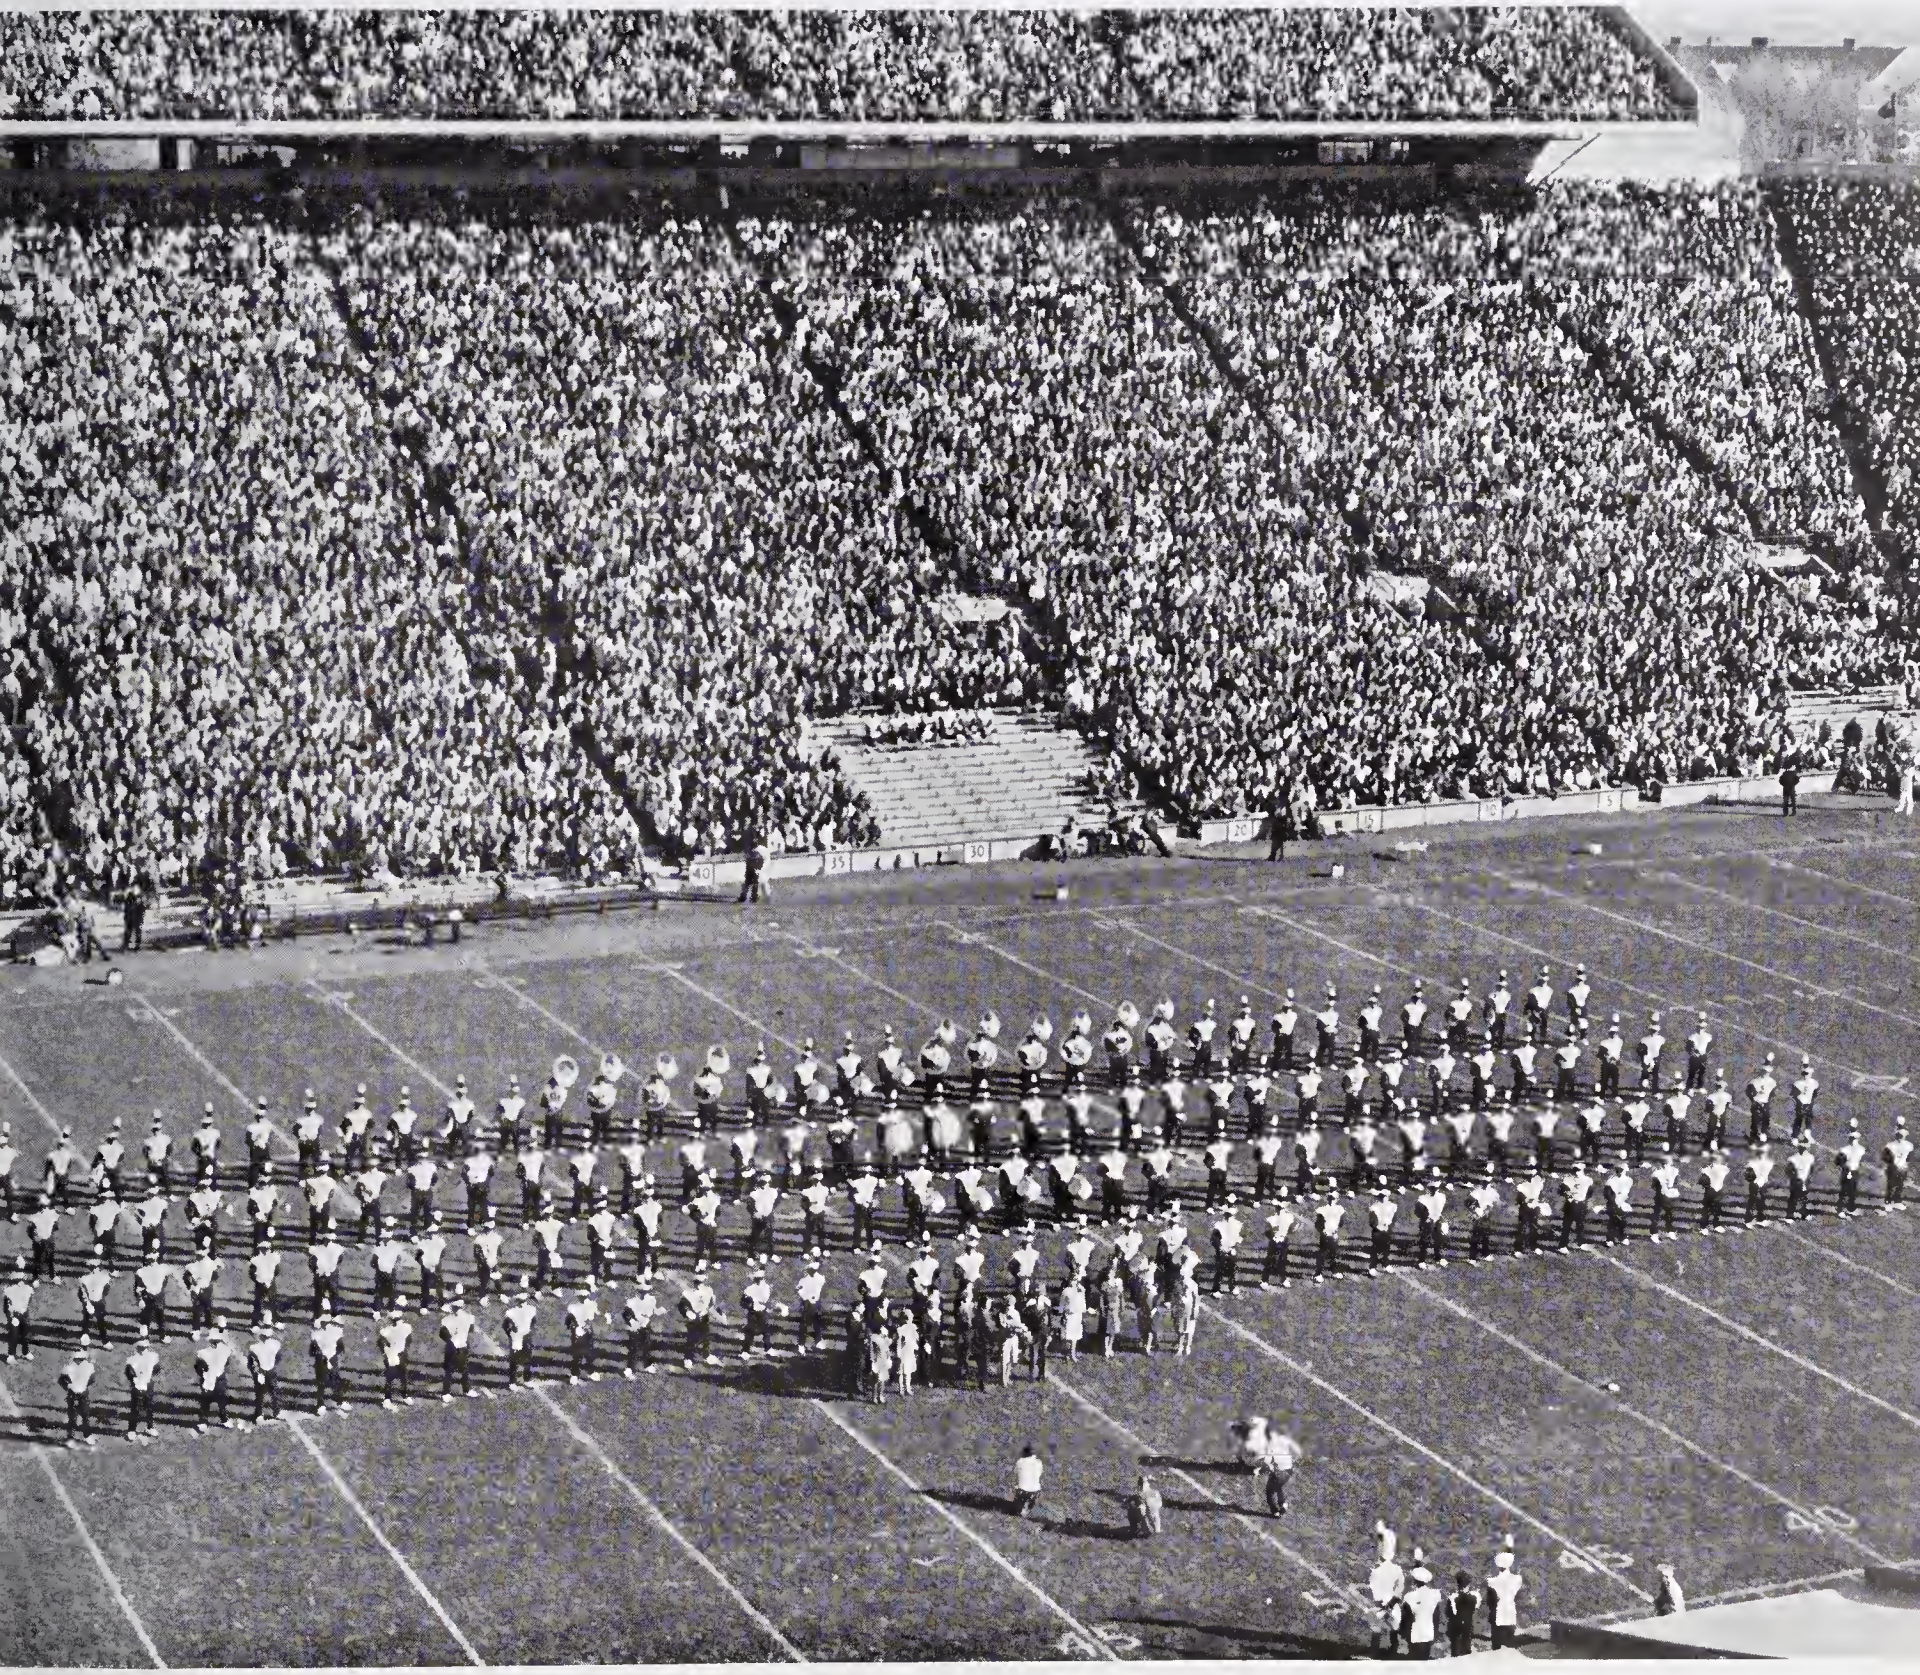

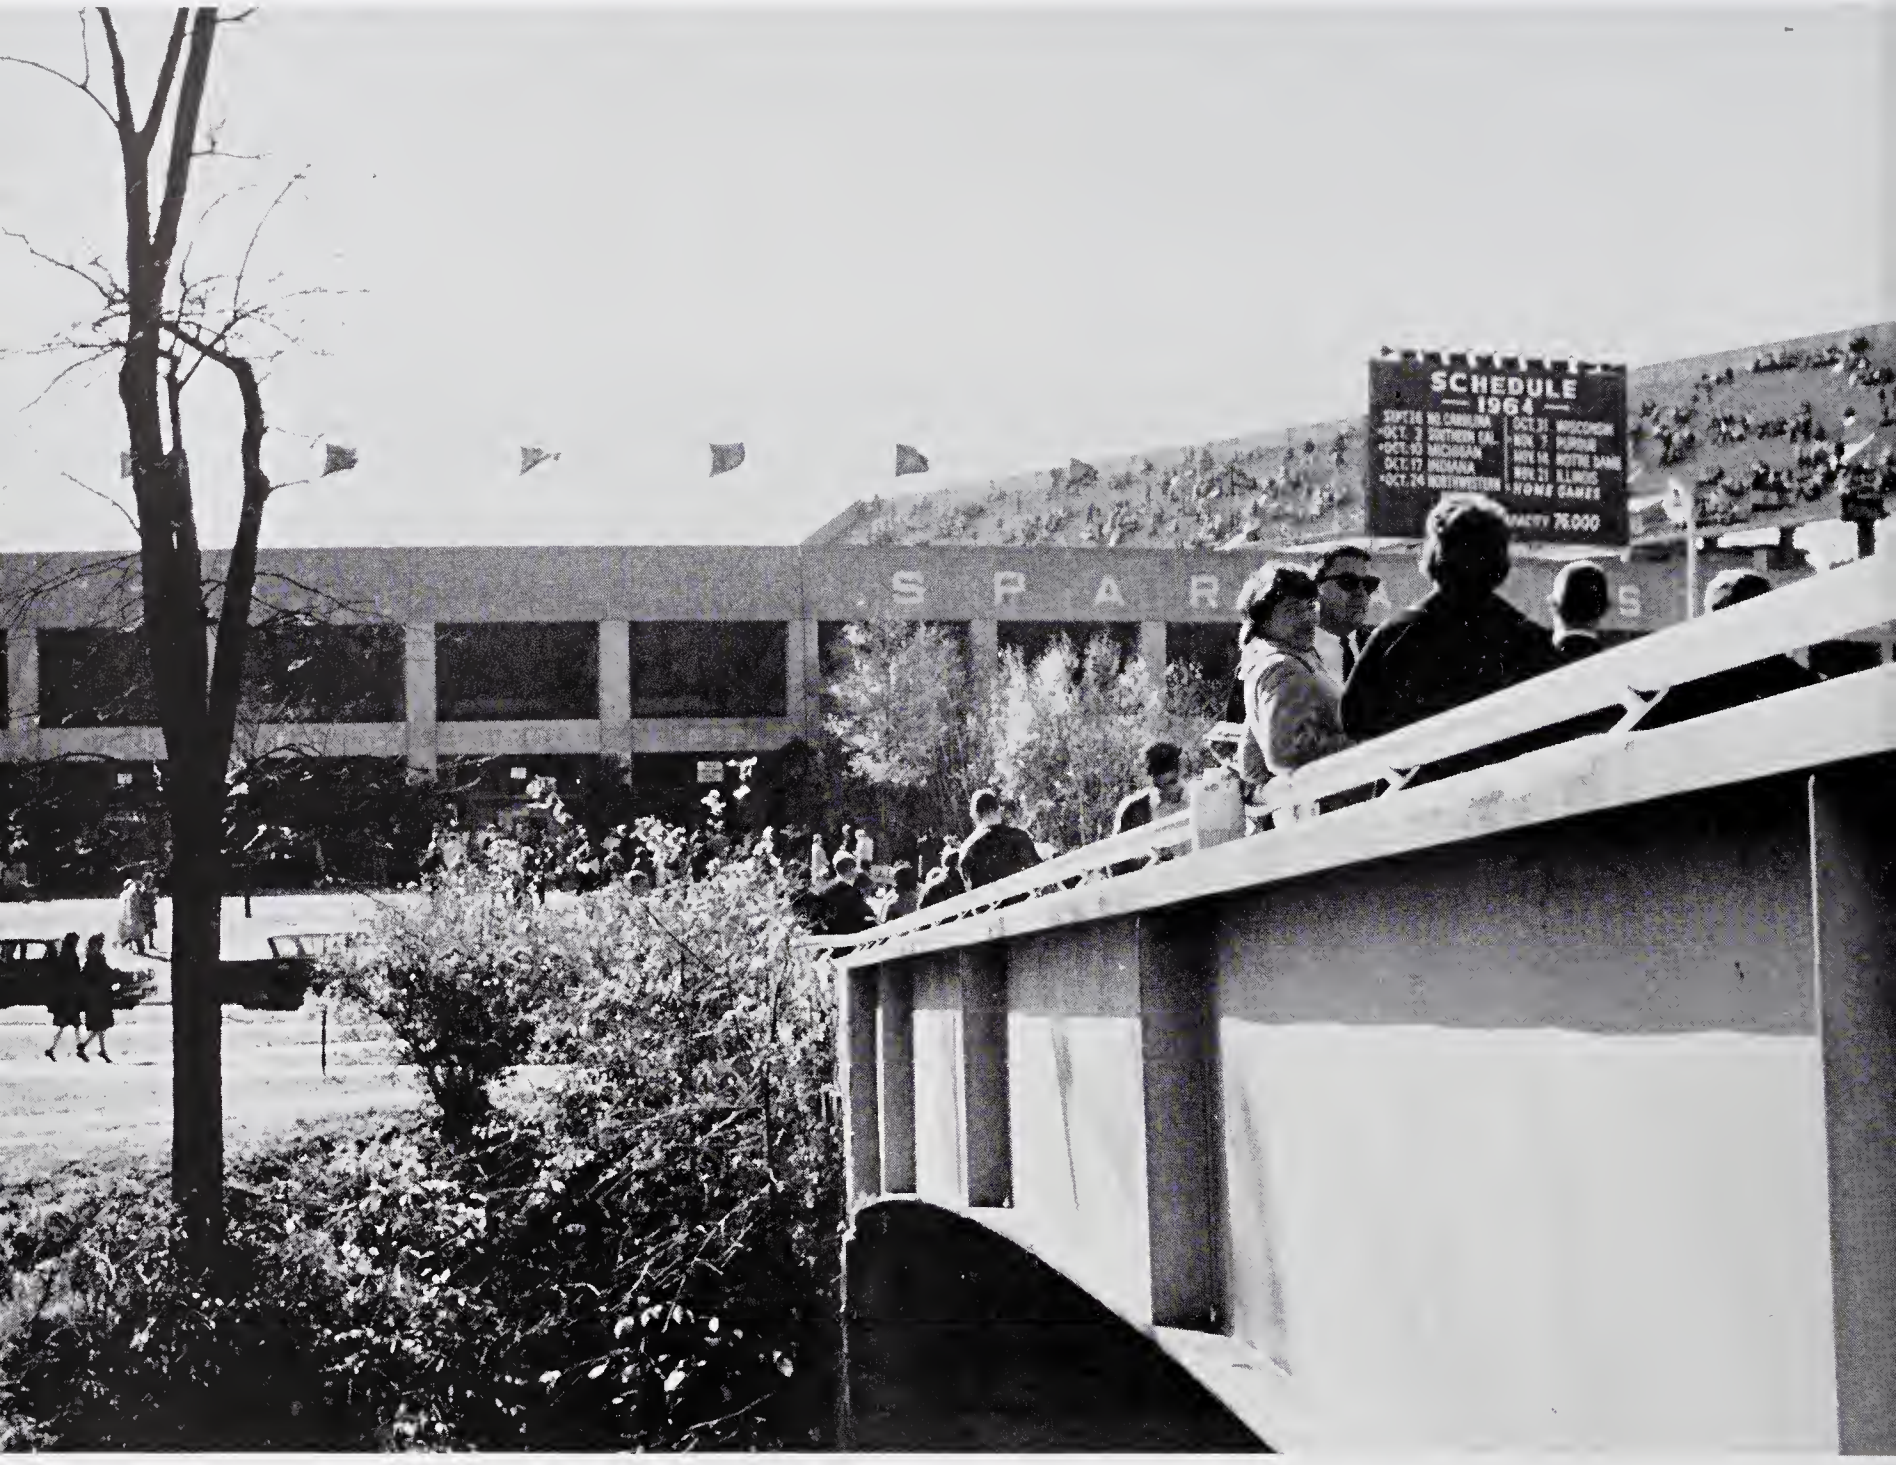

. . . . . This pride may be seen in the eyes of 76,000 people watching the marching band perform its "patterns in motion". . . . .

RESIDENCES

From the neophyte site of Fee and Akers Halls to the traditional West Circle dorms, the residence halls at Michigan State University reflect many distinct characteristics which contribute to the composite of the University atmosphere. Although each complex has its own unique style, the mutual sharing of common experiences and emotions solidifies these differences into a unified whole, evoking an intangible quality called spirit.

Holmes Hall: another addition to State's ever expanding east campus.

Is a coke forthcoming?

For most students attending MSU there is a constant search for a place to live and study without losing all contact with society. The student's prime aim is to do well in his classes, but unless he is able to relax occasionally, studies lose their significance. The dormitory usually offers the student his first attempt at group living. The intermingling with the many divergent types of people which necessarily results becomes a vital part of his total education, and the dormitory student simultaneously learns the rewards and disappointments of living with other people.

Creativity is found in many places — especially in Phil Frank's room.

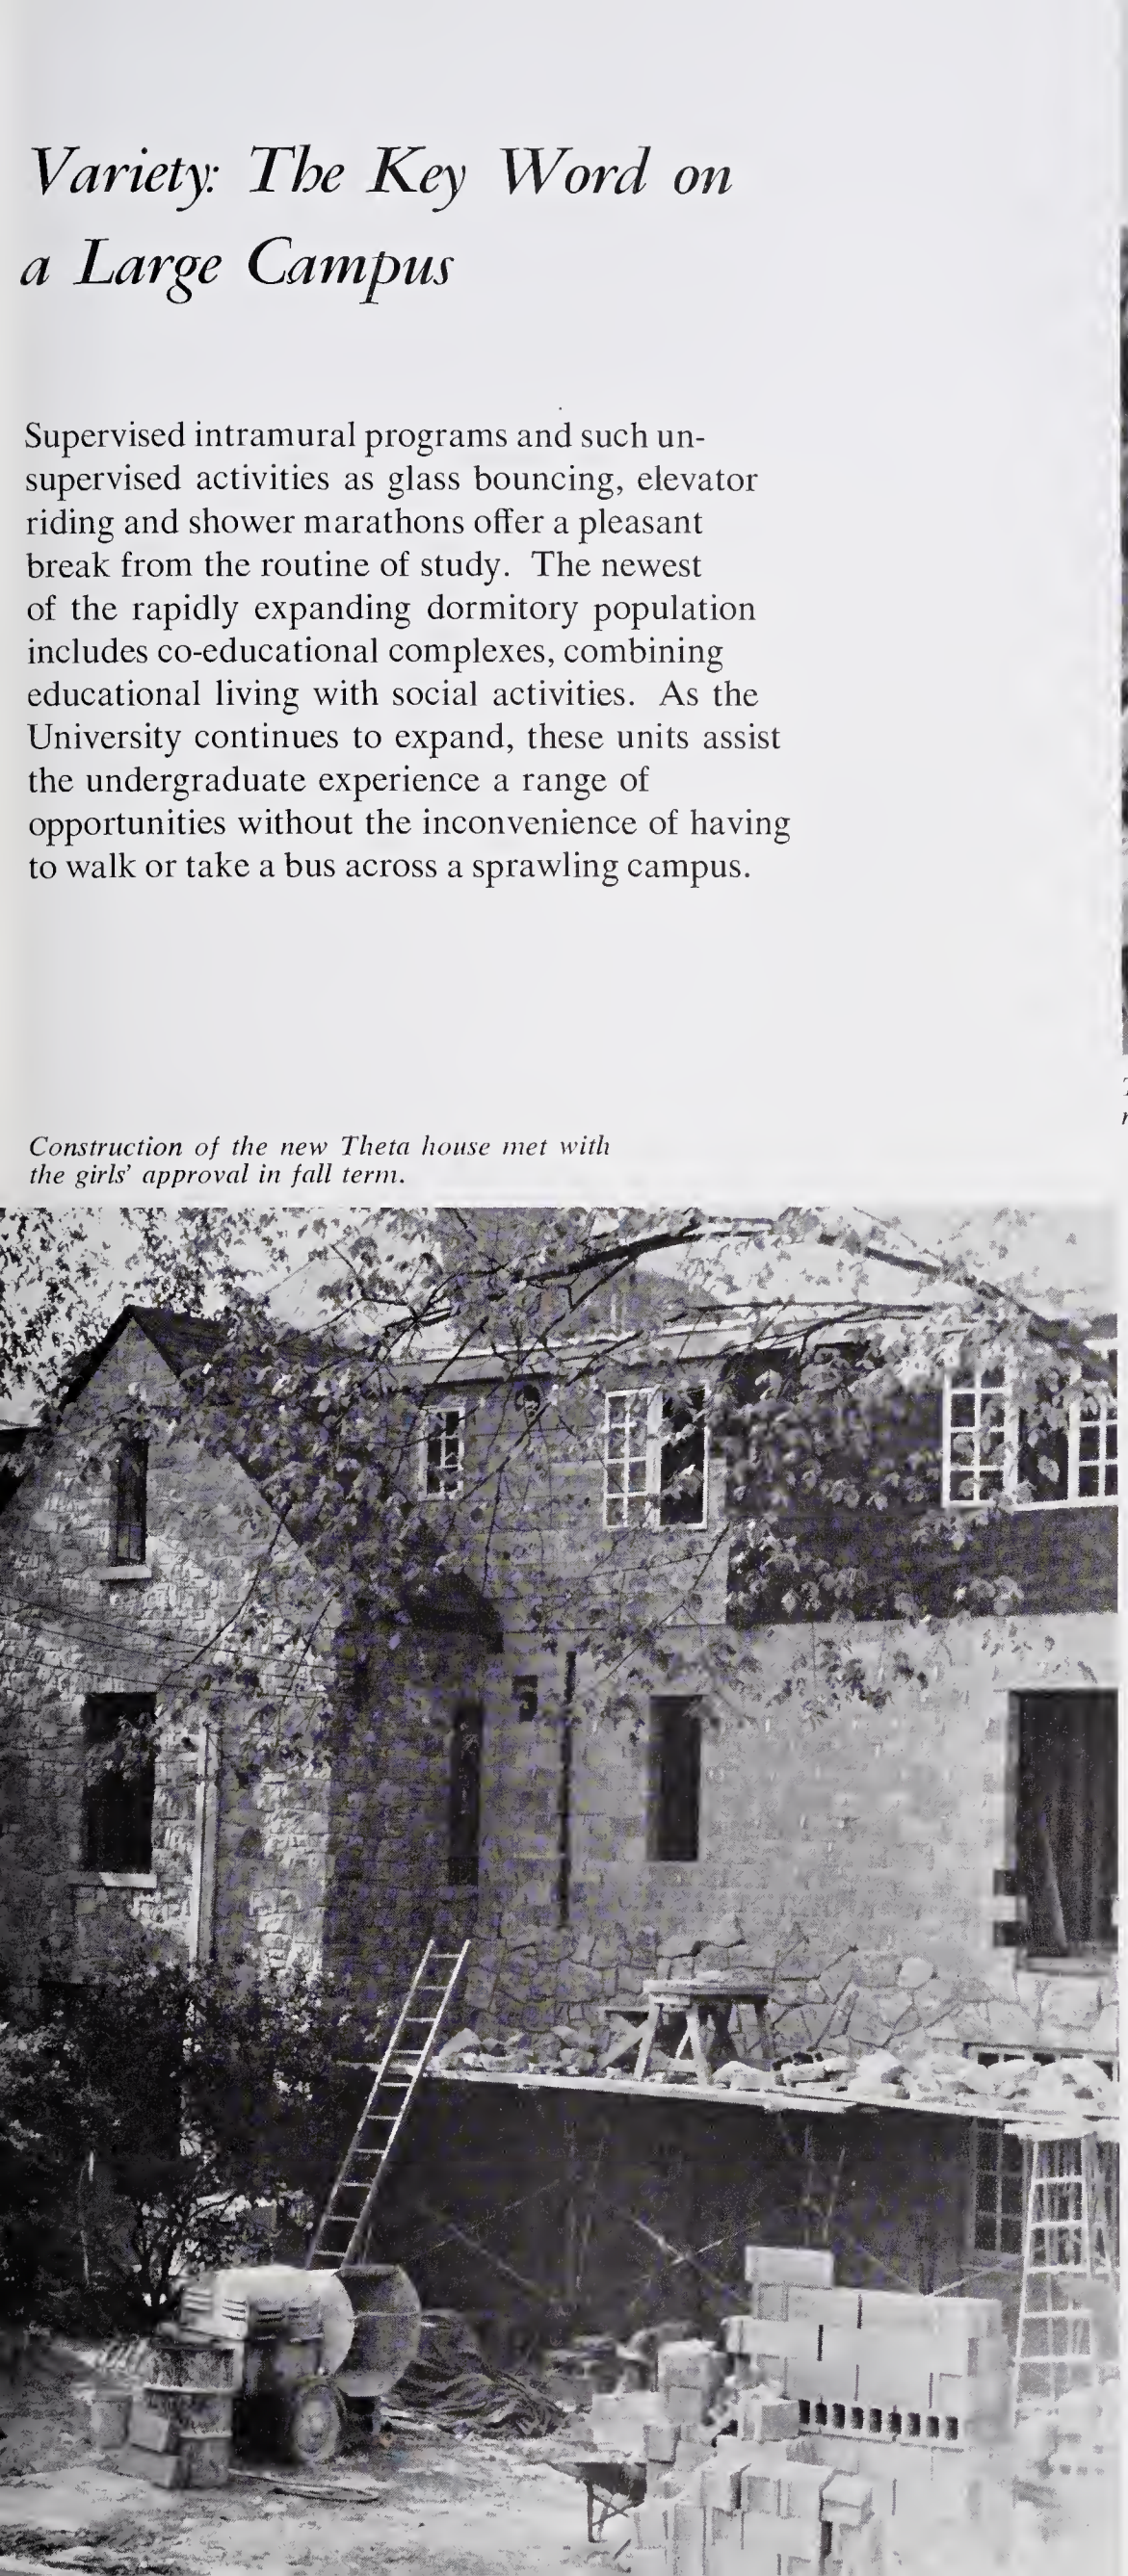

Variety: The Key Word on a Large Campus

Supervised intramural programs and such unsupervised activities as glass bouncing, elevator riding and shower marathons offer a pleasant break from the routine of study. The newest of the rapidly expanding dormitory population includes co-educational complexes, combining educational living with social activities. As the University continues to expand, these units assist the undergraduate experience a range of opportunities without the inconvenience of having to walk or take a bus across a sprawling campus.

Hedrick House: founded 1939.

Despite nearly 15,000 students — half of MSU's total enrollment — who are living in University facilities, over 50 fraternities and sororities offer students the opportunity for Greek living. Here, the camaraderie is close as it is based on a similarity of interests absent from the other living units. Pride and competition among the Greeks build scholastic as well as extra-curricular interest, creating a hopeful incentive toward achievement in higher education.

Out of chaos — order?

Completing MSU's residence system are Van Hoosen Hall, an on-campus apartment complex providing 32 furnished apartments for women, and Owen Graduate Hall whose mature atmosphere has been popular with older students since its completion in 1960. Also, there are more than 2,000 units available to married students, five off-campus religious units and six co-operatives. Many students, however, find homes of varying excellence in the environs of Lansing and East Lansing. The off-campus apartment is the ultimate statement in student freedom, and though that freedom is often expensive, it is worth it to many. Any student over 21 has the privilege of living off-campus, but selection of the right place can lead to problems. He must pick not only a good, clean room, but consider his roommates, the parking facilities, the distance to campus, the neighborhood and a myriad of other mystifying problems. But that, again, is part of the college experience.

Luxury apartments are the scenes of many activities.

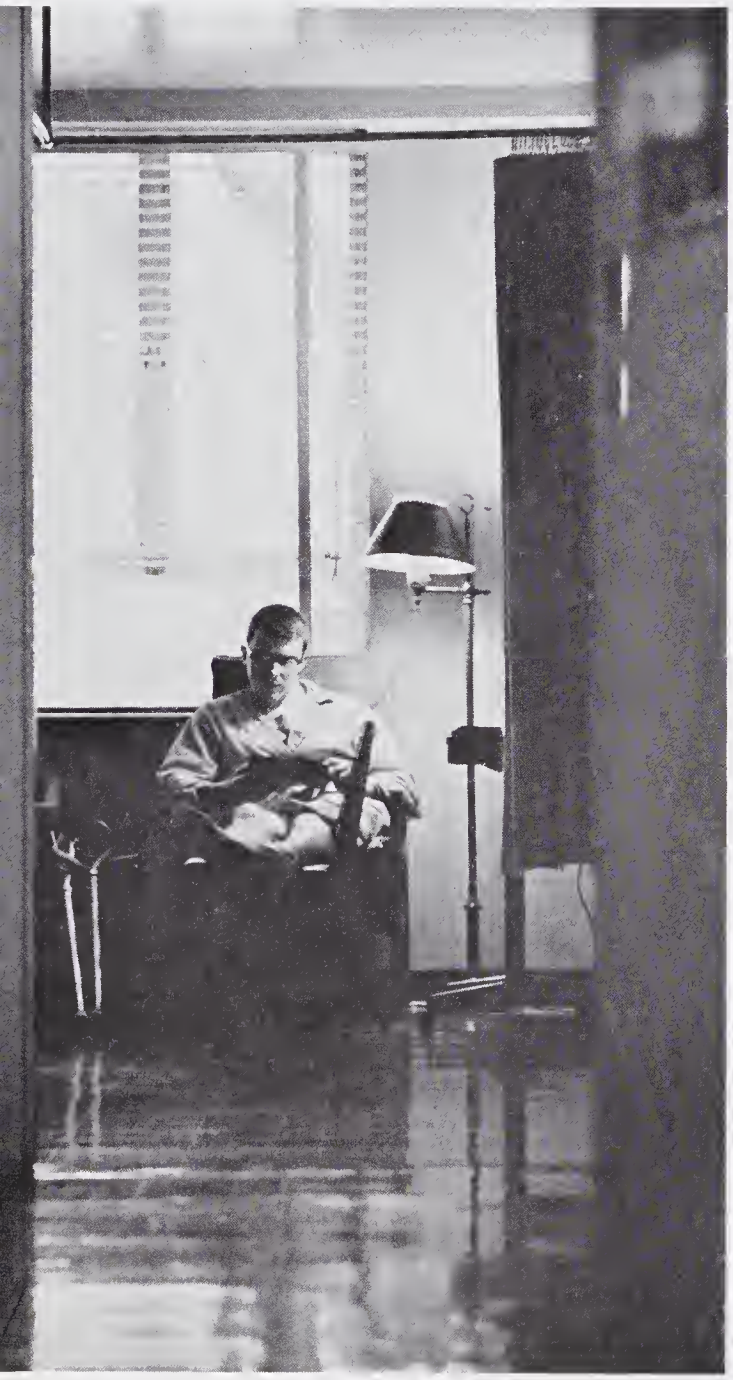

Individuality finds many modes of expression.

Student Residences Are Many and Diverse

An aerial view discloses a dynamic campus.

The University has substance only to the extent that each member of the community has defined it. For the student, his primary source of identification, and therefore of definition, is his residence. Approximately 40 per cent of the student body is accommodated within the series of dormitory complexes. Michigan State University offers a wide variety of living situations designed to meet the needs of the individual. His living area may be a single room, a double, a suite; he may have a sixth floor view or one on the ground level; he may share meals with 1,000 or 600 or 200 others. Whether his dorm is large or small, old or new, near or far, he knows the world of bunk beds and matching spreads, sign-out cards, the symmetry of regimented doors and windows, the clutter of index card advertisements on the bulletin boards, the communal swapping of possessions, the fire drills and quiet hours. He can tell about the time his dorm won a snowball fight, or the time he leaned a bucket of water against the RA's door. Only it doesn't sound like so much in the telling, so he sits back to reflect on his year, and he remembers the time. . . .

RESIDENCE HALLS

Even men experience confusion and disarray when moving in.

McDonel Hall: one of the first new inhabitants of east campus.

When the campus begins to show its autumn hues, the University reawakens to the onslaught of returning students. In a matter of hours, the web of University throughways is a conveyor belt of vehicles loaded with essentials to convert the sameness of dormitory rooms to thousands of individualized residences.
Amidst the air of suntans, madras and packing boxes, anticipation is the byword — anticipation of facing the new or of resuming the old. Who will be the roommate, confidante and friend? How many familiar faces will there be? And when will they arrive to refresh memories and plot the days ahead?

From car, to room, back to car — the tiring process of moving in begins.

A weary father reassembles a bike after the long trek from home to dorm.

The University Reawakens To the Onslaught of Returning Students

Individual Differences Contribute to a Variegated Whole

The warm "hello's of fall moving days are infectious across the entire campus. In every residence complex, students, parents and kid brothers and sisters sporting junior-size college sweatshirts form a continuing stream of walking trunks, boxes, garment bags and stereo sets. All those "absolute essentials" from home are subject to review when the room somehow looks smaller than expected. The mammoth cycle of packing and unpacking rotates from home, to car, to dormitory, to storage space. By natural selection, many items make the return trip home. Depending on one's ratio of energy to good intent, the process of settling gets underway. Bare walls and floors, ticking stripes and dusty desks are eventually enlivened to taste with travel posters, Bates spreads, stuffed animals, mugs and paperbacks.

The Pentagon? No, just the Case, Wilson, Wonders complex.

Parents, kid sisters and students form a continuous stream of walking boxes, trunks and garment bags.

Participation Becomes Part of University Living

When the last suite-mate has been accounted for and a usable pathway has been cleared through the debris, the unlucky one completes practice maneuvers onto the top bunk, and the first night falls on a new living experience. The first bull sessions murmur into the wee hours, a time for reflecting on what time what happens tomorrow: see the advisor at 10:45 . . . last names beginning "Gie — Gro" to the Union at 11:30 . . . find out where Carla is rooming this year . . . get Chuck's humanities syllabus.

Studies are frequently interrupted by washing that cries for attention.

The first week, he meets a hundred to a thousand new faces, with names to match; he remembers perhaps half the faces and none of the names, but after a while, the resident learns to know at least everyone between his room and the washroom. The out-of-state student discovers that the fellow down the hall is from his home state, and he is automatically "Brother." The resident explores his dormitory, from upper stairwell view to basement food and drink machines . . . the upper lounge . . . the lower grill . . . the resident assistant's room . . . the laundry . . . the rec room . . . the study halls. A self-taught guitarist breaks out his repertoire, and a group in hall 4-B finds comraderie in music.

Outlined against ominous clouds, Wonders Hall stands secure against a pending storm.

A modern lounge is the perfect place for a cat nap.

A returning student faces the new miseries of snow and seemingly endless cold days.

Institutional Decorum, Traditional Disorder — Both Are a Part of College Life

Informal gatherings are an important aspect of college.

Surfing without surfboards in the hall is just one of the many advantages of dorm life.

Confidentially speaking, . . .

An RA reads the seemingly endless list of regulations to a group of intentive freshmen.

There are meetings to attend and rules to adopt. Dorm government varies among the residence halls, but all include residence assistants and floor representatives, house councils, presidents' and complex councils. Each dorm cooperates with other residence leaders and with the Administration, for a community cannot exist without established order. But neither does college living exist without traditional disorder. Within — and sometimes outside — the bounds of quiet hours and institutional decorum, dorm living inevitably means shaving cream fights, pencilling-in, clandestine water buckets and reams of unrolled toilet paper. Beating the regulations is all part of it: shampooing in the shower instead of the sink . . . sneaking a dog up to the RA's room . . . removing window screens for improvised refrigeration . . . bouncing glasses.

An impromptu pep rally demonstrates the spirit in two new residence halls.

Young trees somehow survive a violent rainstorm.

The Spirit of Interaction Cannot Be Denied

Each dormitory is a way of life in itself, but each is an integral part of the total community of Michigan State University. Space relations have designated five distinct residence complexes, but the spirit of interaction cannot be denied. No student expects to remain isolated in his end of the campus, even if he has to buy a bus ticket to circle his expanding university. Competition spurs an individual's pride in his dorm. The all-University Canoe Race, football blocs and Homecoming displays kick off the fall activities. What student has never tripped over chicken wire in the basement?

Unending Construction Illustrates The Residences' Growing Population

This past year saw three new dorm construction projects. Holmes Hall, located on Shaw Lane east of McDonel Hall, is scheduled for completion in July, 1965. This $6.5 million coed residence will house 1,276 students enrolled in the College of Natural Science. Hubbard Hall will loom twelve stories between Fee and Akers, themselves only neophyte constructions. Winter term of 1966, Hubbard is scheduled for opening, with a capacity of 1,214. The third major construction, the addition to Owen Graduate Center, will more than double present accommodations for graduate students.

North, South, East and West—
Changing Architectural Styles Reflect Physical Growth

Physical growth has given rise to a series of dorm complexes, each of which comprises a distinct campus of Michigan State University. West Circle Drive's small women's dorms are nestled in the long-standing beauty of Old North Campus. In the Northeast corner of the campus community are Mason, Abbot, Phillips, Snyder, Shaw and Van Hoosen. The newer East Campus is composed of McDonel, Fee and Akers and will include Holmes and Hubbard. To the south stand Case, Wilson and Wonders. To the West are the six member-dorms of the Brody group. Any dorm has come to be more than a living area. It is a place of learning and of recreation. It has a unique spirit and is a prime means of identification for the student.

Six story Wilson Hall will soon be topped by the 12 floor high rise dorm.

Once on the outskirts, Shaw Hall is now near the center of campus.

New parking rules restrict the cars along campus streets.

The old West Circle dorms maintain a traditional college decor.

All those men for one little pig?

Co-ordination does not come as easily with both feet in a sack.

The Campus Comes Alive When the Grass Grows Green

Spring term is many things. It is packing winter in moth balls and opening windows to let in the sun and warm air. Students plan morning classes, and in the afternoon the "South Campus Beach," dorm sundecks and any available blanket of grass are in great demand. Life blooms on a sunny Saturday, and the campus is a beautiful array of color. Spring means sneaking crackers out of the dining room for the ducks and wearing sneakers and bermudas. The lawnmowers start at 5:30 in the morning, the mud at Fee and Akers doesn't seem quite so annoying anymore, there is iced tea in the milk machines and of course there is Water Carnival.

Enthusiastic spectators spur on their favorite pie-eaters.

South Campus Weekend: A Fitting Tribute to Spring

South Campus Weekend is a major tradition on campus with all the gala of a three-day carnival, planned by the residents in a fitting tribute to spring. It is a time of blueberry pie, sack races, greased pigs and watermelon. Case opened in 1961, the first of a complex once considered miles from nowhere. Said a Wonders coed, "We'll soon be the center of campus; after all, look at Fee and Akers."

There's nothing like a brisk walk to class in the cold to clear the mind.

Students develop a new form of torture in their spare time — water balloons.

Top-level strategy is discussed in this extra-intramural football game.

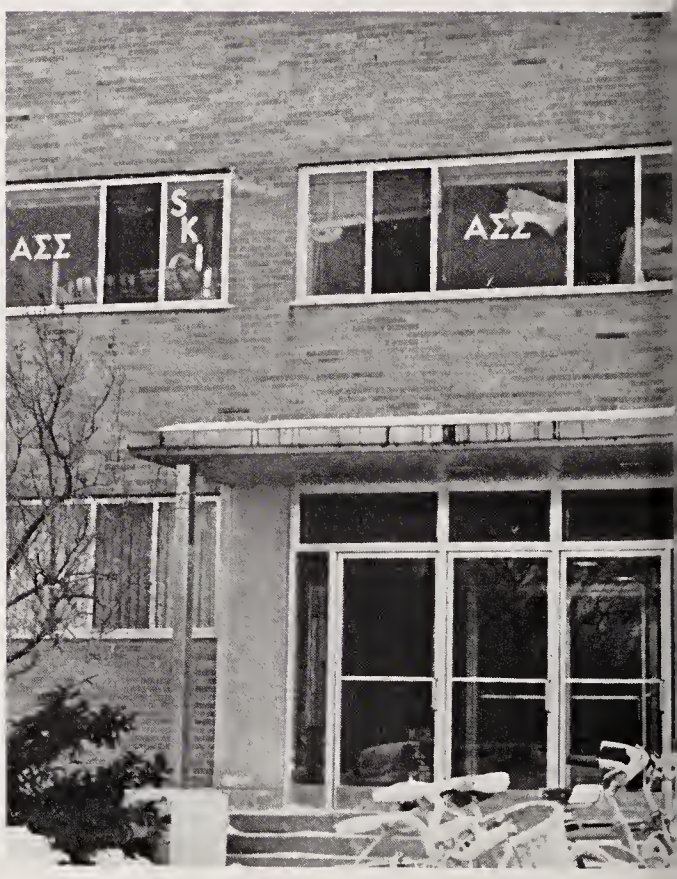

Residence dining halls offer a place for conversation and friendship as well as nourishment.

The sewage plant, a source of constant complaint, is being moved this summer.

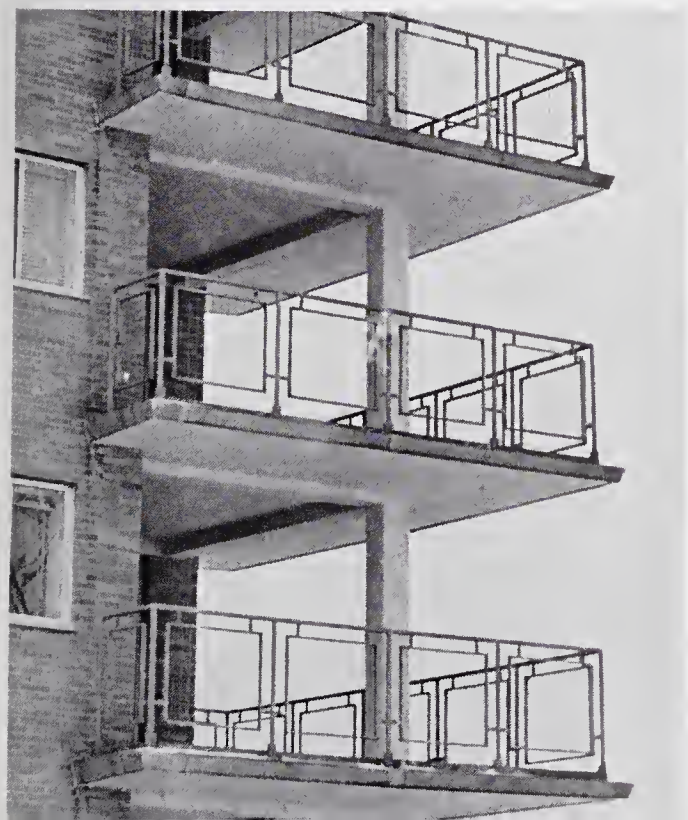

Window decorations brighten the Bryan Hall entrance.

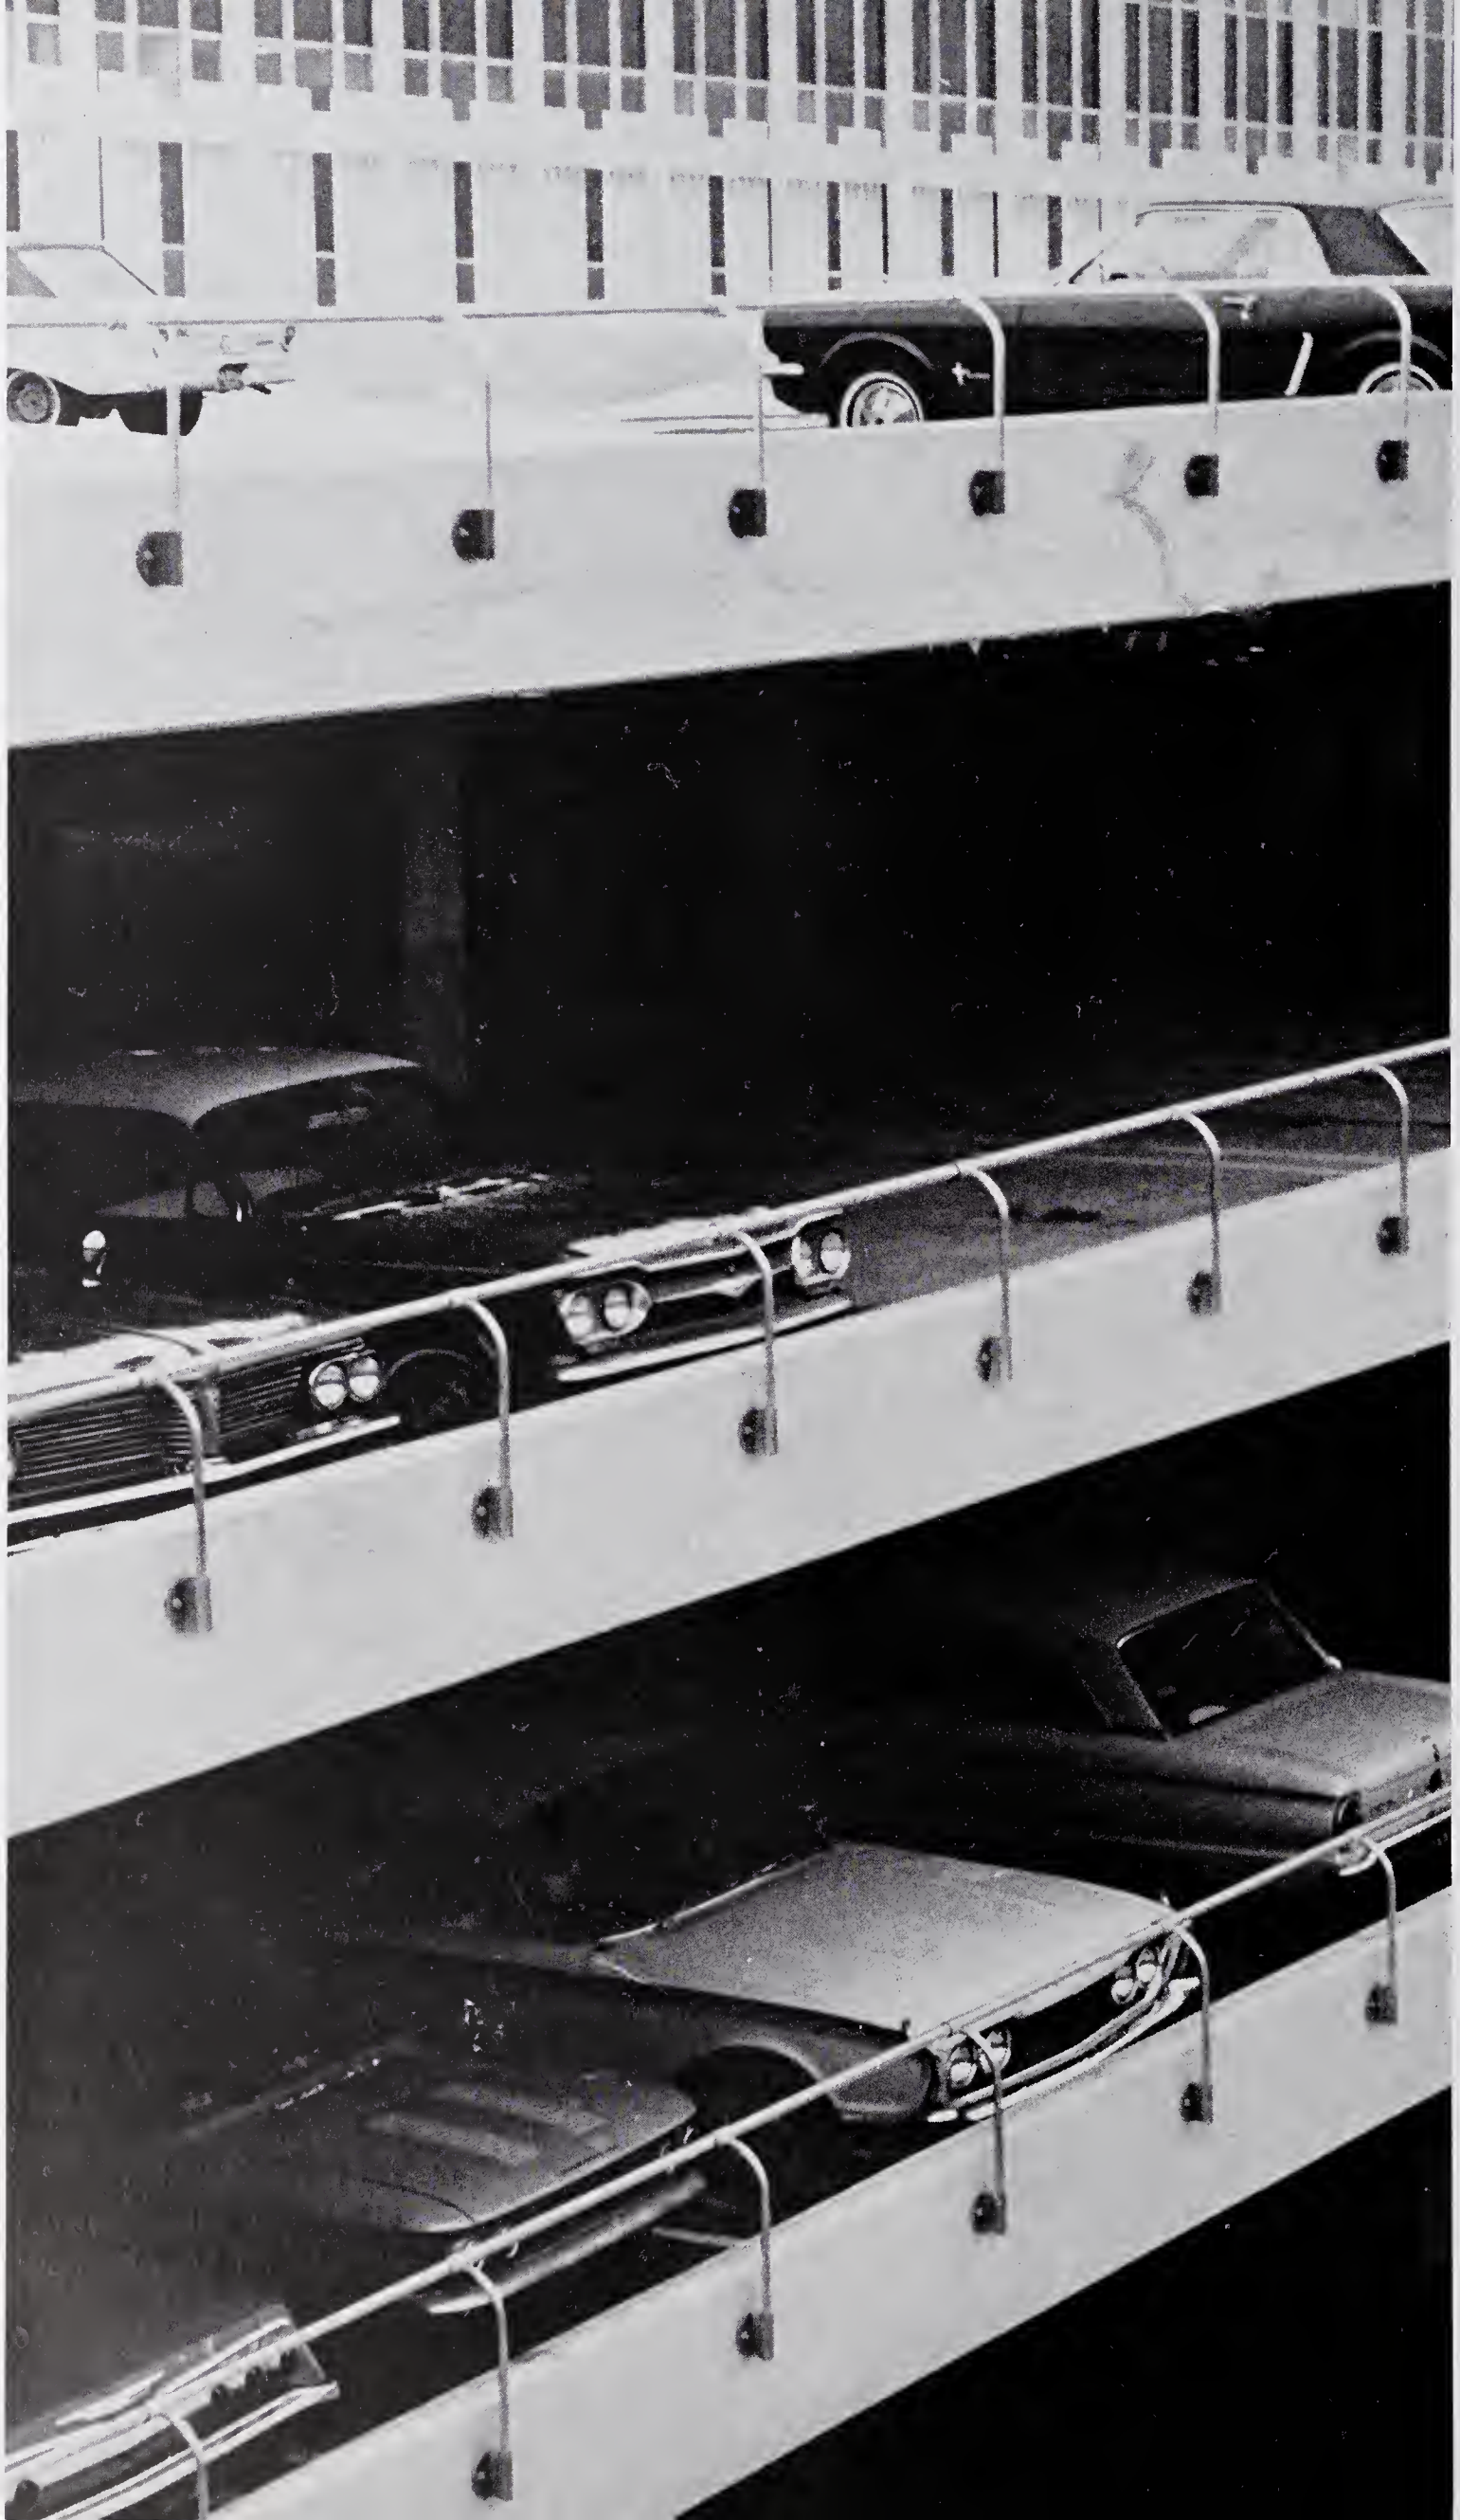

Deserted bikes rust and wait for spring outside Brody.

Brody Leads Campus With Shows of Spirit and Enthusiasm

From these balconies, Brody residents have an expansive view of the campus.

In the Brody group are two women's and four men's dormitories. This West Complex is known for spirit, both within itself and as a unit of the whole University community. Clark E. Brody Hall is the hub of activity, from dining, to all-University mixers, and many a Brody resident has known the frustration of running across the field on a cold morning only to find the breakfast lines closed. The new sewage plant being constructed on Trowbridge Road will remove the odor traditionally associated with West Campus.

"Where oh where is that term paper!"

Winter and Spring— The Campus is Always on the Move

Said the young man from Bryan to his Akers lady, "You know, I really like you, honey, but . . ." (multiple choice): (1) I never can remember your area code to call for a date;" (2) it takes time to get out there to the 'Okemos Complex;' " (3) I didn't buy a bus ticket;" (4) I'll never pass ROTC inspection with that mud on my shoes." Mass education on an expanding campus is subject to much joking and complaining, but the memories carried home from college never turn out so badly. Yes, there are eight-o'clocks in Fee if you live in Brody, and in Anthony Hall if you live in Mayo; there are missed buses, flat bike tires and calloused feet. But the distance is all but forgotten when there is a Lecture-Concert Series to attend, or when a group, laughing, treks en masse across campus to a mixer. Lines — these too are the earmarks of campus living. There are lines for the bus, meals, linens, football tickets, milk machines, ad infinitum.

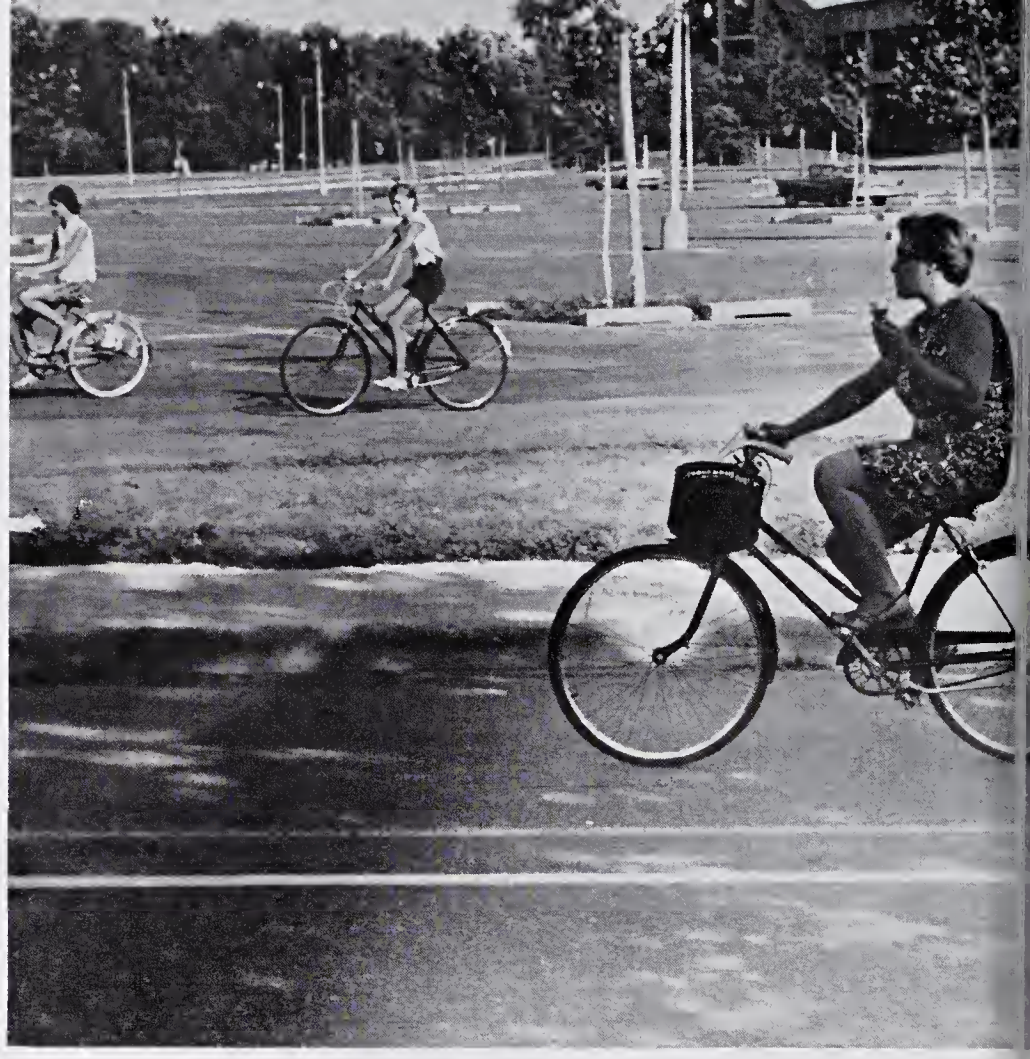

Due to the new traffic regulations, the new parking ramp has become the daytime home for many a students' car.

The snow and cold reflect winter term at MSU— or is it spring?

Traffic is still not sparse on campus.

Bikes are the most common mode of travel during the warm months of spring.

An Expanding University is Indicative of Diversity

North, East, South and West — the style of dormitory living is a continuum of events large and small, from fall to summer. Snatches of the happy and the sad come to mind: the band practice late afternoons and early Saturday mornings in the fall . . . the excitement of football weekends . . . the search for Chemistry 102 exams in a file full of 101 and 103 . . . the familiar ring of "Does anybody want a blind date?" . . . the piano playing in the lounge on a rainy day . . . the Beatles blatting from four halls simultaneously. There is time to remember wondering whether the phone would ever ring those first two weeks, being kissed under Beaumont Tower, staging surprise birthday parties in the rec room and wishing the dietition didn't know what to do with leftovers. There is cramming for finals all night in the dining room, and then being able to sit at the banquet table for the scholarship dinners.

MSU buses are needed to take students to the far-away land of Brody.

Residence grills provide a convenient place for a study break over a cup of coffee.

Not only are dorms becoming coeducational, but also is football — believe it or not.

Victory — An Expression of Group Effort

Many know the good feeling that comes when group effort results in a win — another trophy to point out with pleasure in a lounge full of visiting parents and friends, another memory of the distinct excitement of a football weekend. Competition runs the gamut of activity, including the Turkey Trot, the Pancake Eating contest, College Bowls, intramural sports and the spring Water Carnival. At Christmas, tinsel, angel hair, pine cones and colored balls dress the residence halls in the annual door decorating contests. Caroling, orphans' parties and baskets for the needy usher in the holiday season. Christmas is all the merrier for it marks the end of the fall term. Lobbies everywhere are strewn with belongings waiting to be packed once more for the holiday exodus.

A close finish means excitement for Shaw canoe racers.

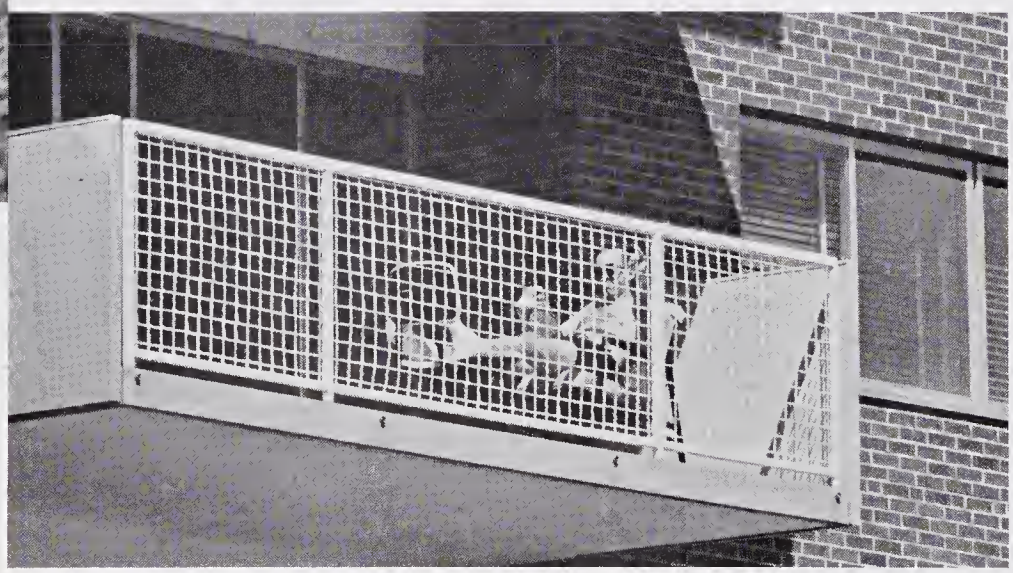

To eat, or not to eat — that is the question.

All eyes focus on the "bottomless pits".

With lunch completed, there are a few minutes left to talk.

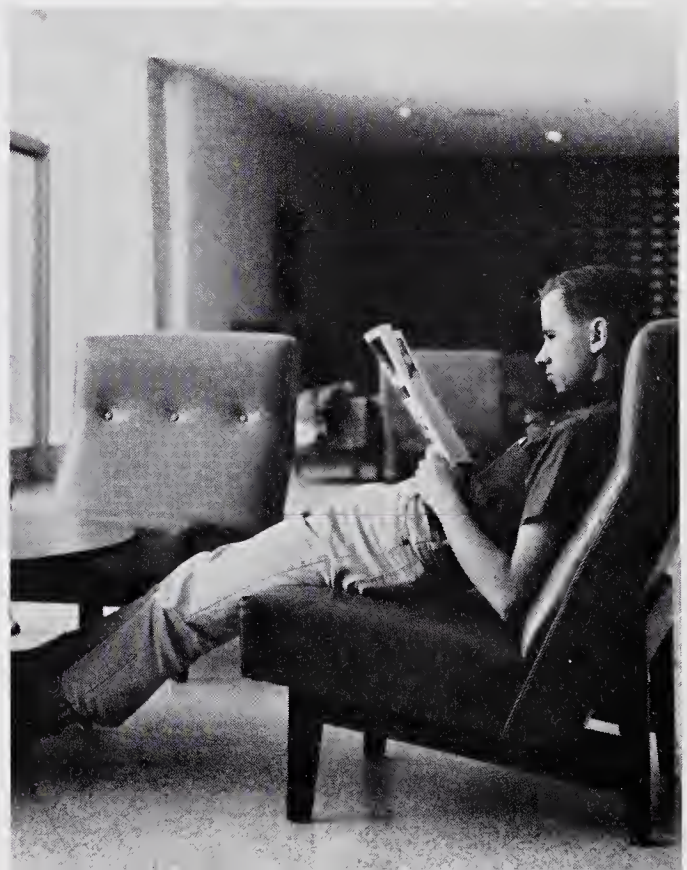

Spring sun and a dorm balcony bring out the sun worshipers.

Graduate Students Enjoy the Facilities of Owen Hall

It has been said that the four years spent in college are a bridge between immaturity and maturity. However, one never ceases to learn and mature, even the graduate. Some leave to pursue careers; others prepare to enter graduate studies here and elsewhere. At Michigan State University, the Owen Graduate Center has undergone remodeling of dining and public facilities areas and construction of 64 double and 384 single rooms, a project more than doubling former accommodations. In graduate life, the "bull" sessions continue, for there is always the mingling of people of varied talents. But studies are not forsaken. Many a student who leaves university life reminisces longingly for the "old days." He remembers the time he set the record for staying in the clothes dryer 27 minutes, or in the shower less than one second. He remembers the care packages from home and the traffic jams at 12:52, trying to get his girl back to the dorm. He remembers the time . . . .

There's time to read a magazine in a deserted lounge.

Owen Hall's new addition will facilitate the housing of the fast growing numbers of graduate students.

East Mary Mayo: a landmark on State's North campus.

A path not taken often becomes a point of ponderance.

Mason

With the arrival of male neighbors in Abbot Hall, Mason women gained some helping hands for float construction and social events. They learned a few football plays from watching the year round scrimmage sessions in their backyard. Last summer, several of the residents sent welcome letters to incoming freshmen explaining dorm activities. On Halloween, an impromptu group of carolers sang hymns of praise to the Great Pumpkin, and blind students were taken trick or treating. At Christmas, the employees' children were given a party. The traditional spring Senior Serenade honored the seniors with roses after closing hours. Earlier that evening, the graduates-to-be were guests at a dinner. Mason also contributed to the new complex newspaper with Abbot, Phillips and Snyder.

West Akers

Opened last fall as a residence and office space for the College of Arts and Letters, West Akers is at least 70 per cent upperclassmen. The houses were named after famous historical figures in arts and letters. East and West presidents and executive councils initiated a miniature Spartan Round Table aimed at greater interaction between students and management. Scholastic achievement was celebrated with a tobogganing party and a picnic.

Butterfield

These 500 women demonstrated their abundance of enthusiasm this year with skit nights each term featuring the dorm choir and acts from each floor. For Christmas, Butterfield sponsored a party for underprivileged children with Bailey men. They also joined forces with Armstrong Hall to place second in last spring's Water Carnival. Each spring, outstanding women are honored as members of the Butterfield Pin Club.

ROW ONE: Ellis, Conroy, Beecher, Fillinger, Hackenbruch, Heil, Ruttan; ROW TWO: Dieleman, Dyer, Erikainer, Clements, Pitkus, Alstrom; ROW THREE: Burch, Sheahan, Clune, Powers, Kalbfleisch, Bailey, Janiten; ROW FOUR: Jillitson, Auble, Smith, Domeier, Wheaton, Armstrong.

North Campbell

One of the oldest dorms on campus, North Campbell, celebrated its 25th anniversary last fall. "Campbell Soup," the dorm weekly, never lacked for news, pictures, and cartoons of the women's activities. Such speakers as Dr. Laurine Fitzgerald, Dr. Stanley Idzerda, and Dr. Harold Walsh were invited to dinner several times a term.

South Campbell

Boys returning their dates to South Campbell at the witching hour were often serenaded by an impromptu hootenanny ensemble from the second floor. Further emphasizing the 25 year-old dorm's unique spirit was its first place Homecoming display. Later, however, they elected to withdraw from Spartan Spirit.

North Case

North Case women named their houses after such hotels as the Fontainbleu, Stagecoach Stop, Beau Rivage, Halekulani and Penthouse. Displaying an abundance of enthusiasm this year, these women helped plan a winter term book sale for south campus residents. They placed third in the coed division of Homecoming and had a winning College Bowl team. Part of their social and educational programs included informal lounge discussions by various speakers, book reviews, post-game open houses and refreshments, Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets, a party for 84 underprivileged children, and dinners developed around foreign themes. Last spring one such repast was carried out around a Polynesian decor. In honor of the top 25 men and 25 women of Case, a scholarship banquet is held each term.

ROW ONE: Catalino, Plotner, Hannewald, Hayes, Hoctt, Stoutenburg; ROW TWO: Viksne, Chris, Sales, Cooper, Sternburg, Stewart, Wixson.

East Fee

"'. . . And all through the house, not a creature was stirring,' except for a mouse." So went the theme of a Christmas skit at East Fee commemorating the slaying of seven such rodents in the head advisor's apartment. Another skit at their first Christmas party featured a student in ROTC uniform, waving a huge key and a whistle, yelling "fire drill," as plugged chimneys had often necessitated an alarm. This time, Santa revealed himself as the source of the chimney problem. The women gave a party for underprivileged children with the men of West Fee. The 690 residents elected only their president, who in turn appointed the other officers prior to completion of the new constitution. The houses were named after famous streets such as Sunset Strip, Thunder Road, Avenue of the America's and Champs Elysees.

ROW ONE: Mackenzie, Herhilan, Winship, McKewen, Tucker, Stephenson; ROW TWO: Stocker, Frick, Fry, Thompson, Mutnick, Herrmann; ROW THREE: Ferris, Williams, Snider, Hoberman, McNutt, Badenock, Benjamin.

Gilchrist

Two of Gilchrist's residents confirmed the dorm's motto, "smallest but best," last fall when they paddled to victory in the all-University Canoe Race. Last spring a Gilchrist Honorary was initiated to honor those girls who were outstanding contributors to the dorm. During Christmas, the seniors caroled through the dorm carrying white candles encircled with red bows which each senior presented to a fresman as a wish for continuing success.

Phillips

As part of the northeast campus with Snyder, Abbot and Mason, Phillips has been working toward a Complex organization. The existing Complex Board met at weekly dinners for the purpose of devising a constitution and coordinating activities. Phillips' grill, staffed by residents, caters to many on- and off-campus students. A five-woman committee headed the Resident-of-the-Week program, which expands to competition for Residents-of-the-Term and of-the-Year.

ROW ONE: Jordan, Mate, Burley, Stauffer, Castle, Hoffman, Christensen; ROW TWO: Scott, Maki, Joughin, Miller, Said, Lewis, Skrocki, Bogatko; ROW THREE: Pagano, Gatten, Bauer, Carter, DeYoung, Eustis, Herrick; ROW FOUR: Wuestewald, Karaindros, Fitchett, Klohn, Young, Williams, Vogt.

East Landon

Linda Landon, for whom the dormitory was named, was Michigan Agricultural College's first librarian. Today, Michigan State University's library is in sight of Landon Hall. Directly across from the dorm is Landon Field where each fall, daily entertainment is provided by the band as it goes through its capers. Residents have a ringside seat for the Junior 500, as the track begins across the field and swings around West Circle Drive. Last spring, East Landon women earned the University trophy for highest scholastic average in their level of competition.

The major project of the year was a volunteer program at Roselawn Nursing Home where students spent weekends assisting the staff in any way possible. During Thanksgiving and Christmas, needy families received baskets of food from the dorm.

West Landon

Spearheaded by their freshmen, West Landon topped competitors throughout the fall in Spartan Spirit. Signs in dorm windows demonstrated the students' wholehearted participation, as did an array of pep rally skits put on by the residents. A baton twirler, imitating the Purdue Golden Girl who heads the Purdue marching band, also sparked their enthusiasm. At a Christmas party for Ingham County Hospital patients, the women brought a decorated tree, which was strategically placed, and distributed candy canes as they went caroling through the halls. This was the first of several visits arranged by the House Council. International dinners included Spanish and Hawaiian themes, and scholarship banquets were given each term. At the annual spring Senior Dinner, outstanding senior women were recognized.

West Mayo

A passerby at West Mayo might be on the losing end of a squirt gun meant for rooftop pigeons, a quaint feature unknown to any of the larger dorm complexes. Placing first among women's residences in the fall blood drive did not sap the girls' strength; much energy was expended with the men of Armstrong at the Turkey Trot. The dorm also sponsored a Christmas party for needy children.

East Mayo

This year East Mayo women began an intra-dorm tutoring system and continued to host guest faculty speakers. With their second place Homecoming display, the children's Christmas party, and special spring trophies for "Outstanding Senior" and "Good Humor," these women displayed a warm camaraderie. In addition, the dorm boasted a first with a green carpeted dining hall.

East McDonel

McDonel's 12 clans succeeded in achieving greater unity within the hall and with their brother clans to the west in their second year as a dorm. The wing was the first on campus to have a cultural chairman who set the pace for other dorm programs. This year the hall capitalized on resident talent by producing the play "Harvey" and sponsoring art and literature contests. Last spring McDonel took third place in the Water Carnival, "Witerature," and were named swimming champions in the 1964 fall competition. They also placed second with West in the Homecoming display.

Each of the clans made an ornament for the Christmas tree to be kept from year to year. Pooling resources at Christmas, the dorm also presented an AM-FM radio to a Lansing nursing home.

Rather

Rather has the distinction of having the only resident housemother and father among women's residences. By awarding a transient trophy to the hall scoring the fastest exit during fire drills, the dorm increased its enthusiasm for a non-too-popular event. Strong inter-dorm spirit was evidenced by their cooperation with Bryan in coed football scrimmages, as well as participation in the Brody College Bowl and intramural sports.

Van Hoosen

All the conveniences of home are available at Van Hoosen. Since 1957, the opening year of this apartment complex, the girls have each invited the resident advisor and her two assistants to dinner throughout the year. Eligibility requirements specify a 2.2 all-university average, minimum of sophomore standing, and three written recommendations. Last fall all apartments contributed food to a chuckwagon party in the lobby, complete with guitars, harmonicas, and dancing.

Williams

Three hundred women from North and South Williams merged their councils-elect last fall and revamped their old constitution. Under the new system, there is one head advisor and two assistants. Starting off the year's social activities was the Big Sis program, meeting its test in orienting the freshmen which comprised two-thirds of the dorm residents. Freshman stunt night was also held, coupled with Senior Night, newly instituted this year, and several mixers. Army ROTC and Pershing Rifles each chose a Williams woman for their queen. Rounding out the program were the guest professors who were invited to speak one night each month.

West Wilson

Their dance theme, "East Meets West," spoke for the coed interaction at Wilson this year in activities like the term party, mixers, all-University competition and Complex Board meetings. The hall also sponsored hayrides, children's parties, a fashion show, honorary nights, a surprise Halloween party, an intramural sports night and a tea honoring Mrs. Alfred E. Wilson, the person after whom the dorm was named.

South Wonders

Each of the dorm's 12 houses is named "Wonders" in a variety of languages from French to Filipino. Opened in 1963 as the final link of the South Campus Complex, Wonders contains the Kiva, which is used for classes and all-University functions. Demonstrating their superior talent last fall, Wonders won first place in Homecoming competition for their Johnson-Goldwater display, "Here's to Morrills." During the winter they hosted the Alumni Distinguished Scholarship convention.

East Yakeley

East Yakeley women sponsored many activities this year, including their traditional alumnae reception at Homecoming, a pizza dinner with Emmons Hall, the UNICEF drive and the adoption of a school-age Thai orphan. Guest speakers were frequently invited to dinner after which lively discussions were held. Notable among the dorm's specail dinners was last spring's surprise Swedish motif. This year's dorm party featured the innovation of "Senior Skit." This will become a tradition in addition to "Senior Day," held one Sunday each spring, honoring seniors with a special dinner and gifts. For Christmas, three needy families were given baskets filled with contributions from each room.

West Yakeley

West Yakeley sponsored an American Indian orphan this year and participated in the UNICEF drive at Thanksgiving. After winning third place for their Homecoming display, the women sought to defend their all-University championship titles in intramural field hockey, swimming and softball. Outstanding scholars were honored each term at a banquet. Also, occasional language and special interest tables in the dining room featured noted guests.

Abbot

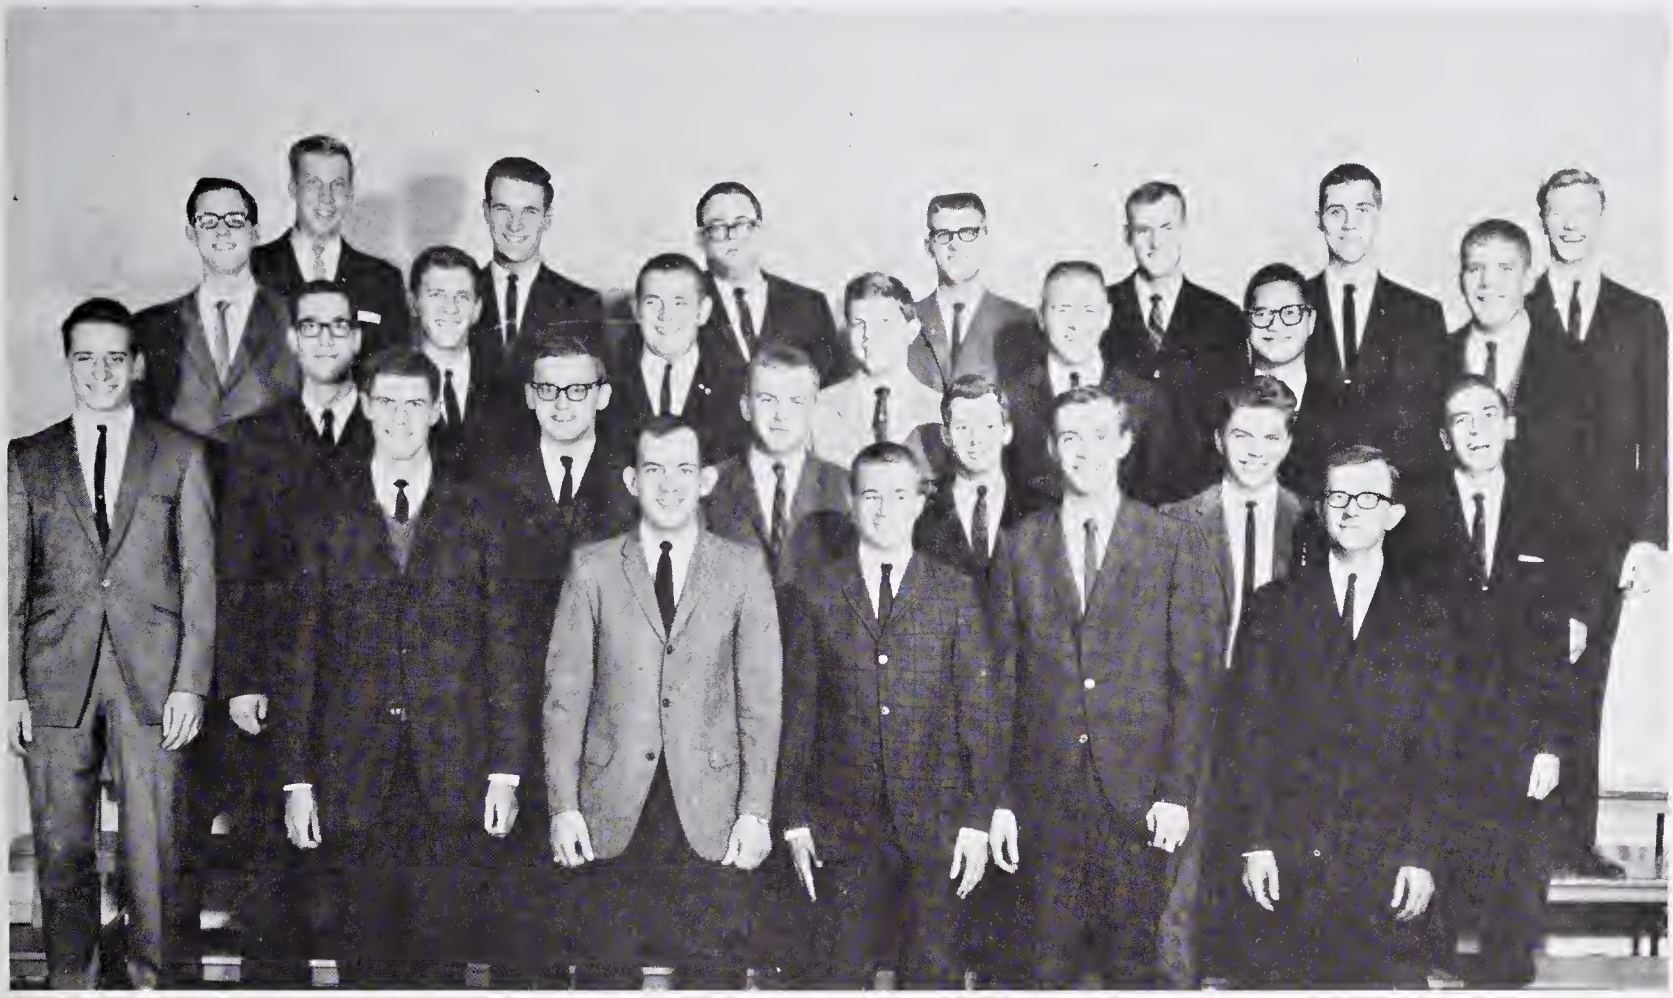

With the changing of Abbot back to a men's dorm last fall, the northeast complex was complete as a coed system with Snyder men and Mason and Phillips women. Abbot's pre-dance evening openhouse for women was a University first. Residents will remember the music of the S & H Green Stamps, a combo headed by students Smith and Hill. The men joined in the Mason-Abbot tradition of giving a Christmas party for the employees' children.

East Akers

Some of the Akers houses were named Akhilles; Aktion; Akavit, a Swedish drink; and Akrophobia, a fear of heights, which incidentally was on the first floor. Since the structuring of a central president's council was at once essential, East Akers men decentralized the usual dormitory government as much as possible. The dorm had 85 per cent upperclassmen and housed more graduate students than any other dorm except Owen.

ROW ONE: Sargent, Browne, Golden, Clark, Steiner; ROW TWO: Gregory, Higgs, Pedit, Boedecker, Foodym.

Such names as Aristocrat, Archduke, Arsenal, Arhouse, Arpent, Archaeopteryx, Ares, or Argonaut distinguish between the various houses in Armstrong. Through conserted effort, the dorm won second place in the 1964 spring Water Carnival, was first in the fall term blood drive and triumphed over Bailey and Bryan in an impromptu snow fight, costing a breakage fee of $80 to replace windows. One wing was used during fall and winter terms for Michigan State University short course students. The hall has its own stationery, and its crest appears in the main Brody dining hall. At Christmas, Armstrong sponsored a party with Gilchrist women for underprivileged children. In addition to their spring awards banquet where about 50 men were honored for scholarship and dorm participation, the dorm sponsored a Man-of-the-Month award and invited deserving men to join their pin club.

Bryan

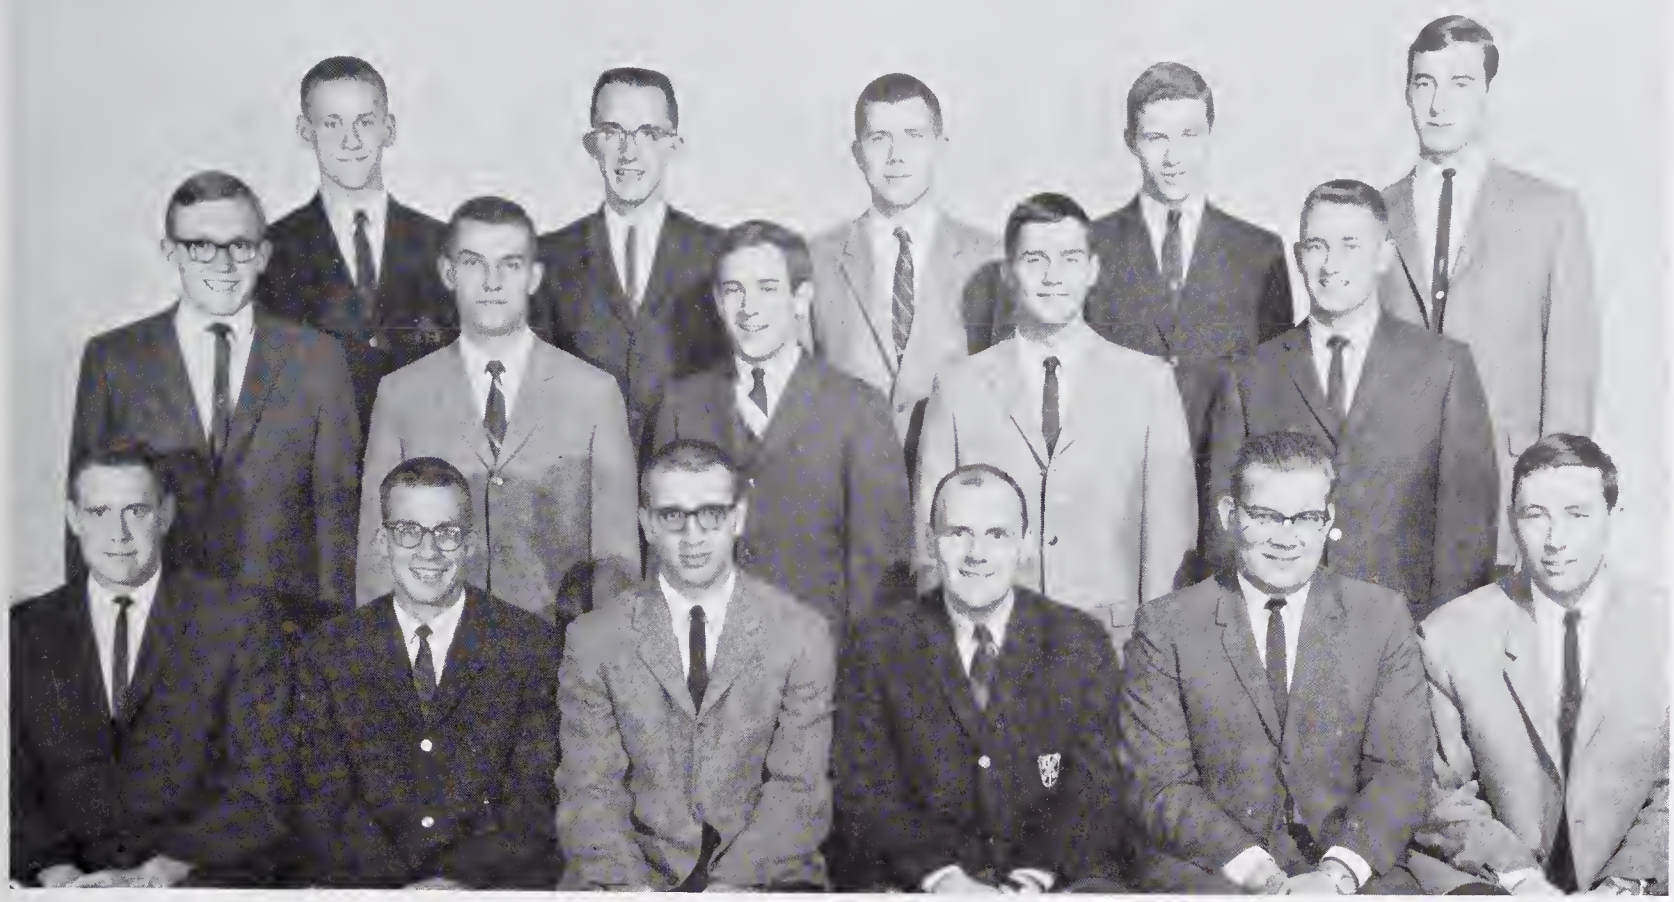

Spirit and Bryan go together as seen in their spirited race for the Spartan Spirit trophy the past two years. The center of activity for Bryan as for all the dorms in that complex is the Clark L. Brody building, scene of such social functions as their winter dinner-dance. Bryan men had Euchre tournaments and awards for man-of-the-month and of-the-year. Last year the men were unusually active in all-University functions.

South Case

The men of South Case sponsored several original student plays, a literary magazine and a student musical. This year they also placed third in coed Homecoming displays and sponsored three semi-formal dances. One of these, the Coronation Ball, a dinner dance, was held in celebration of its fourth anniversary. Under a new system, each house was responsible for a dorm project which divided the workload and encouraged resident interaction.

ROW ONE: Kennedy, Holmes, Burroughs, Maust, Baur, Hyntzinger, Flack; ROW TWO: Prochaska, Rutherford, Tint, Weiss, Kutz, Shaltry; ROW THREE: Henrie, Woodbridge, Andringa, Nelson, Spencer, Anderson, Lemmen.

Emmons

Emmons residents are recognized as top contenders in all sports among the Brody men. For the past several years Emmons has sponsored a South Korean orphan, Chow Way Sun, now 11 years old. Letters flow steadily back and forth with his foster brothers at Michigan State University. Precincts include such lofty titles as the Emperors, Eminence, Empowerment and Empyrean (the highest heaven). There is also Emu, named for a large, flightless, three-toed Australian bird.

West McDonel

McDonel was the scene of weekly mixers open to all university residents throughout the year, and its grill was popular among residents for study breaks, an occasional hootenanny, and to relax after a hard day of classes. The wing placed third in the "Witerature" Water Carnival and initiated a spring fine arts festival. McDonel's social program, including art and literature contests, spurred the residents on to avid participation.

West Fee

Among the houses of West Fee is that of Felloe, literally defined as the circular rim into which the outer ends of the spokes are inserted. Similarly, residents felt an esprit de corps this year, as spokes contributing to a common cause. The residency is composed primarily of freshmen in the College of Social Science. The men designed a unique Vice Presidents' Council for the purpose of evaluating problems and complaints among the 12 houses, thus channeling increased responsibilities to the vice presidents. A highlight of the year was West Fee's first annual queen contest. Candidates were feted at a formal candlelight dinner. At a gala for the five finalists in the large lecture room, the Lou Hilfman Trio played before a standing-room-only crowd. In conjunction with its Water Carnival, the men planned a variety show with talent from both Fee and outside groups.

ROW ONE: Motz, Knaute, Nelson, Floate, Tiel, Cleary; ROW TWO: Atkins, Swanson, Harlan, McCandless, Tiel, Boyes.

East Shaw

Established in 1948, Shaw is the oldest existing dormitory exclusively for men. East and West Shaw sponsored the all-University Canoe Race, the new spring powder-puff softball competition, and weekly dances held in their lower lounge. It placed third in Homecoming displays, second in the fall blood drive and sponsored an ice skating race and a computer dance. It also had block attendance at sports and Civic Center events.

Snyder

Snyder started off its second year as a men's dorm by winning the fall Turkey Trot for the second time. They earned second place scholastic honors among men's residences for 1964. Last spring they topped competitors in tennis, sent a softball team to the playoffs and placed first in the Water Carnival with Phillips. Snyder was the first dorm to install a weight room. The former "Snyder Bulletin," now the "Complex Bridge," was the first complex newspaper on campus.

ROW ONE: Bernstein, Pletcher, Terry, Lorenz, Pletcher, Custer: ROW TWO: Schmid, Jackson, Rosenstein, Olson, Dalby; ROW THREE: Tabaczuk, Moreton, Lamie, Bernard, Elliott.

East Wilson

In 1962, Wilson became the second dorm on South Campus, complete with an auditorium and a library of 7,000 volumes. This year the dorm sponsored a round robin debating tournament where the winning house contested the staff advisors. Seminar programs included guests who spoke in the lounges, and frequent luncheons were planned each term. Spring found Wilson men joining 3,500 South Campus sun-bathers on their "soccer field" beach.

North Wonders

As a result of a resident suggestion program this year, North Wonders men added two basement coffee machines, purchased tools and installed a weight room. They also won the all-sport intramural trophy for 1963-64 and placed first for its Homecoming display last fall. Their social calendar was marked by Sunday night record hops, a winter bundle party, house ice cream socials and pizza parties. The men worked on last year's South Campus Weekend.

Individual maturity is encouraged in

GREEK UNITS

Since 1872 the fraternity man and sorority woman have, with varying degrees of impact, claimed their positions in the campus strata. Their coat of arms is a cherished gem-studded pin, symbolizing secret tradition and ritual. Offering brotherhood and loyalty in the face of impersonal, six-digit student numbers, the Greeks fight against a growing derogatory image of conformist, status-worshipper, party-hound and continual bill-payer. Though membership is by invitation only, the 35 fraternity and 22 sorority chapters of national charter have now become desegregated. In houses of architecture ranging from a Southern colonial mansion to a modern ski lodge, the members are bound by regular University residence regulations. Emphasis is placed on scholarship, community service, leadership, athletics and social life with an abundance of competitive and cooperative efforts coordinated by the governing Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils. However, general interest and participation in the Greek way of life seems to be waning as valid enticement relies more upon ideals, the traditional and the historical record than upon present and future accomplishments and advantages.

Sororities and Fraternities: Championing a Unique Way of Life

Sororities and fraternities offer a unique way of life to the student. The advantages they offer are many — brotherhood and loyal friendship, personality development, extra-curricular activities, athletics, a home away from home. Involving about 10 per cent of the student body, the Greeks claim a higher scholastic average than the general University men's and women's averages. Members are prominent in campus organizations and activities and place an emphasis on service and academics.

Brotherhood and Cooperation Are Epitomized in the Houses

Membership in a sorority or fraternity remains selective. Both the prospective member and the different chapters express preferences, with the result not always coinciding. Recent letters to the newspaper editor have charged racial discrimination. However, it should be noted that at the 1963 National Interfraternity Council Conference, a move striking all discriminatory clauses from the fraternity charters was adopted. All national fraternities including all chapters on this campus are members of this group. A number of houses are integrated, but both sororities and fraternities reserve the right to choose those with whom they will pledge brotherhood.

Donkeys are not the most efficient means of maneuvering on the basketball court.

Enthusiasm Becomes a Part of Participation

Rush is the period of time when fraternities and sororities may select their new members. It is handled by the Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils. Michigan State uses the deferred rush system whereby a student must be at least a second term freshman and have the required 2.2 grade average. Rushees attend a series of parties and smokers which are initially open to all interested, but later are by invitation only. Their purpose is to allow both the rushee and the chapter to become well enough acquainted with each other to formulate an acceptance or rejection decision. At the close of this hectic process, the accepted rushee becomes a pledge and enters the traditional initiation stage prior to becoming active.

To win the tricycle race, bikes must be in top condition.

Offering Experience in Leadership, Scholarship, Service and the Social Graces

Although this stage is no longer entirely synonymous with hazing, many chapters do at times take advantage of the lower pledge status. Supervised study, social activities, Saturday work sessions and learning the traditions and organization of the group all become an integral part of the rushee's time. Successfully completing these requirements, the pledge must have attained the required all-University average plus a 2.2 average the term of pledging before he is eligible for active status.

Fun and Happy Memories Exist With the Greeks

One of the chief criticisms of the Greek life is the cost. Differing with the chapter, pledge fees for fraternities range from $10 to $42, averaging about $25. Social fees vary from no charge to $85. The description of sorority costs as found in the rush booklet is a bit more ominous. "When a girl is pledged, she pays a pledge fee averaging $25. Monthly dues for pledges are approximately $12. At initiation time there is a fee of approximately $65. Active members pay about $14 dues per month. Occasionally social 'extras' or national dues boost this slightly . . . . In most groups, each member is required to contribute to a house fund.

Greek Week: An Expression of Greek Unity

Highlighting the activity calendar is Greek Week when the sororities and fraternities join for a series of celebrations and competitions in a festive atmosphere. With strains of Olympia, the annual event is kicked off with a torch run between the fraternity houses, followed by a speech at the Union. This year Margaret Allen, a Kappa Alpha Theta senior, and Bruce Osterink, a senior member of Delta Tau Delta, were presented the Outstanding Senior Greek Awards. Hilarity runs high in the Ugliest Greek contest, with the proceeds benefitting the Lansing Council for Exceptional Children. While sororities vie for the Sigma Alpha Mu Tricycle Race trophies, their male counterparts compete in the IM fraternity track meet.

Weekend events during Greek Week begin with the Sigma Chi Street Dance. On Saturday, sororities and fraternities pair up for a local community project entertaining area underprivileged children. A fair rival for any Roman banquet is the Greek Feast, featuring the Gateway Trio. The final day includes the Greek Sing and the Beta jazz session on the Cedar. Points are awarded to the various chapters during the week, and the highest accumulation will bring the Participation Trophy.

My bike, my bike; a kingdom for my bike.

With the glamour of innumerable social opportunities and the sparkle of youthful gaiety, the Greek life holds an aura of tempting enchantment. Viewed from the harsher light of finances and individuality, it seems less advantageous. Each student armed with his particular set of values, investigations and possible misconceptions, makes for himself the decision of alignment. However, for those who are active members of a sorority or a fraternity, there is a way of life not to be found in the dormitory environment.

A picture-filled scrapbook provides many memories for Alpha Chi's.

Alpha Chi Omega

A breathless Alpha Chi Omega reported that their new house at the end of M.A.C. was "well worth waiting for." The A Chi O's gave a carnation each month to the girl who had done the most for the chapter during that period. With members of Phi Kappa Phi, Tower Guard, Mortar Board and Union Board and a WIC president in their midst, this selection proved difficult. An A Chi O also received the coveted Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. Stressing high scholarship, the pledge with the highest grades received a bracelet, while the active with the highest grades was presented a diamond for her pin.

Alpha Delta Pi

A special sun deck on the roof of their new house, opened in January, 1964, makes sunbathing now possible for 50 girls. One of the newest sororities on campus, ADPi was organized in 1957. Two ADPi's were in the winners' circle, winning the sorority greased pig contest in the Block and Bridle Horse Show, last year. They walked away with second place honors in "Witerature," the 1964 Water Carnival. Each week a stuffed "Snoopy" is awarded to the girl who was most outstanding in activities — then Snoopy is signed and passed on. The ADPi's sponsor a foster child from Korea for their philanthropic project.

Alpha Epsilon Phi

Enthused with plans for the coming year, the women of Alpha Epsilon Phi gathered at a sister's lakeside cabin for their annual fall retreat before the start of classes. Last year the sorority was awarded the Greek Week award for the highest number of participation points, and this year's activity calendar was to be equally as full. Service ranks high for the A E Phi's who co-sponsored and contributed to the winter term bloom drive. Land for a new house has been purchased at the corner of Charles and Linden Streets, and ideas for construction are now being considered. To honor contributions made by certain individuals within the group, awards are presented each year to the outstanding pledge and the outstanding senior.

The Alpha Gam's had language tables during dinner to increase language fluency — if you didn't speak another language, you didn't talk. The Alpha Gam's also displayed superior talent on wheels, winning second place in the Sigma Alpha Mu Tricycle Race. The money from their annual car wash was given to the fund for brain damaged children. The outstanding junior chosen by the sorority received a pin with a diamond. Organized in 1921, Alpha Gamma Delta was the first sorority on campus.

Alpha Kappa's won the Jr. 500 three times and were awarded two plaques for performances in the spring term blood drives of 1962 and 1963. They also won the Scholarship Improvement Trophy for spring term 1964. Alpha Omicron Pi

Α Ο Π

A little November snow didn't keep the Alpha Omicron Pi's from their annual Double Dribble Football Game with the Pi Kappa Phi's, though they lost this year's game 6 to 12. However, the AOPI's did make the winners' circle in other events, taking a blue ribbon in the Block and Bridle Horse Show and placing in both the intramural tennis and table tennis competition. Three members were chosen among the 50 Outstanding Senior Women. The sorority also boasts members in Phi Kappa Phi, Circle Honorary and Green Splash. They had 100 per cent participation in the Red Cross Blood Drive last spring.

Alpha Phi

Alpha Phi boasted members in Mortar Board, J-Council, A.W.S., Senior Council and the Student Education Corps. Miss MSU and the second vice president of A.W.S. were also Alpha Phi's. Active in campus activities, they took second place on their Homecoming display. They performed services to the community through their work with Ingham County Hospital. Organized on campus in 1922, their house was known to the 1,800 rushees fall term as "the house with the winding staircase."

Alpha Xi Delta

ΑΞΔ

The Alpha Xi Delta's have a "member" in Lebanon — an orphan girl named Maggie — whom they support with funds from a car wash. Each week the "boner," a bear bone, was awarded to the member who committed the biggest blunder of the week. Awards on the "plus" side this year were a trophy given the year's best scholar and a diamond placed in the pin of the outstanding active. The Alpha Xi's had a mother-daughter slumber party this spring and received second in the sorority sing for the second consecutive year. Awards are given at a scholarship dessert held each term for the best scholars and for the ones who have shown the greatest improvement.

Natural sharing of memories brings the Alpha Xi women closer together.

Chi Omega

The Chi Omega's took needles in hand at Christmas time to make doll dresses for underprivileged children. In another service project, they were recognized for 100 per cent participation in the Community Chest Drive. The Chi O's moved up from third place to the number two spot for their Homecoming display. Tradition at the Chi O house dictated that girls who were not in the house to celebrate their birthdays had to be appeased by hot dogs and dime store gifts at a spring "Un-birthday Party."

At their scholarship dinners each term, the girls who received 3.5 and over got banana splits, 3.0 to 3.5 averages earned hot fudge sundaes and those with below 3.0 got a plain dish of vanilla ice cream. The Tri Delt's gave scholarships to two University coeds. They won first in Water Carnival for the past two years and in the Junior 500 last year. They placed fourth in the Sigma Alpha Mu Tricycle Race. The Tri Delt dining room took on the air of foreign countries twice a term as members spoke the language and ate the food of the country represented. Tri Delt had members in Tower Guard and Alpha Lambda Delta.

Delta Gamma

Delta Gamma was an active sorority both in the classroom and on the football field. The DG's defeated the Gamma Phi Beta's in the annual Powder Puff Bowl for the second consecutive year and won the trophy for the best Homecoming display. With four girls in Mortar Board, two in Tower Guard and the Greek with the highest grade point average, they won the University's scholarship trophy with ease. They also read to the blind students for their service project.

Delta Zeta

Δ Z

Delta Zeta had their service project just down the street from their house — they tutored the deaf at the Michigan Association for Better Hearing on Abbott Road. The DZ's were on the ball, winning the all-University bowling championship and placing second in sorority basketball. They also had part in what they call "Triad" because it involves them and two different fraternities each year. A pink rose, the sorority flower, was presented to the active who had done the most for the chapter each week, and the outstanding pledge in each pledge class was awarded a bracelet.

Studying, writing letters and grooming — all a part of every DZ's day.

Gamma Phi Beta

Although beaten by Delta Gamma in the Powder Puff Bowl, Gamma Phi Beta came up victorious in the Greek division of the College Bowl last spring. The Gamma Phi's outdistanced all other sororities to win the Sigma Alpha Mu Tricycle Race. They also won second place in the Junior 500. Homecoming took on added significance for the Gamma Phi's when one of their members was chosen 1964 Homecoming Queen and their display was awarded second prize. The editor of the Wolverine and the Vet's Club Queen are also Gamma Phi's.

Kappa Alpha Theta

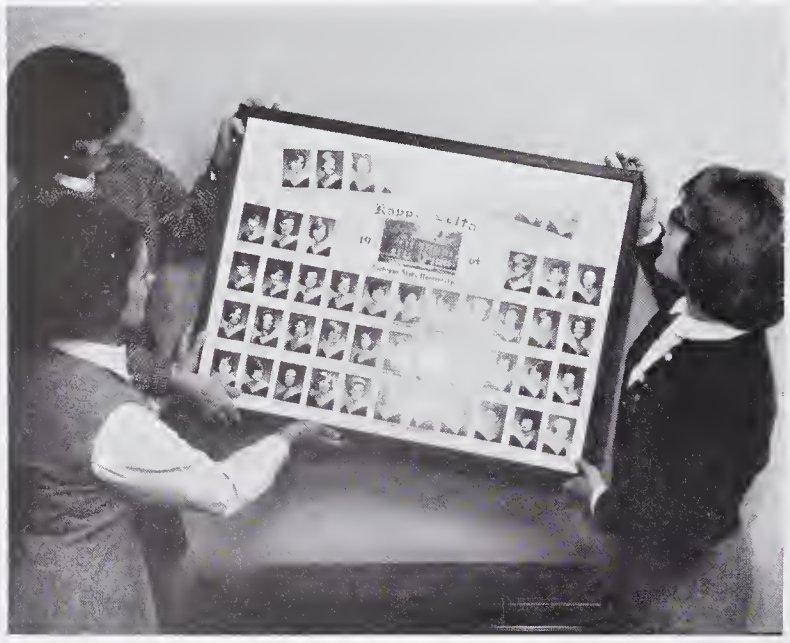

ΚΑΘ

The Theta's will undoubtedly remember this year as the date their new addition to the house united all 56 members under one roof. The sorority was tops on campus scholastically and it's no wonder with a sorority sister, designated as the top woman scientist on campus, to tutor them. They set aside a night once a month for a dinner, hosting a faculty member, which encouraged spirited discussions among the girls. The Theta's also found time to lay aside their books long enough to capture the blooperball championship and place third in Water Carnival.

They're not secretaries taking a coffee break but Theta sisters taking a study break.

A new composite reflects the sisterhood found among the Kappa Delta women.

Kappa Delta

The atmosphere at Kappa Delta varied considerably — from the formality of the weekly candlelight dinner, to the slaphappy occurrences at "rowdy night" each Friday when the girls donned curler caps and a combination of plaids and stripes. There were two factions in the KD house — bridge advocates and pinochle fans. A political faction was represented when the KD's invited a representative of the Republic State Central Committee to speak. Dad's Day was a double treat as fathers watched the Spartans tromp Purdue and their daughters pick up the tabs for their dinners at Tarpoff's. The sorority also placed a diamond in the pin of the pledge with the highest grade point average and awarded a paddle to the pledge showing the most improvement. Two nights a term the KD's read to the children at the Michigan School for the Blind.

Kappa Kappa Gamma

Κ Κ Γ

The Kappa Kappa Gamma's were the sorority swim champs; they took the volleyball championship, too. The Kappa's strove for scholarship by presenting a scholarship improvement paddle and putting a diamond in the pin of the pledge attaining the highest grade point average. They visited the children at the Michigan School for the Blind and read to blind students to meet their commitment to worthwhile community service. Kappa's also took part in Greek Sing, Water Carnival, I.M. sports and the all-University Canoe Race.

Phi Mu

Phi Mu celebrated its 10th anniversary on campus this year by dedicating a new addition to its present chapter house. Nationally, Phi Mu is one of the sponsors of "Project Hope," the touring medical ship. Letters flowed freely from East Lansing to Arizona, as news was exchanged with the Phi Mu's absent high school "sister," an Arizona Indian girl. The Phi Mu's gave pledge and activities awards, and Phi Mu mugs were presented to the best Big and Little Sister team. They also won the Panhellenic Scholarship Improvement Award last spring term.

Pi Beta Phi

ΠΒΦ

An Appalachian settlement school in Gatlinburg, Tenn., is operated year around by funds donated by Pi Beta Phi. Locally, the Pi Phi's adopted an underprivileged family. After perfecting their singing at the Christmas Tree Lighting ceremony in front of the Union, the Pi Phi's went on to win Greek Sing. Since Pi Beta Phi and Kappa Kappa Gamma were both founded at the same Illinois college at the same time, they commemorate this by combining their winter term parties into "Monmouth Duo." A Pi Phi was also a member of the 1964 Homecoming Court.

Sigma Delta Tau

Conceived by the national officers in Evanston, Ill., seven years ago, Sigma Delta Tau was born at MSU Nov. 1, 1964, when it received its charter. As the newest sorority on campus, the SDT's started a reputation as an active group by participating in Water Carnival, Greek Sing, volleyball and the canoe race. The SDT's are well on their way to establishing a tradition of service. They read to the blind and had an "SDT Work Week" during which they worked for fraternities, baby sat and did odd jobs. They gave the proceeds to charity. Since they have no house yet, the SDT's braved the cold, trudging to the Union for meetings and rush.

Sigma Kappa

ΣK

In the spirit of election year, three Sigma Kappa's met their national sorority sister, Margaret Chase Smith, at the National Convention. They entertained their fathers at a football game and dinner and their mothers at a spring luncheon. They visited with patients at the Ingham County Rehabilitation Center at least once a month and on all holidays. Sigma Kappa's encouraged high scholarship by awarding bracelets for grade point improvement at scholarship dinners each term. Sigma Kappa's were active on Union Board, A.U.S.G., Water Carnival and Career Carnival committees. They participated in I.M. sports, the Sigma Alpha Mu Tricycle Race and College Bowl. They also have members in Tower Guard, Alpha Lambda Delta and Mortar Board.

Zeta Tau Alpha

The Zeta Tau Alpha's donned white busboy jackets and mustaches to serve their usual busboys dog biscuits at the annual turnabout dinner after which they presented the young men with Christmas presents. A German shepherd was an after dinner guest of the ZTA's in addition to his master, a corporal in the State Police Training Department. An active group, the ZTA's won the fall term Spartan Spirit trophy. The ZTA's retired the activities paddle given weekly to the most active girl in the house because they couldn't squeeze another name on it. Last year the ZTA's won the sorority basketball intramurals and received first place on their Homecoming display. Their pledges also adopted a "grandmother" at a local nursing home. Nationally, Zeta Tau Alpha works with the Cerebral Palsy Division of the Society for Crippled Children.

Alpha Gamma Rho

ΑΓΡ

Whether deciphering the maze of buttons on the intercom system, chasing ping pong balls in the "wreck" room, studying in the house library or listening to the accumulation of snores in the dormer, the men of Alpha Gamma Rho enjoyed their new house on Evergreen this year. A social-professional fraternity, members are drawn from the College of Agriculture and related fields. Their recent distinctions are quite diversified: softball block championship, second place in fraternity homecoming display and third consecutive first place in the MSU flower show. Each year the chapter awards the Alpha Gamma Rho Scholarship Award to the campus fraternity with the highest scholastic average for the year and an award to the outstanding senior Greek in the College of Agriculture.

Alpha Tau Omega

The "animals" of Alpha Tau Omega are well supplied with varsity team members. The group won second places in IM fraternity track and football and Junior 500 and took three first places in the intramural wrestling match. Scholastically, the chapter has increased its ratings this year, and as a service project they worked on muscular dystrophy drives. Plans were made well in advance for "Rad Day", the annual all-day picnic held during spring quarter. Awards given by the group include the Bob Jarvis award for the senior instilling the most spirit, the Bill Collins award for scholarship, the outstanding pledge award and the "Jox" award for the outstanding athlete.

Fall term found the men of Beta Theta Pi in their new "ski lodge" house on East Grand River. Two decks overlook the Red Cedar, thus providing the members with their nickname, the "Riverrats." After working on a "Can the Wildcats" Homecoming float, the Beta's awoke to find their creation destroyed by wind. In January, a dinner-dance marked their 15th anniversary. Beta Theta Pi is symbolized by the dragon, "lord of the beasts of the world."

Delta Chi

Spring term Delta Chi placed second in IFC scholastic ratings, won third in Greek Sing and captured the dubious honor of having the Ugliest Greek on campus. A chuck-wagon buffet was given this January by the chapter in honor of all the sorority presidents. Following tradition, brothers pinned during the winter were thrown into snow-banks, while those yielding to spring's amorous temptations were hoisted on a flagpole, hosed down and lowered only by their pinmates.

Delta Tau Delta

ΔΤΔ

The oldest fraternity on campus, Delta Tau Delta, was established in 1872, and it is known for its group participation in University activities. Members hold various student government positions and participate in varsity sports. Mr. MSU and the backstroke silver medal winner from the Tokyo Olympics were both Delts. Recent trophies include first place for the Water Carnival floats, first for intermural football, second for fraternity all-sports and first for the national Delta Tau Delta scholarship trophy. Each Christmas the group participates in a musical, "Lighting of the Tree."

Farmhouse

This fall the MSU chapter hosted the National Farm House Conclave at the Kellogg Center. Rising to the challenges and imperatives of the future, they chose as the theme, "Farm House Faces 1984." A Farm House Hyde Park has been established for a wider exchange of ideas, and brothers who have traveled to Nepal, Thailand, Mexico and other lands under Peace Corps or International Farm Youth Exchange programs have joined with foreign students living in the house to present varying viewpoints. The chapter has an extensive alumni resource with over 50 faculty members and 70 area alumni, including the national fraternity president, Dr. Russell Kleis, of the College of Education. With a grade point average of 2.77, they captured the IFC scholarship trophy for the 15th consecutive term. They placed second in athletics in IM fraternity softball and are closely associated with the College of Agriculture.

Lambda Chi Alpha

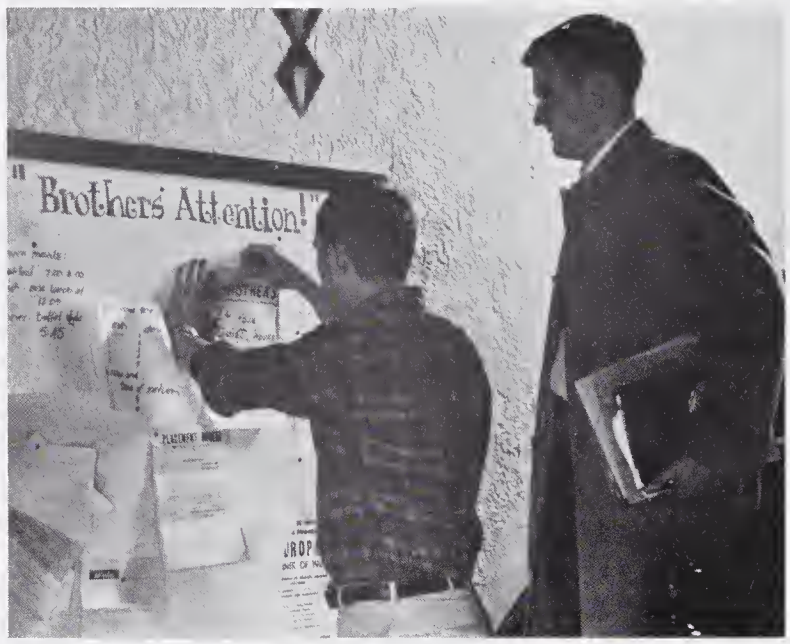

ΛΧΑ

A member of the MSU fraternity system since 1922, Lambda Chi Alpha has always played a key role in Greek activities. Best known for their sponsorship of the Junior 500, now in its 18th year, they are also responsible for originating Block S and Greek Feast. Upon learning in December that the wife of an alumnus was stricken with leukemia, the men of Lambda Chi interrupted finals study to generously donate blood. In honor of their crescent badge, the Crescent Queen and her court are selected annually. Thor, the Laborador retriever mascot, has romped through the house for five years which has recently been remodeled in the style of an old English tavern.

Phi Delta Theta

Organized in 1873, Phi Delta Theta is the longest standing fraternity on campus. The men were active in University events and placed first in the winter term blood drive. Each year they participate in the national Phi Delt community service day. With spring came the annual Sadie Hawkins Day. Four sororities and three other fraternities were invited to participate in the Dogpatch tradition in which the women must catch their dates for the festivities in a free-for-all chase. The familiar Phi Delt pin is a sword through a shield symbolizing protection.

Phi Kappa Psi

Φ K Ψ

Fall 1964 marked the 10th anniversary of Phi Kappa Psi at Michigan State. A November celebration began with breakfast and a special speaker at Walnut Hills Country Club. Victory at the Purdue game and a formal dinner-dance at Dines completed the anniversary festivities. One of the smaller chapters on campus, the group emphasizes a fellowship bound by the black and gold of the pin. Sustaining a tradition, this year's water carnival script is being written by a Phi Psi. Awards include the outstanding alumnus award given at the February Founders' Day celebration and the Summerfield Scholarship award given by the national association to the outstanding man of the chapter.

Laughter and fun are vital ingredients for a successful homecoming float.

Phi Kappa Sigma

Combining the advantages of a large house in management and finances with the friendship and brotherhood of a small one, the men of Phi Kappa Sigma have formed a closely-knit group active in campus functions. Maintaining tradition, the chapter is rated scholastically among the top five fraternities, won the IFC outstanding fraternity Greek award and took first place in Greek Sing. From the skull-and-crossbones on the pin come the nickname of the "skulls." At Christmas some of the officers of the chapter attended a leadership conference at the Illinois Institute of Technology sponsored by the national organization. Emphasizing academics, the Howard Scholarship Award, given by the national chapter, was presented to an MSU member. Another Phi Kap received the Hutchinson Key, given by the alumni for the best scholarship within the chapter.

Phi Kappa Tau

ΦKT

The men of Phi Kappa Tau, active in campus functions and interested in the university community, undertook a unique campaign to strengthen the Greek unity on campus. By increasing publicity and public relations for Greek Week and other projects they hoped to increase the understanding and appreciation of the values of the Greek system within the student body, faculty and administration. In addition, they sought to strengthen and reinforce the association of the fraternities and sororities at MSU. Employing apartment-style living, this group has firmly established close fellowship and cooperation in daily living within their home.

Phi Sigma Kappa

Active in many campus activities, the Phi Sigma Kappa's sponsored a Gravedigger Ball capturing the Halloween spirit with Western theme and costume. They had an "Irma La Douce" party with a live turkey awarded to the best dressed Irma. In the spring the brothers participated in the annual beach party given for all the Phi Sig chapters in the State. This year also brought the second annual Toilet Bowl against the Delta Chi's, a basketball game ending with victory and loss celebrations. The brother making the worst "bad scene" received the T.B. Memorial award. Amid all the fun and games, this group still manages to stay within the top six fraternities scholastically.

Pi Kappa Phi

Π K Φ

The brothers of Pi Kappa Phi have humorous nicknames and they can often be found gathered by the fireplace of their redwood-paneled living room trying to remember favorite lyrics. Honoring the fraternity flower, the red rose, the Pi Kapp's annually crown their Rose Queen at the winter term party. The national organization has provided the opportunity for trips to a leadership conference at Charleston, S.C., home of the first chapter, and the national convention planned for the summer of '66 in Nassau. One of two Merit Citation Awards was recently presented by the national to Shorty Clifford, an original founder of this chapter. The member living longest in the house is Hangover, the mascot dog. The men of Pi Kappa Phi cherish the scroll and diamond of their pin.

Pledge duties include Saturday house cleaning chores.

The house scrapbook needs constant care for an accurate record of Psi U events.

Psi Upsilon

Originally organized locally as the Hesperian Literary Society in 1889, Psi Upsilon actively participated in campus affairs. Emphasizing well-rounded individuals, some of the men are officers in IFC and AUSG, members of the Honors College and participants in varsity athletics. The group was consistently outstanding in swimming and won second place in block football. Until a prize for simplicity is created in Homecoming display competition, the Psi U's will probably never win. Their elaborate display each year is a huge sign carefully erected on their front lawn proclaiming a simple "Rah!"

Sigma Alpha Mu

Σ A M

Sigma Alpha Mu has grown to over an 80-man house and has become an integral part of campus life. The current IFC president is a former president of this fraternity housed in the old Stirm estate on the Red Cedar. The adjacent lot has been landscaped into an enchanting oriental rock garden, complete with a waterfall, pool, footbridges and wishing well. Greek Week would be incomplete without the high hilarity of the "Sammy" sponsored sorority tricycle races. Originally founded by eight men, the fraternity pin is an octagon symbolizing eight fraternity ideals. The lucky girls wearing this pin are honored each spring with a torchlight serenade. Their less fortunate pinmates, however, are tossed into the river.

Sigma Chi

Organized on campus in 1942, Sigma Chi has been continuously accumulating a variety of sports trophies. This year's collection includes runner-up awards in IM fraternity football and badminton and first-place plaques in IM fraternity bowling. They set up and decorated the Christmas trees along Grand River, crowned the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi at a formal dinner-dance and sponsored the Greek Week street dance.

Sigma Nu

Painting, retiling and carpeting, the men of Sigma Nu completed renovation of their house in time for the start of fall quarter. Participating in campus activities, the chapter boasts athletic as well as scholastic and organizational honors. Two All-Sports trophies have been retired by the group, a feat which requires winning the all-sports championship four consecutive times. Each year, the first snow fall is marked by the Snow Bowl, a midnight football game. Christmas brought a spirited party with a familiar face behind Santa's whiskers and an exchange of humorous gifts. Foxey, the mascot kitten, delights in the Greek Feast held in the back yard at the climax of Greek Week.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

The most loyal football fan, "Sparty," the giant Spartan head, was escorted to away games this year by Sigma Phi Epsilon. The Sig Ep's were awarded the U.G. Duboch Scroll and the Clifford B. Scott Scholarship Key by the national fraternity and the IFC award for the most scholastic improvement among fraternities on campus. Having placed in every float-building function for the past several years, they won third in Water Carnival and second in Homecoming last year. This fall the Spartan Spirit award was added to their trophy case. Stormy, their Siberian husky mascot, faithfully guarded the new red and white Sig Ep bus and the queen chosen at the annual February Sweetheart Ball.

Theta Chi

In addition to winning first place in this year's Homecoming displays, Theta Chi also claimed a first rate College Bowl team in the Greek division. They won third in IFC swimming and first in tennis. For their annual Bowery Ball, the men obtained evening attire from the Salvation Army store. However, their Christmas party for underprivileged children found them more conventionally dressed.

Theta Delta Chi

Theta Delta Chi received its charter in April of 1964. During Homecoming, the men of Theta Delta Chi sponsored an all-night fire watch, initiated when members proved their fire-fighting abilities in extinguishing a float enflamed by high school vandals some years ago. The graduate who has contributed the most to the house is presented the Outstanding Senior Award, and the fraternity boasts membership in J-Council, Tri Beta, Winged Spartans, the marching band, Bell Ringers and Scabbard and Blade. They also won second place in last spring's blood drive.

Triangle

The members of Triangle fraternity live up to their symbol by majoring in engineering or science. Many nights spent braving the cold with hammers and nails brought them the third place Homecoming display award. The highlight of the spring quarter was the annual Sweetheart Swirl where the chapter sweetheart was crowned. The Purple Shaft Award — a colorful trophy — went to the room with the lowest grade point average each term.

Zeta Beta Tau

Most memorable of the year's events for Zeta Beta Tau was the disastrous fire which destroyed their house on Grove Street. Members managed to escape the flames with a few major injuries, but their trophies representing first in fraternity softball; third in all-University Sports; first in block paddleball, badminton, football and pingpong; and runner-up in basketball, handball and bowling were lost. Awaiting the completion of the new house scheduled for occupancy next fall, ZBT's have been given administrative sanction to reside in unsupervised housing. Other fraternities and sororities flooded the chapter with invitations to meals and offers of housing and clothing. With the largest national alumni association and a chapter of accomplished individuals, Zeta Beta Tau has managed to continue to function effectively as an active group.

Delta Upsilon

Every Spartan point on the football scoreboard is heralded by "Big Bill," the Delta Upsilon bell. Active in campus functions and sports, the DU's were block basketball champs. Not neglecting academics, they were awarded a scholarship improvement award by the national fraternity. They also participated in a Muscular Dystrophy Drive. The chapter was well prepared for winter blizzards with their St. Bernard mascot, Duchess III.

Kappa Alpha Psi

Proud of their name, the Kappa Alpha Psi's annually crown a Kappa queen at their annual coronation ball. The group also boasts outstanding individuals in varsity athletics, Honors College, the marching band, the chess club and debate squad. In addition to active participation in campus activities, the fraternity sponsored a blind student at the Michigan School for the Blind.

Each spring parties are given for Cuban refugees and children afflicted with cerebral palsy. Fiji's as well known for their traditional Purple Garter Ball. Each girl was given a purple garter by her escort. The Fiji Island party found them all bedecked in cannibalistic grass skirts and armed with spears.

Phi Sigma Delta won the IFC community service trophy and the national Phi Sigma Delta service award. They initiated the "Meals on Wheels" program at Sparrow Hospital which delivers meals to invalids at home. The men hope to be moved into their new house by the end of the year. Sigma Alpha Epsilon

A St. Bernard mascot named Brandy of Bogue, III is the claim to distinction for the men of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Under vigorous training they won the fraternity IM swimming championship for the sixth consecutive year and the All-Sports Trophy for 1964. Each pledge has to memorize an essay, "The True Gentleman." Fulfilling the requirements of the essay, the SAE members presented a rose to each sorority pledge. These "Little Sisters of Minerva" attempt to create an understanding of the fraternity system among campus women.

Phi Mu Alpha

The Sinfonians of Phi Mu Alpha, the national music fraternity, promote campus activities by an annual jazz concert; participation in bands, ensembles and choruses; and sponsorship of the American Composers Concert. The members caroled department faculty at Christmas and made a guest appearance at Greek Sing. The Gamma Epsilon chapter of Michigan State was the first of 218 nationally recognized chapters to purchase a house.

Alpha Kappa Psi

The Gamma Mu chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, the largest national professional fraternity, is a closely-knit group of business majors. Aptly called a "proving ground for future businessmen," membership affords many advantages — closer contacts with business college faculty; outstanding guest speakers prominent in the field, such as A. J. Miller, president of Ford Motor Co.; area field trips; and a listing of personal credentials for graduating seniors in a magazine subscribed to by over 4,000 national corporations. Experience in management is promoted by

COOPERATIVES

The men of the eight cooperatives at Michigan State University experience the congeniality of a small group without the binding affiliation of the Greek system or the obscurity often found in the large dormitory complex. While each of the men are dedicated to the practical business of getting through school as cheaply as possible, they are frequently found donned with aprons, cooking their own meals, and pushing dust-mops to eliminate the cost of a maid. Through such measures, approximately $100 per term is saved than would ordinarily be possible in other living units.

Unlike other residences, each cooperative is an autonomous body which has no affiliation with any national organization. In most instances, the house is owned by a corporation where every member is a shareholder. Pride in ownership is expressed each fall when the members return to school early to fix the lawn and make necessary repairs on the house.

Now what is wrong?

"But sir, I'm hungry!"

What would the world do without telephones?

Howland House: The place of residence for 400 G.D.I.'s.

More sunworshippers!

The men of the cooperatives are independent and are proud of that fact. Although they owe no formal allegiance to their cooperative, individual service is freely extended to assure survival of the group. The co-op philosophy is epitomized by the sign in front of Howland House which says: "Built and paid for by 400 hard-working G.D.I.'s." Although classified as approved housing, the cooperatives have no housemothers and make their own rules without Administrative interference. Consistent with this approach, the Cooperative Council, composed of representatives from each co-op, was formed to coordinate activities rather than to regulate unit policies.

A Combination of Work and Play

The ever-present necessity for studying holds many in its grasp.

Dorms are not the only places which are crowded.

Cheap haircuts have their good points . . .

The cooperative system adds depth to University living through its diversity of membership. Drawn from every race, creed and field of study and consisting of both graduates and undergraduates, membership provides an atmosphere conducive to understanding and fellowship. From the stack of dirty dishes left after the Sunday dinners, to the giggling all-male chorus line at the spring term-party, co-ops combine work and play in a way that adds a new dimension to college living.

Elsworth House

The way to a Cook-of-the-Year plaque was through the appreciative stomachs of 40 Elsworth House residents. In addition, State's second oldest co-operative, Elsworth, was tops scholastically of all men's undergraduate living units for 26 terms in the past. They added the University All-Sports and volleyball championship trophies to their already overcrowded trophy case last year. Social activities included a beatnik party and their annual term party.

Hedrick House

Every member of Hedrick House, past and present, is still a part owner of the house. Alumni are kept informed by "Wind Through the Pines," a newsletter edited in the house. The oldest co-operative at MSU, Hedrick House was founded to facilitate economical living while attending school. Although approved housing, the men of Hedrick House have no housemother. This closely knit group of 31 works about four hours a week.

Motts House

The 17 men of Motts House ate their fill of fish winter term when their purchasing agent miscalculated and bought 40 pounds of smelt. But it was soon worked off as about four and one-half hours a week are spent doing all the cooking and cleaning required in their seven-room house. Their malfunctioning chimney limits their fireplace to a trophy rack which displays the second place award won in intramural football this year. Added to their tradition of good eating are a chicken barbecue with the alumni, held in the spring at Kensington Park, and midnight trips to the kitchen for the "snackables." Also during the year the members elect both the Man-of-the-Year and the Slob-of-the-Term.

Culinary arts are practiced diligently in the house.

Academic excellence is recognized in

SCHOLARSHIP UNITS

Patterned after the fraternity system, the scholarship living unit at Michigan State gives emphasis to social and athletic events as well as academics. Although Evans Scholars have a pledge system similar to that employed by the Greeks, their membership is based solely on holding an Evans Scholarship rather than on a system of rush. These Scholarships are given by the Western Golf Association to former golf caddies in member clubs and are awarded on the basis of financial need, scholarship and character. Cost for tuition and a room in the house is covered. Since food is not supplied, about 25 per cent of the men eat in restaurants while the rest earn their meals by working as busboys at sororities, fraternities or dormitories.

There are eight chapters of Evans Scholars in various midwestern universities. Although at some schools they are members of the interfraternity councils, our MSU chapter has chosen to remain independent. However they compete with other independents such as the cooperatives in athletic activities.

Evans Scholars

Evans Scholars is sponsored through the Western Golf Association by scholarships awarded to its members. This program was begun in 1930 by Chick Evans, the golf great, and has since spread to eight universities. As the only scholarship living unit at MSU, Evans Scholars usually boast the highest grade point average of any fraternity or co-operative which can be expected from its pure scholastic emphasis. In addition to these commendable academic achievements, they won the intramural hockey championship, the IM Individual Independent trophy and placed second in the golf tournament. They also placed second in last year's Water Carnival.

To study or play basketball often draws heated debates.

A short game of bridge after dinner may lead to a night long tournament.

Denominational homogeneity is found in

RELIGIOUS UNITS

In the religious living unit, the binding ties of a similar religious faith bring students together in a living situation where mutual interests and common goals are shared. Similar values are reflected in all facets of house activity. While working, studying, relaxing and eating, the members realize the common force that holds them together. In order to minimize living expenses, the residents of religious living units are assigned housekeeping chores, from dusting to dishwashing. The united feeling among these members is seen as several try to help solve a friend's problem or during an intramural contest with rival teams. Friends often envy the quiet atmosphere found in the units which proves ideal for study. This surrounding feeling of peace is also perfect for solitary thoughts and dreams of future plans. Quickly apparent also is the increased consideration residents have for their fellow members.

Residents of religious living units leave the large dormitory complexes to move into smaller, more closely knit groups. Putting institutional regulations behind them, they are free to participate in fellowship and study in an atmosphere of spiritual enrichment. Similar to the arrangement offered by the co-ops, these accommodations enable most residents to save close to $100 per term.

Asher Men

The Asher Student Foundation for Men, a Christian Science living unit, played Santa Claus to an underprivileged Lansing family, showing them movies, feeding them and giving the children presents. Prospective members of Asher House live there for a term while fulfilling religious requirements and Saturday work projects before they become actives. Asher House won second in Spartan Spirit fall term, third in their Homecoming display and second in the all-University Canoe Race. The 28 men of Asher House spent their walking hours on Abbott Road viewing the construction of their new co-ed house which will unite them with their sister house, Asher Foundation for Women. The new facilities will include a Christian Science student center.

The 26 members of Asher Student Foundation for Women are looking forward to their new house now being constructed. In the spirit of co-educational living, the house will unite Asher men and women under one roof. Asher women are Christian Scientists, and the foundation is supported wholly by funds from the women living there. For their community activity, Asher women mended books and toys at the MSU nursery.

Bethel Manor

Bethel Manor, an inter-denominational religious living unit, was founded to develop Christian character and leadership. Minutes saved in walking time — it's across from Mason Hall — were used by the 16 men this year to cook and clean their house. Bethel Manor is associated with Spartan Christian Fellowship which met there weekly. Informality characterzied this small group as spontaneous get-togethers and pizza parties were common.

Intra-family relationships are solidified in

MARRIED HOUSING

Getting married combines books and babies in a mixture that makes students spouses and pupils parents. Housing this delicate mixture is accomplished through three separate complexes — University and Spartan Villages and Cherry Lane — which puts a roof over the heads of 2,240 student and faculty couples. Here, there are no leases to sign, and the telephones and utilities are paid for by the University.

The facilities for married students have progressed remarkably since 1946, when they consisted of a trailer park at Harrison and Kalamazoo Streets and barracks designed for the returning veterans. Now, MSU boasts 600 more apartments than any other Big Ten school. This is further testimony of MSU's burgeoning campus and the consequent extension of its facilities.

Postponement of Luxuries Must Frequently Be Endured

The demands of married life often require eating hamburger and beer today, postponing the delight of pheasant and wine for the future. Limited budgets stretched to accommodate paperbacks for outside reading assignments seldom allow purchase of T-bone steaks or expensive furnishings. But classical records for evenings of relaxation or a packet of Valentines for a pre-schooler's backyard friends become an integral part of necessary expenditures.

Student Apartments: Contributing Distinctiveness, Uniqueness, Originality

Student apartments are furnished with basic furniture and appliances, and in most cases, with carpets for the living room; faculty apartments are unfurnished. Although the 456 units in University Village, the 292 in Cherry Lane and the 1,308 in Spartan Village may be virtually identical in floor plan and furniture, each couple brings a part of himself to his apartment, contributing distinctiveness, uniqueness and originality. Student wives supplement the furniture supplied by the University with articles obtained from a variety of places — the Salvation Army store and the local discount house included. By whatever means, ingenuity and creativity are cleverly displayed.

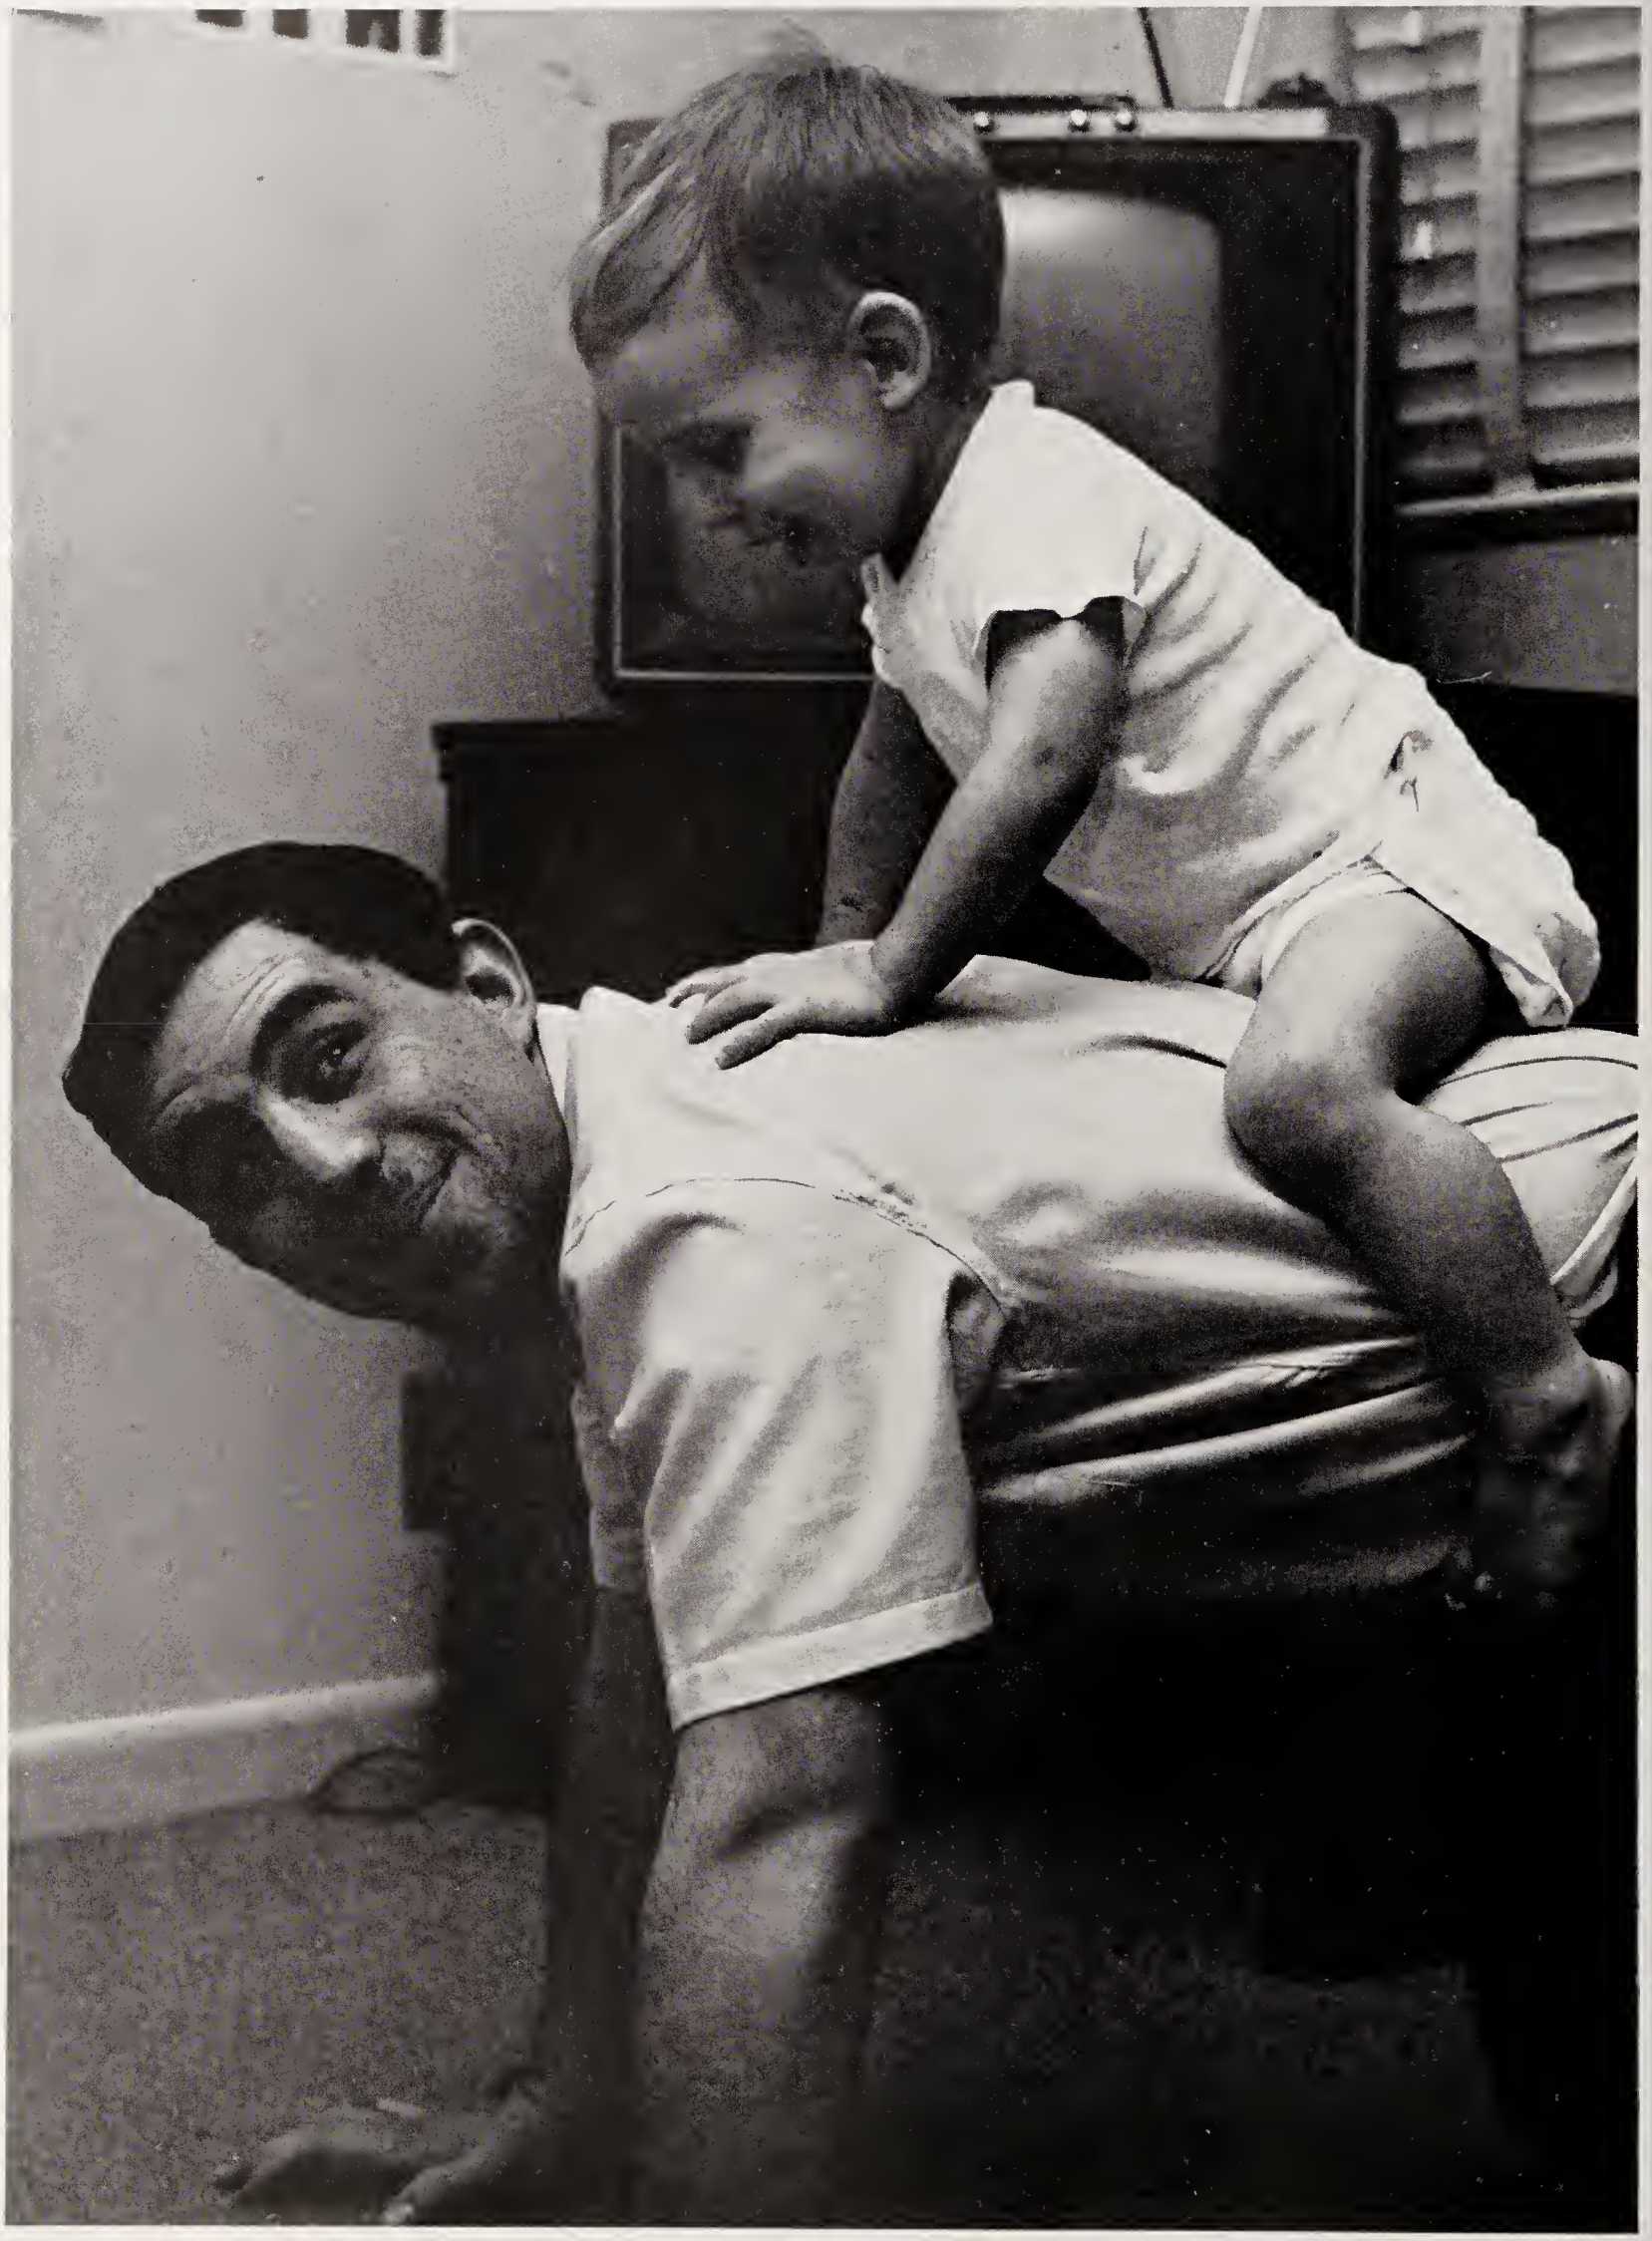

It's a big glass for Blondie right now, but soon she will be bigger.

Curious eyes must see where that camera is.

A toast is still a toast no matter what the glasses.

A Life of Varying Demands

Married life also demands much of the student's time. There are many moments when the wife reaches for a mundane mop instead of her philosophy book and the husband shovels snow before delving into the cyclical character of economics. But whatever the trials accompanying this role, the reward lies in the children, 2,000 of whom inhabit the sandboxes and stairways of the married housing complexes most of their waking hours. Assuming the responsibilities concommitant with marriage and educational improvement is often frustrating and tiring, but after the children are in bed and fast asleep, a quiet moment is found for study or peaceful contemplation.

Kids smile when daddy reads them the paper — especially when he's Editor John Van Gieson.

Children everywhere turn their fathers into their own private ponies.

An old clothes basket makes the pickup chore easier.

Cooperation typifies married life on campus. Dedicated to the practical business of receiving a degree, married couples work together to achieve this long sought goal. Car pools, group babysitting and mutual trips to the supermarket become common practice among the group. Combining the status of husband and wife to the already complex and demanding role of student, these couples add new dimensions to University living. And the common interest of receiving an education serves as a solidifying bond between these students, their contemporaries and the University as a whole.

OFF-CAMPUS HOUSING

When a student crosses Grand River, he leaves the University, yet he remains a vital part of it. He is bound by its traditions and regulations regardless of his age and status. The student may remove himself physically but never psychologically. Living off campus couples freedom with responsibility. There are no quiet hours, and consequently, no quiet, unless the students who live next door respect the existence of midterms. Institutional food is gone, but so also is the freedom from cleaning up afterwards. Now, dishes may overflow the sink if no one does them. Wrist watches are no longer a vital necessity on dates, for women are not bound by University regulations. No one gives demerits if the beds remain unmade, but the convenient linen exchange of the dorms is no longer provided either. Off-campus living is comprised of as many things as there are students; it is one more approach to development in an institution which seeks to offer the diversity necessary in the maturity of the individual.

The worn paths to off-campus housing are through alleys and quiet, shady neighborhoods where children jump rope on the sidewalk. They may lead to the back stairway of rambling old wooden houses, or to the shining glass entrances of the new apartment buildings. For some 1,700 students, they lead to the homes of parents or relatives within commuting distance of MSU. Four hundred student teachers are scattered throughout the state, living in homes and apartments near their schools. But the majority of single students living off-campus — more than 850 women and 2,500 men — live in unsupervised apartment buildings, rooming houses or trailer parks. For such a privilege, students must either be veterans of one year, married, commuting from within 50 miles, transfer students of junior standing or 21 years old.

A new apartment building is now standing in place of this old house.

The balconies of the new apartments provide excellent places for sunbathing.

Pastimes are of many kinds.

Off-Campus Living: An Experiment In Individual Maturity

Ugh!

Learning how to select the best cuts takes time and helpful advice.

A poker game with next-door neighbors provides a good study break.

Off-campus living is cooperation over a coffee cup and togetherness at a table. It's planning meals when one roommate likes only one vegetable and another doesn't like hamburger, a staple in the off-campus student's diet. For men it means eating on $8 a week; girls can usually get by on $5. Budgets spent on Girl Scout cookies can usually be balanced by goodies brought back from grandma's. But scrimping seems worth while when a guest sits down to a candlelight lobster dinner. Some acquire skill with the skillet slowly, but meals that would elicit moans and groans in the dorm are accepted cheerily — even when the chief cook forgets to add the tuna to the tuna casserole. For students beyond the hiking distance from campus, living off-campus means lunches out of brown paper bags in the Union grill or student off-campus lounge. Wearing apparel at dinner is casual — complete with cut-offs and thongs. Late sleepers find flexibility in meal hours essential as they may have their toast and coffee at 11:30 and still make their 12 o'clock class.

Freedom, Responsibility, Independence: The World Beyond the Campus

Friendship has a new dimension for the off-campus student. Members of the opposite sex are no longer simply date-bait but friends — friends wondering how to pass an advanced math course or wanting to borrow a tablespoon of horseradish or a broiler pan. Living next door or across the hall makes it possible to have a light conversation about last night's "TGIF" or the more serious topic of where you're heading in life. Through close association, off-campus men and women discover how the other half lives and thinks. Away from the competition of classroom and the status-seeking world of social affairs, friends may be found among the garbage cans or at the laundromat — friends from a different culture, race or creed, but people nevertheless.

COMMUNITY

During his short, but busy college career, each Michigan State student is encompassed by an atmosphere of learning and new experiences — the University community. United by common bonds and mutual goals, he and his contemporaries form a separate yet distinct society. The constant struggle for knowledge, the ceaseless fight for independence and the pleasure of social interaction combine to form a diversified and meaningful educational experience.

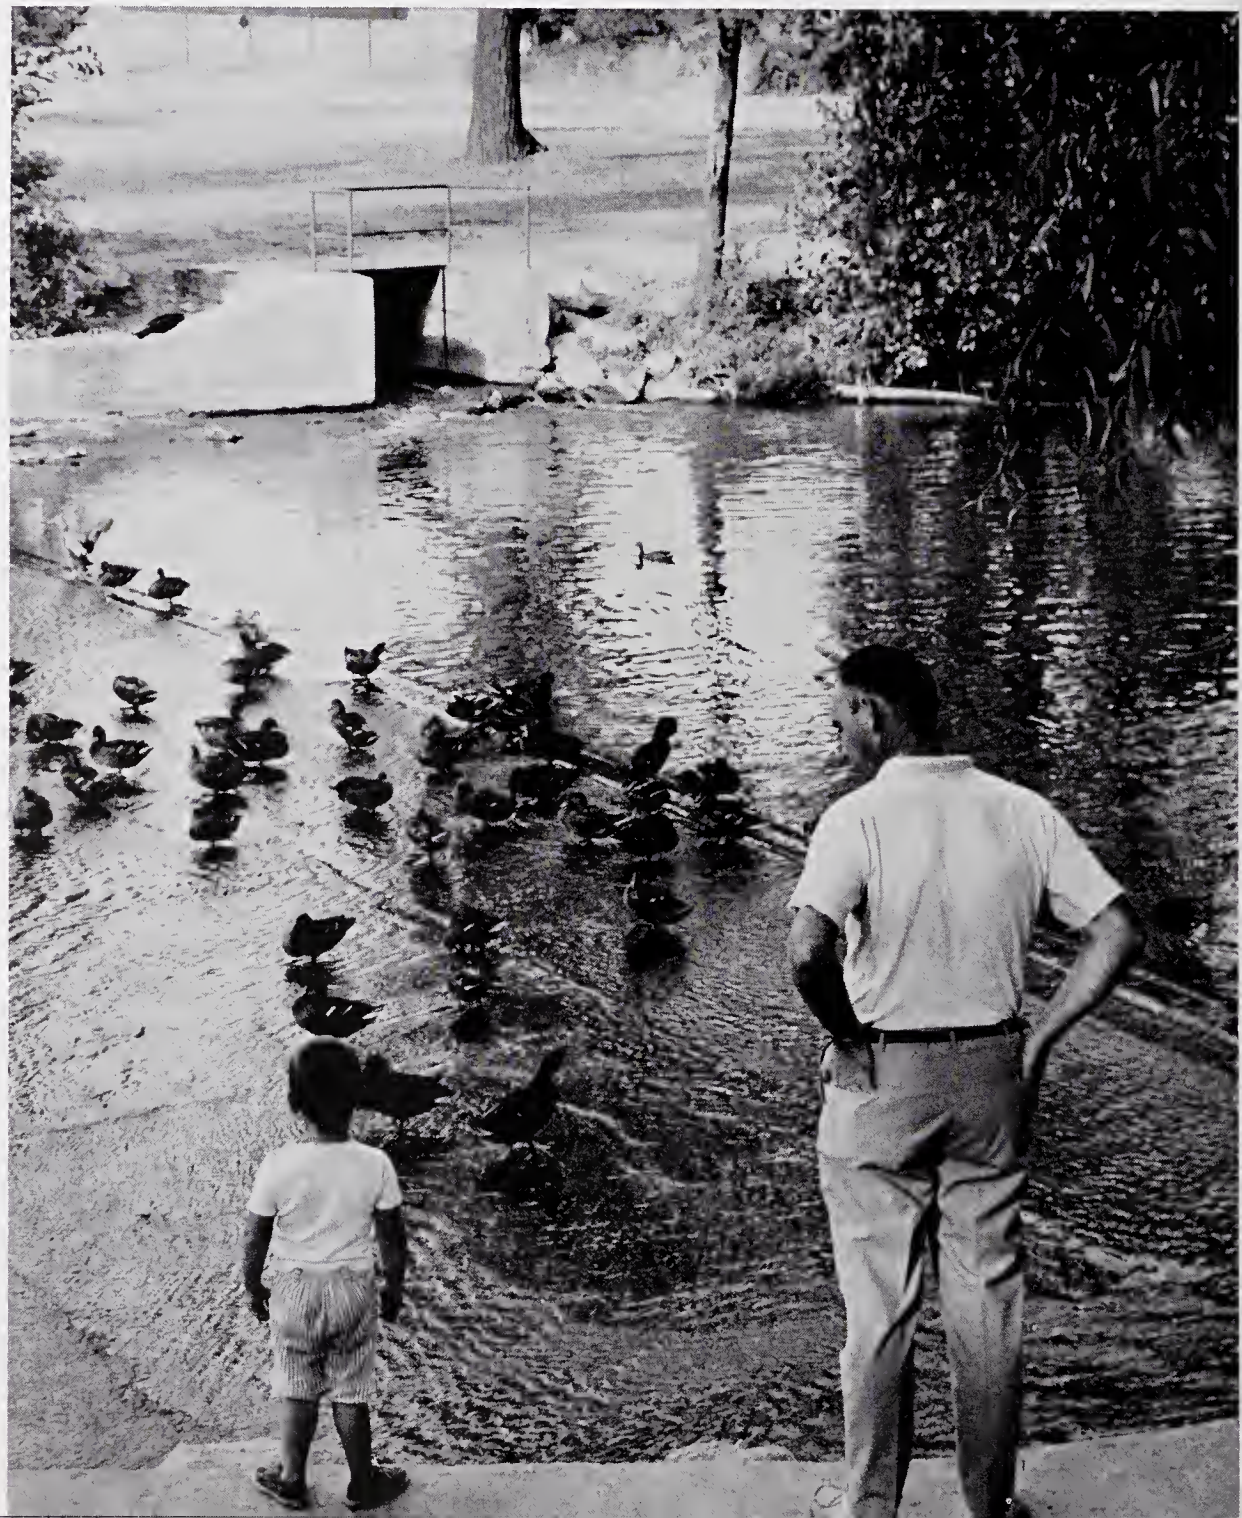

Endless books and supplies await the September influx.

College Entrance: Cause for Individual Reevaluation

Each year thousands of high school graduates assume their intellectual roles among the ranks of the world's college students. As they become a part of this new environment, each person's self concept must be adapted to a newer and larger reference group. Such re-evaluation is a vital aspect of the individual's transition from adolescence to adulthood and occurs not only through membership in activities and organizations, but also by association with thousands of varied, yet similarly growing persons.

Cooperation and interaction are encouraged

ON CAMPUS

The on-campus community finds its most energetic fulfillment in the numerous activities which are an important part of the University atmosphere during the year. In whatever phase, these diversified events compel students to interact. Students soon learn that classrooms, laboratories and books are not the only sources of education. Living and sharing experiences for four years with people having a variety of interests, backgrounds and points of view are in themselves a major educational activity. These experiences help to develop tolerance, independence and a respect for the individual.

Throughout the academic year, the activities calendar is filled with events and programs inviting student participation. These activities provide a means for students not only to meet other students, but also to pursue their own particular interests. The diversity of these events is conducive to such an endeavor. Through participation in campus affairs, students are able to broaden their knowledge of the social and cultural aspects of society.

Guest Appearances Highlight the Task of Learning

During the course of their college careers, students often study the history of civilization, and in so doing, they begin to realize the importance of current events in the world picture. In an attempt to keep students well-informed on prevailing issues, Michigan State University engages many distinguished personalities each year to speak on topics of vital concern. This year's schedule included Martin Luther King and John Howard Griffin, author of the controversial novel, Black Like Me. The most frequently discussed topics were the racial problem and the crucial Viet Nam situation. The extensive student reaction to these events demonstrated their increasing awareness of international crises.

Revamping schedule conflicts are part of the grueling registration process.

Properly registering more than 30,000 students for classes four times a year has proved to be no small task for a university as complex as Michigan State. Bowing to the exigencies created by the increasing volume of students, the University initiated a new experimental procedure effective winter term. All students pre-enrolled, then went to the Union to make section reservations. Early in December, students obtained their new schedules and made any necessary alterations at the IM building, thus completing step three. Payment of fees was left for the regular registration period in January.

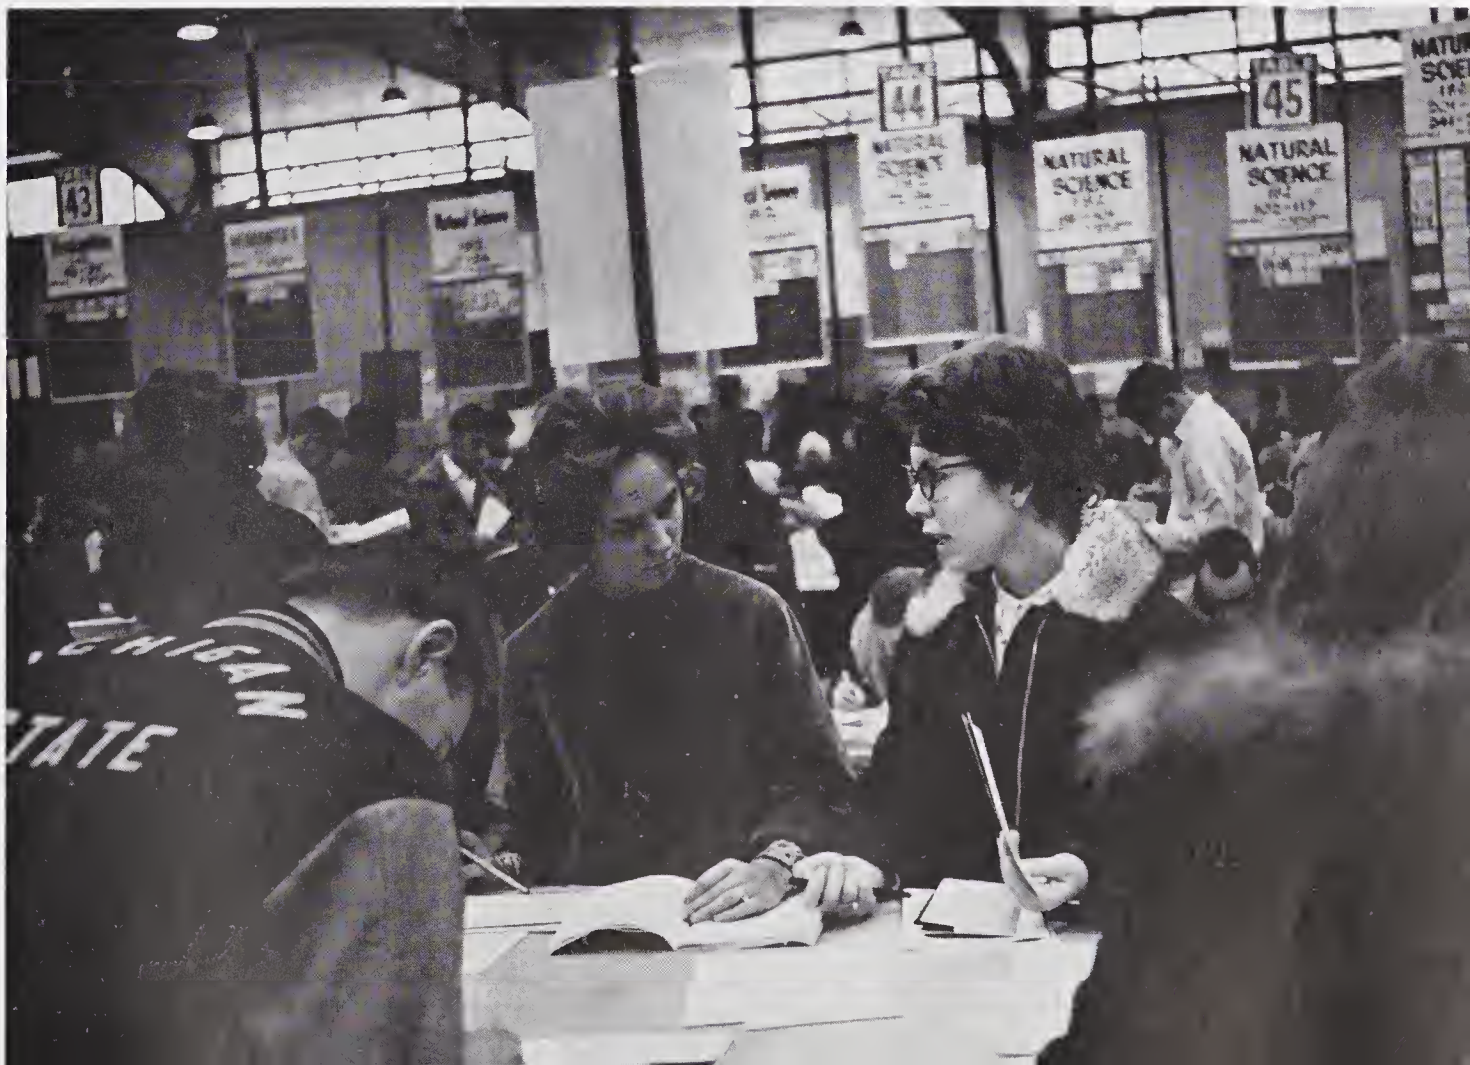

For some, deferred payment makes college possible.

Registration: Cause for Varied Comment

The order of the class lists was determined by a priority system where graduate students were given first choice, followed by seniors, Honors College students, juniors, sophomores and freshmen.

These modifications in the registration and enrollment procedure were instituted amidst adamant disapproval from the student body, but the new methods employed have thus far assured the majority a registration without incident. Since success or failure of any new innovation cannot be measured until it is tried, the future of the registration process and the preservation of the sanity of both the students and administration are vitally dependent upon this unceasing search for betterment.

During spring term, the campus comes alive with activities. Floats constructed by men's and women's living units grace the Red Cedar for the annual Water Carnival. Based on the theme "Witerature," last year's floats were usually humorous, many of which drew uproarious applause for their clever depiction of the Shiawassee County incident which involved 111 MSU students. This year's event will evolve around the theme "De Losers of Grandeur," portraying losers throughout history. Added to this is the excitement of MSU's version of the Indianapolis 500 where relay teams push hand-constructed carts representing the various living untis around West Circle Drive's 1.1 mile course.

Couples danced to the music of Les Elgart and were entertained by Hap and Joel, a folk singing and comedy duo, during intermission. The Miss MSU finalists were also presented at this time. Developed around the theme "Knight's Night," the Spinsters' Spin gave the ladies a chance to pursue the man of their choice, lavishing upon him all due courtesy and consideration. The academic achievements of the up and coming sophomores and seniors are recognized each year at May Morning Sing. At this time, Beaumont Tower, lending its appeal of tradition, serves as a backdrop for the gathering of hundreds of students and parents eagerly awaiting the revelation of new Tower Guard and Mortar Board members. The present members of both honoraries work long hours assembling data concerning the many students whose names they have been given for consideration. Final conclusions are based on strict consideration of the activities, organization memberships, leadership qualifications and academic standing of the girls. Last year 25 girls were tapped for Mortar Board and 41 for Tower Guard. A breakfast in their honor followed at the Union where President Hannah spoke.

Commencement: The Achievement of a Common Goal . . .

One-Hundred twenty weeks of school have passed, 12 sets of exams have been endured, the last term paper is in; and now, commencement is at hand. Family and friends admire the caps and gowns with the distinctively colored tassels and hoods of each college; the ceremony is impressive; but most important, the graduates themselves become cognizant of the commendable goal which they have achieved throughout their academic careers.

The triumphant feeling that pervades the entire graduating population of any university throughout the world is no less distinct at Michigan State. Whether the big day comes at the end of fall, winter, or spring terms, there is the same exultant joy of having survived the rigorous intellectual activity which has been so much a part of every student's existence. Though these years have been tempered by numerous pleasurable interludes, the culmination of one's college career in Commencement conveys its own particular charm to each individual. For some, Commencement marks the end of a long, strenuous academic struggle; to others it symbolizes the responsibility of applying the knowledge gained in meeting society's complex problems; but to all it connotes an entrée into the future.

Selecting the vibrant and enchanting melodies of the world's most beloved composers as its point of departure, the Congress of Strings brings opportunities for cultural enrichment to hundreds of people, both on and off campus, during the summer. Sponsored by the American Federation of Musicians, the program involves serious study of classical music in all its forms. Renowned musicians from well-known symphonies throughout the United States are brought to campus to serve as instructors. Concerts are presented to the public which are under the batons of outstanding maestroes during the eight-week session.

In so doing, a fundamental basis of the mechanics, background and scope of this area of musical expression is offered, enabling the student to more readily appreciate its uniqueness. The accelerated tempo of the compositions acts as living testimony of the reality of life's quickening pace.

Performing Arts: A Source of Cultural Growth

Sell-out crowds applauded the many achievements of the Performing Arts Company and Summer Circle this year. The Company's productions included a variety of plays — classics, comedies and tragedies. These events, staged to encourage students to increase their knowledge in the fine arts, provided an abundance of good entertainment for all members of the University community. Countless hours of preparation, including planning, tedious rehearsals and costume and set construction, provided an active learning situation for those whose interests or ambitions are directed to theatrical careers. These productions are also an important aspect of the cultural growth of MSU students.

OFF CAMPUS

When a college or university is established in an area, the surrounding community makes certain adaptations to the needs and wants of the student population. These facilities and establishments, catering to student demand, have provoked the term, "a university town." East Lansing, over the span of a century, has become such a town surrounding Michigan State University. The student population, no longer under constant parental care, turns to the East Lansing and the greater Lansing area to fill many of their needs.

Students constantly utilize the economic facilities to shop for clothing, books and drug supplies. Young adults also depend upon the area's establishments which provide banking and postal services. Churches and religious centers adapt their programs to a student population and encourage students to make use of their facilities. Establishments for both popular and cultural entertainment in both East Lansing and Lansing are also frequented by over 30,000 students.

Inter-communication lines are kept open by

STUDENT SERVICES

Students of Michigan State University frequently forget that the Student Services Building houses exactly what its title indicates — services for the student. The problem of keeping students informed of activities and happenings both within and outside the University is ever present on a campus of this size. Organizations, composed of students elected to represent the University's student body, and publications, edited and managed by students interested in communications, exist primarily to keep open the vital lines of information among MSU students, the administration and campus and world events.

The University student is affected directly by many activities on campus and will feel the results of many of the current international happenings in the future. Because today's complex society makes it impossible for each person to satisfy his own individual needs and gain his own information about what is transpiring, students with specialized interests and talents are elected to assume the responsibility for certain positions in the University community. While contributing services to other students, the leaders in these organizations also gain confidence and experience from the completion of a significant and satisfying job.

AUSG: Providing Responsible Leadership

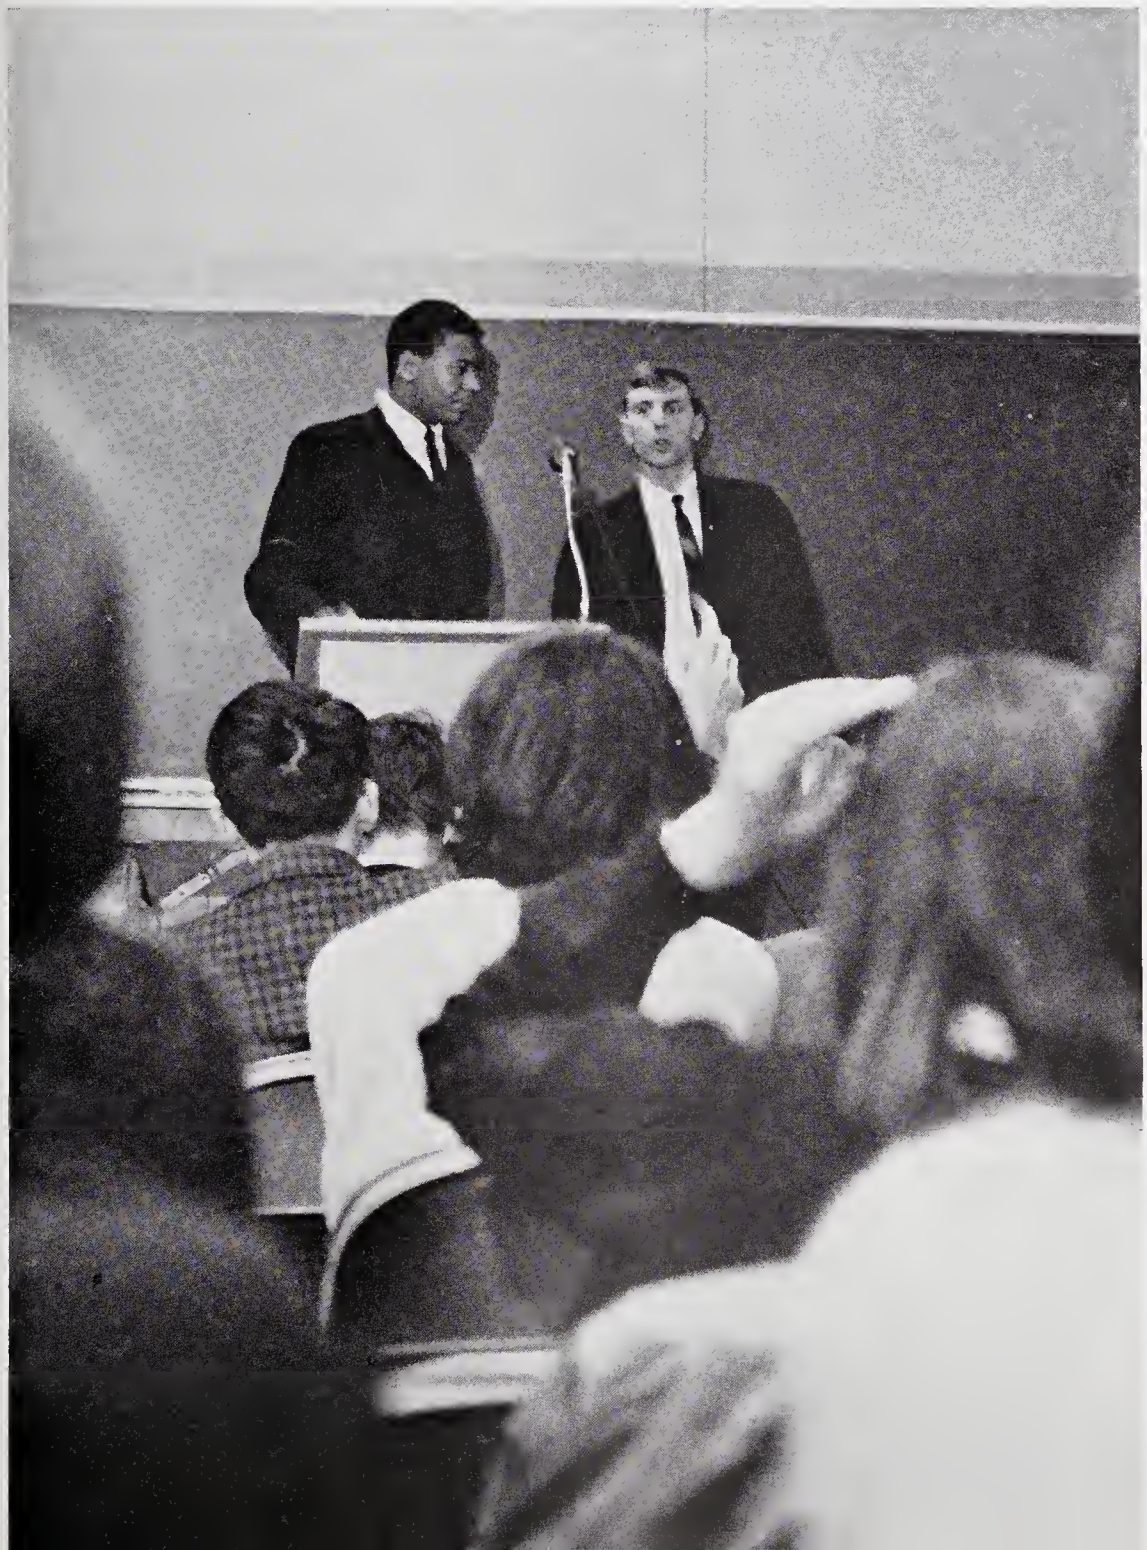

Complete with Executive, Judicial, and Legislative branches, the All-University Student Government seeks to provide competent, smoothly conducted leadership of all student affairs and strives to involve student opinion in administrative decisions through a representative system. Members are elected individually from dormitories and collectively from off-campus students. In addition to passing on the constitutionality of all AUSG activities, it also acts in a purely punitive capacity as it deals with student disciplinary problems.

Functioning in whatever capacity, AUSG endeavors to familiarize its participants with the process of democratic government under which we live, not only as students, but as citizens. It fosters the spirit of cooperation among the faculty, administration, and student body and lends enthusiastic support to campus organizations.

Union Board: Promoting All Student Activities

Though the center of the campus is steadily moving southward, a significant portion of student activity still remains at the Union. Serving as a place of relaxation for students, faculty, and guests alike, this six-story building provides a host of recreational and social functions which offer a welcome respite from the rigorous academic ritual of the classroom.

Publicizing and promoting student use of these many facilities and coordinating all student activities are the all-important tasks of Union Board and its various committees. Comprised of some 200 students and an executive board of 14, the Board organizes dances and tournaments in bridge, bowling, chess, and billiards for the self-professed experts and provides instruction for the novices. Initiated this year was a bridge tournament between dorms with an award given to the champs. In addition, students lacking in funds to "follow the football team" in person can do so through movies of away games. The Board also supervises such major events as the Career and Activities Carnivals, blood drives, and fashion shows which are annual occurrences.

Frosh-Soph Council: Preparing Underclassmen for Future Leadership

Consisting of 35 members — 15 sophomores and 20 freshmen — Frosh-Soph Council acts as the coordinating body of freshmen-sophomore activities. One of its most vital functions is the preparation of underclassmen for future leadership. Indicative of its efforts in this area was the training conference for interested freshmen and sophomores which was held winter term. It also aids the freshmen in making the necessary adjustments to a life of rigorous academic activity through its "get acquainted" gatherings held during Welcome Week.

There are four main committees composing the Council — cultural, public relations, newsletter and special projects — each of which carry out a function vital to the overall efficiency of the Council.

J-Council: Coordinating all Junior Class Activities

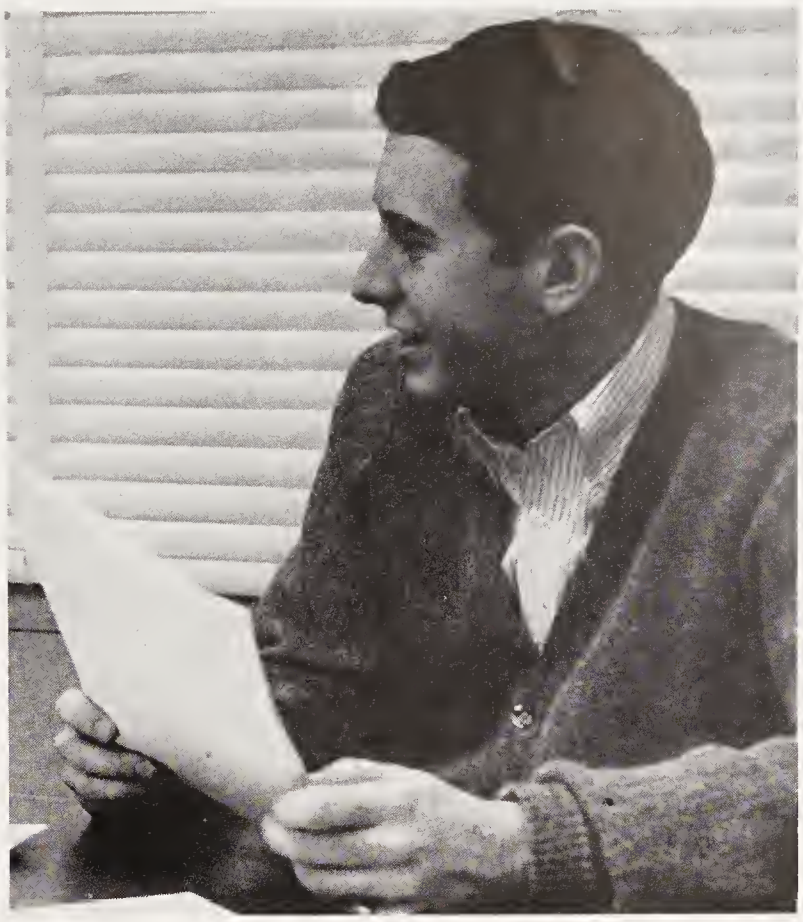

In keeping with the ever-expanding University, J-Council has increased its programs, widened its aims, and raised its goals in an effort to make the current year a fitting representation of student government at MSU. Acting as a coordinating organization benefiting both the Junior Class and the University, it sponsors various cultural, academic, social, and service programs. It also publishes a bulletin — "J-Comment" — which drew praise last year for its comments on the problems of student government.

The general Council is composed of 25 members, led by the class officers. These members serve on its five committees — publicity, public relations, major events, special projects, and J-Hop. Another 100 members comprise the committee-at-large which serves to publicize and execute the various class projects.

Senior Council: Sponsoring and Coordinating all Senior Activities

Senior Council is both the administrative and executive body in charge of sponsoring and coordinating all senior activities that will help make the final year of a student's college career at MSU as meaningful and memorable as possible. In addition to events centered around graduation, such as senior receptions, Swing Out, and Commencement, it takes the initial step in establishing alumni relations through its development fund and "65" Club committees. Socially, the Council sponsors a Senior Night at the Coral Gables once a term and Water Carnival held annually during the spring. It also supervises the selection of a Homecoming queen in the fall.

Three new committees were added to the 24-member Council this year, organized around scholarship, regulations, and entertainment. By these means, it is felt that the Council can better serve those students whom it represents.

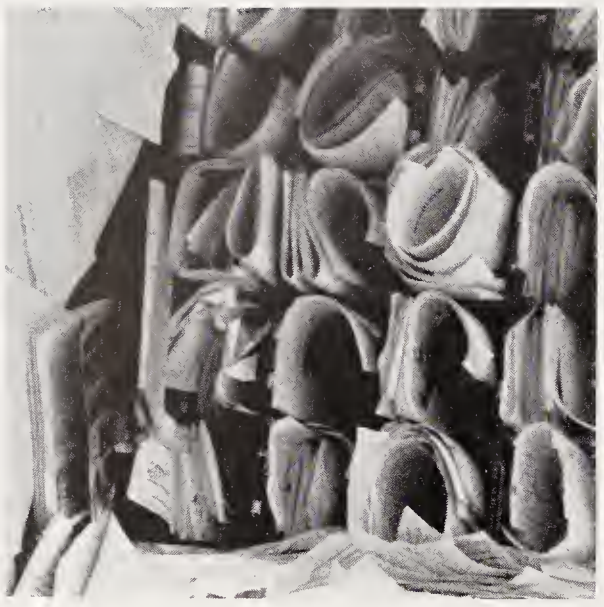

Coordinating senior activities is a full-time task for A. J. Harris.

State News: Informing the Campus of Current Events

Copy, copy, copy . . . .
Is there no end?

There's always time for a snack, even if it means doing two things at once.

While his staff works busily, Editor John Van Gieson studies the critics' advice to sports writers.

All-out effort is what it takes to get tomorrow's edition ready for press.

Richard Schwartz gives his final OK on some last minute sports copy.

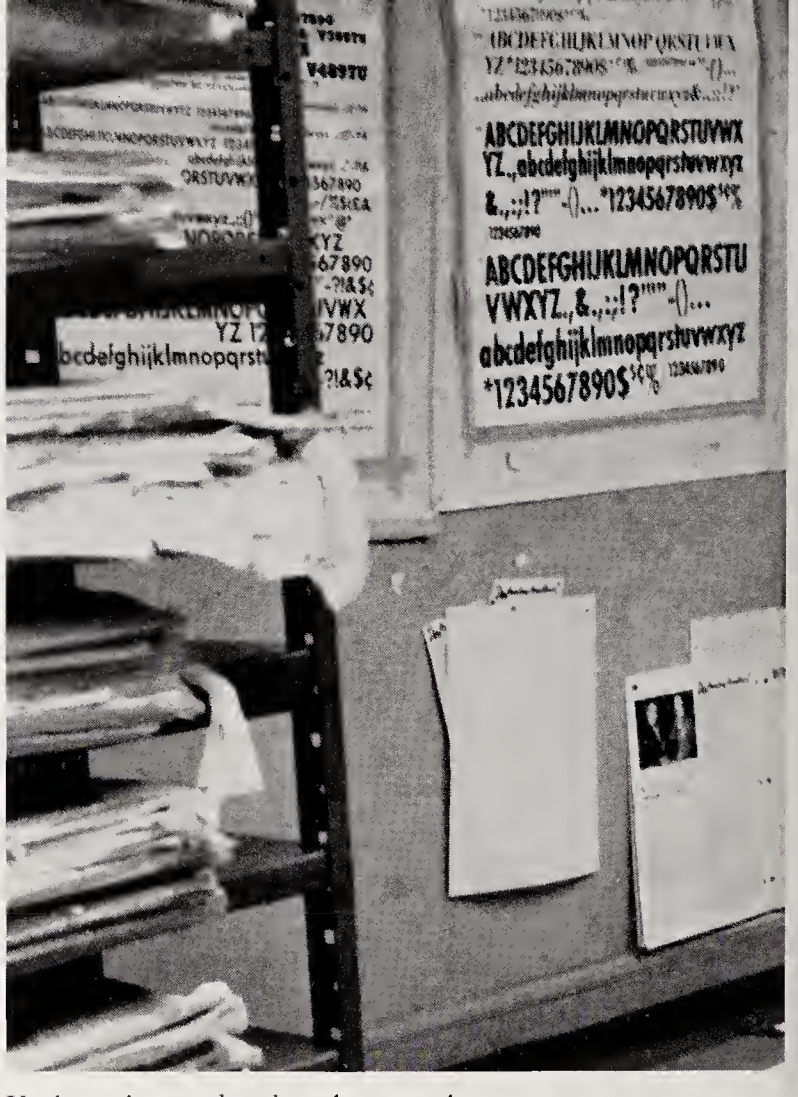

Guided by 14 staff members and a host of student reporters and photographers, the State News disseminates news gathered from the campus, local community, state and world to the University's population. Published every class day throughout fall, winter, and spring terms, and twice weekly during summer term, the paper also serves as a liaison between the faculty and student body, providing a necessary two-way communication.

Under the auspices of Louis Berman, the faculty advisor for the publication, Editor John VanGieson and his staff display a competent, clearly presented purview of current happenings. Coupled with the reams of news copy written by the student reporters, the hundreds of photographs snapped daily by enterprising young camera bugs, and the constant clicking of the AP and UPI wires keep the various sub-editors on their toes evaluating and reevaluating the news.

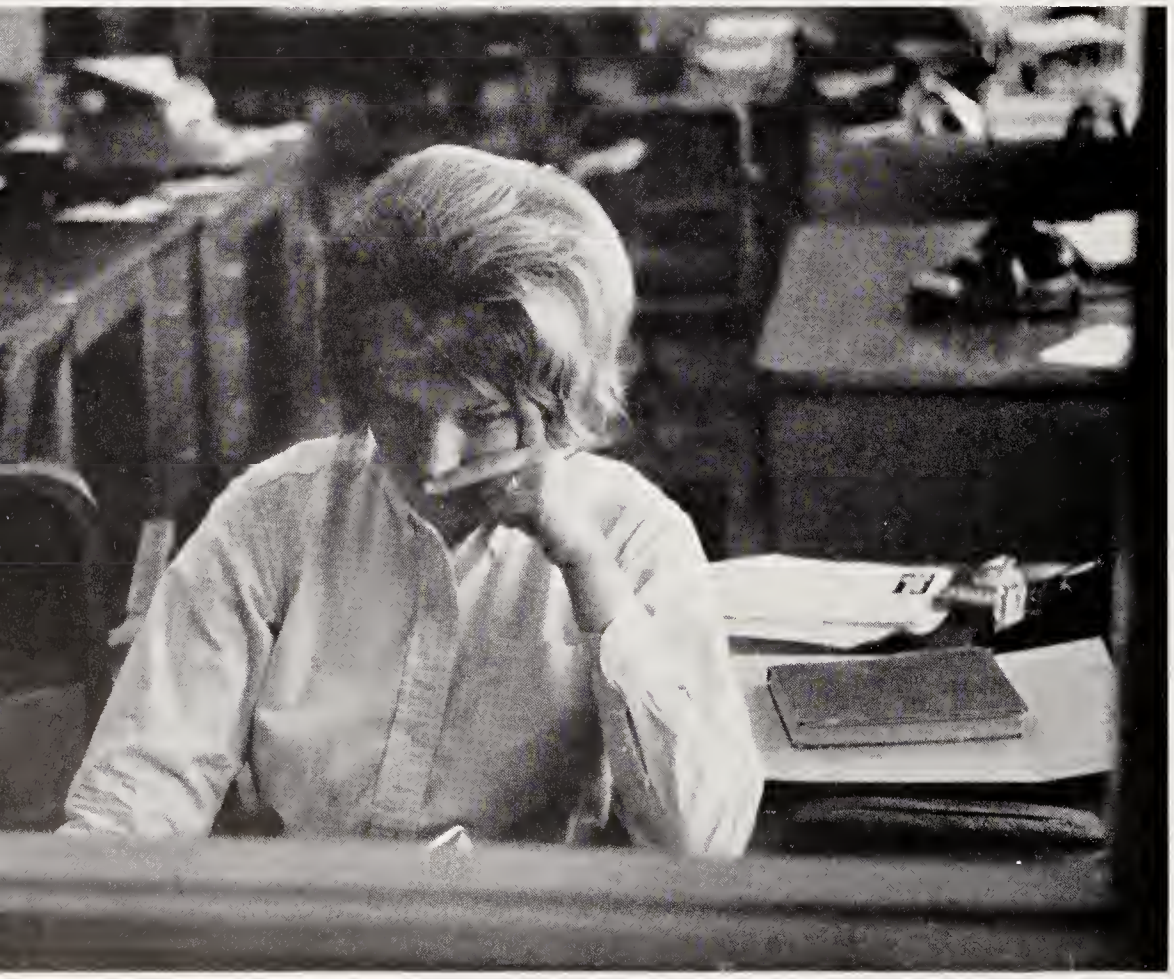

As deadline time aproaches, pressure builds, forcing all staffers to put out their maximum effort. Finishing touches are put on stories by the reporters, and final checks are made at the copy desk to assure the absence of any errors. First pages are often changed as many as three times daily before the final one for the next day's edition is decided upon. When this is completed, the stories are dummied into the paper and sent to Willstaff to be typed before being printed in Greenville. By 5:30 the following morning, the finished product is back on campus awaiting distribution to the students and faculty.

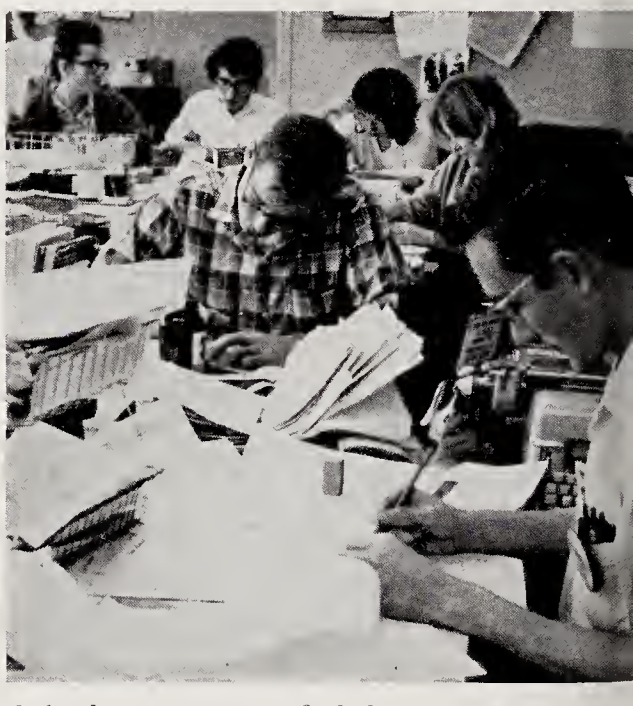

By dint of this hard work, the State News has been the recipient of the Peacemaker Award for several consecutive years. It is also one of the largest circulation dailies in the state.

The student organ of the College of Veterinary Medicine, the MSU Veterinarian, is published tri-annually. Composed exclusively of students pursuing majors in this field, the staff designs their presentation of news in such a fashion as to maintain interest in recent and significant developments in veterinary medicine.

Enjoying a prestigeous reputation, it has the distinction of being the only campus technical journal published by Michigan State students. Research in the area of veterinary medicine and its related sciences and reports of national and local events form the foundation of its content.

Countless phone calls and personal interviews are required to collect information for the Veterinarian.

Wolverine: Capturing the High Points of a Year

Work for the 1965 Wolverine began early in the summer of 1964 when Editor Terry Maxon, with the able assistance of professional artists, decided upon the book's format, size, and general presentation. Since then, the Wolverine office in the Student Services Building has been alive with activity. Following the selection of the staff members, duties were assigned and work was begun in earnest in order to meet the impending deadlines. To do this, assistance of many writers, typists, and reporters was solicited fall term.

At this time, pictures of graduating seniors, clubs and organizations, residences, sports, and general campus events were taken and then sent to the engravers in Chicago to be made into plates.

Sorting and organizing senior pictures often seems an insurmountable task to busy staffers.

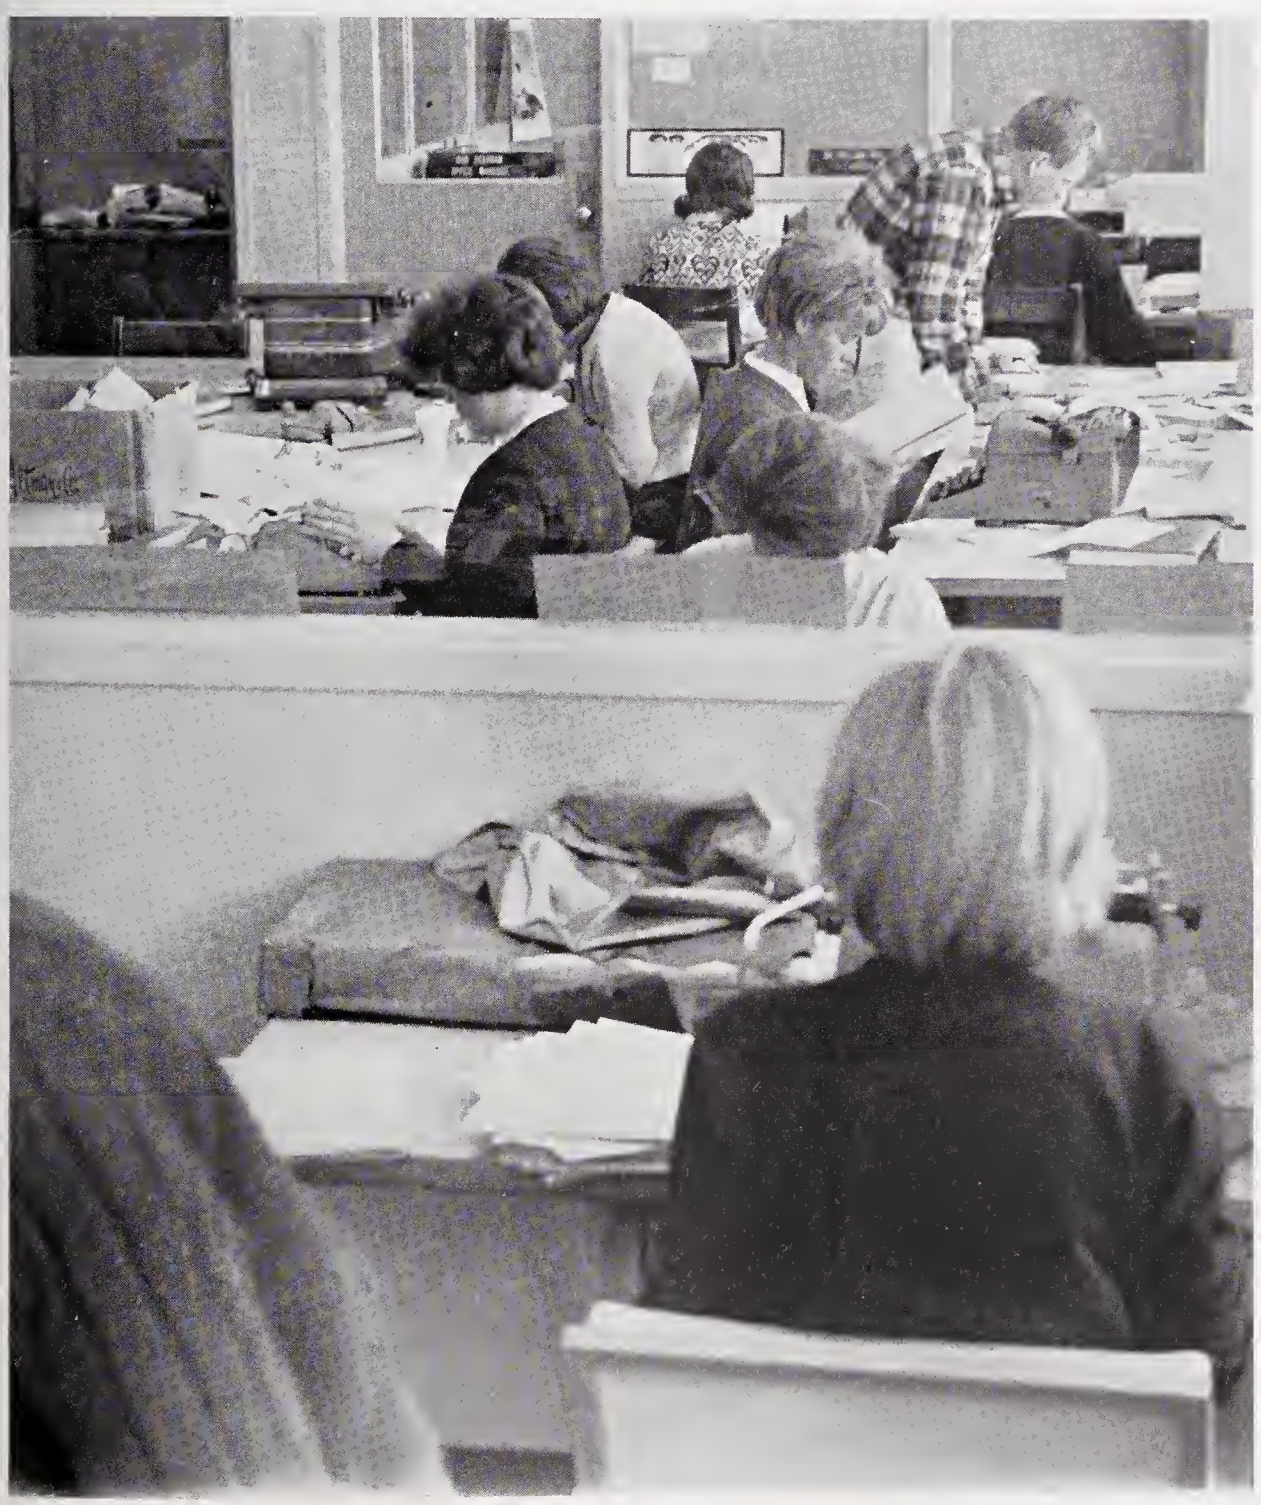

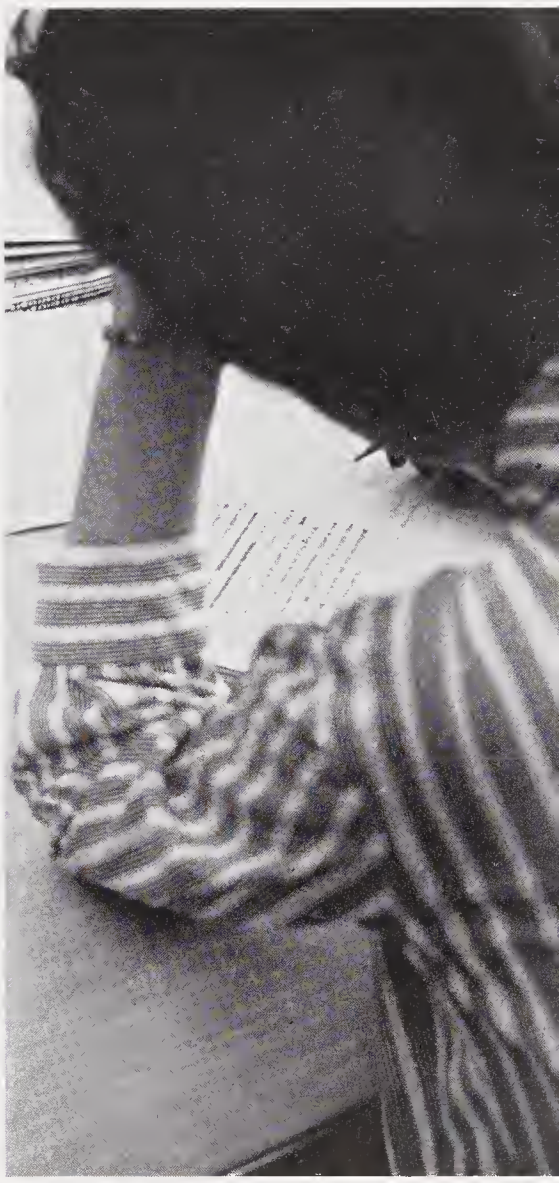

Office manager Bob Bearman must keep careful records to balance the Wolverine budget.

Sports editors, Plunkett and Cole, discuss the selection of meaningful pictures.

Staff members cooperate to compile a pictorial record of the events of 1965.

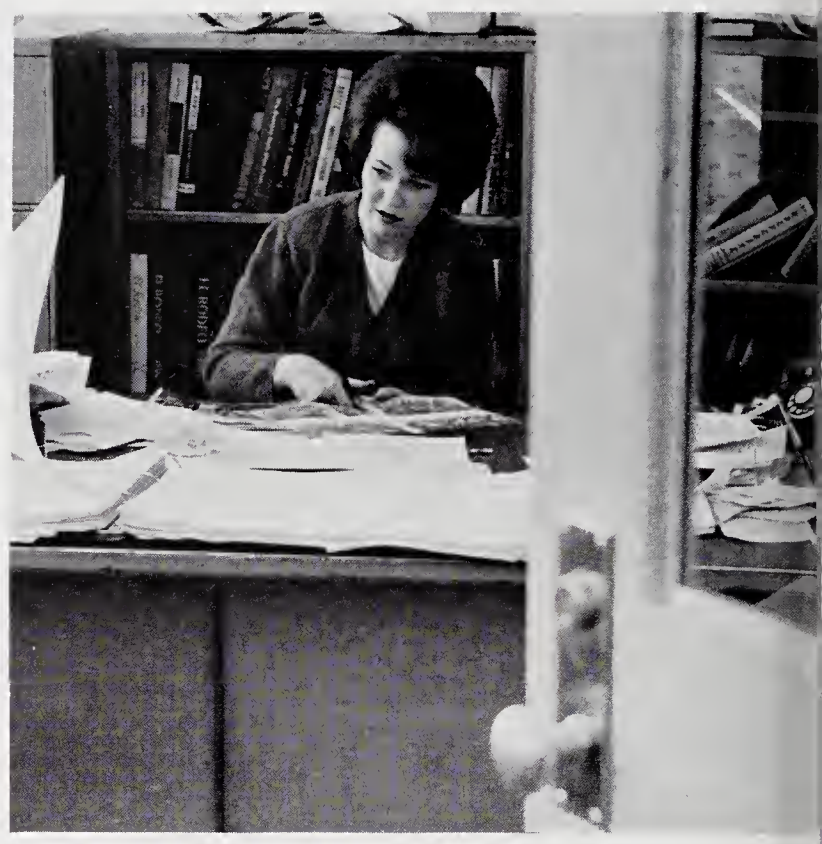

Careful copy editing protects the style and coordination of the book.

During the winter and early spring months, the book was assembled section by section, page by page, and sent to the printer in Lansing — Speaker-Hines and Thomas. Page proofs were inspected by the copy editor and editor for last minute changes or corrections before the final OK was given. Thus ended the many months of writing and rewriting, polishing and refining, which the publication of such a massive book entails. Confusion and disorder succumbed to tranquillity and satisfaction on the part of the staff members whose diligent, year-long efforts were finally completed.

Toward the end of spring term, the Wolverine was distributed to the staff members and eventually to the student body, providing pleasant reminiscences of the year's events, the University, and the manner of life which it represents.

Individual development is facilitated by

UNIVERSITY SERVICES

Extensive personnel services, which are provided by the University, are available to the students of Michigan State. These services, including a broad scope of functions and facilities, are designed with the needs of the student in mind. Although the principle aim of the University is to provide intellectual stimulation for its members, it also has a responsibility to provide services which will encourage the development of the complete individual — his mind, his character and his body.

Services in this area are designed to assist not only present MSU students, but past and future students as well. Through the personnel services, future students and alumni are informed of the many activities of Michigan State, both intellectual and social. These extensive facilities thus actually serve two functions. While assisting the students in making their experience with the University more profitable and complete, they simultaneously enhance the reputation of the University through the dissemination of information concerning its activities.

Applying for scholarships and aid is tedious, but the reward often overshadows the effort.

Valuable information is always available for interested students.

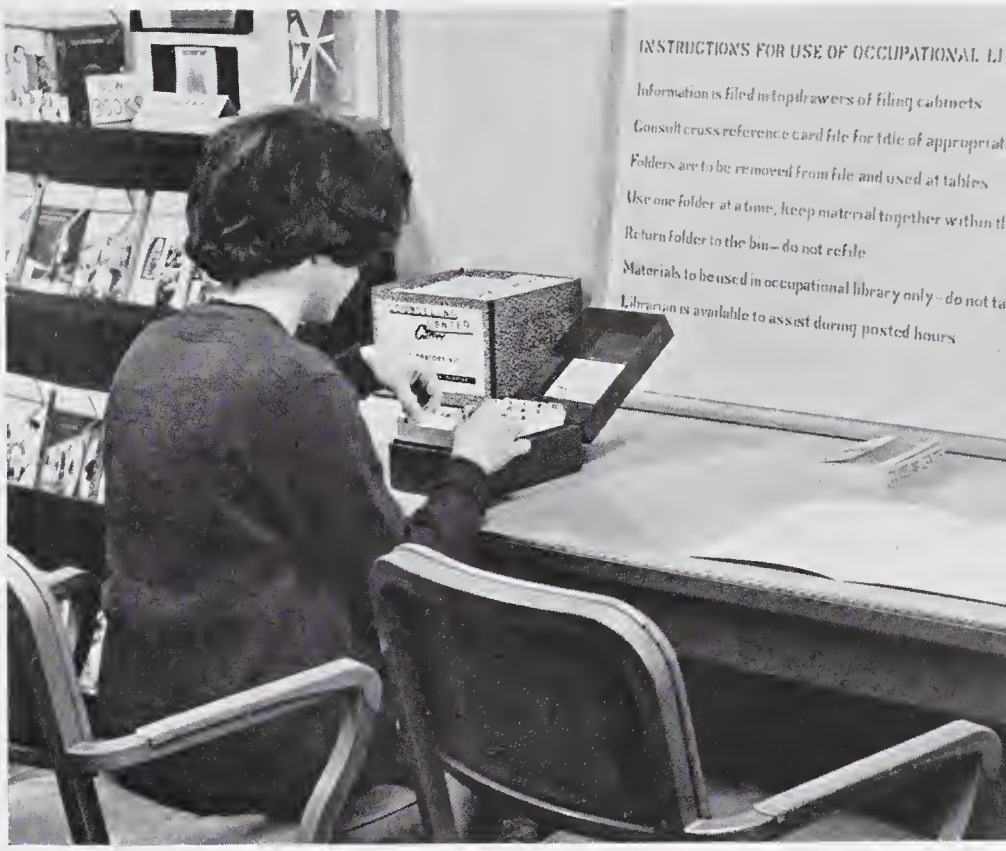

Admission and Scholarship: Reflecting the Diversity of the Student Body

Responsible for the fundamental character and diversity of Michigan State as reflected by its total student body, the Office of Admissions and Scholarships is one of the most important offices of the University. Striving for a geographical balance of students possessing a variety of interests and talents, the Office scrutinizes every University applicant. With the steady increase in the number of high school graduates clamoring for admission, the enormity of this task has become noticeably greater, yet the efficiency of the Office has remained constant.

The Office also sponsors an extensive scholarship program, assuring deserving students a means of financial assistance when needed. Funds for this purpose have been made available by private donations and by amounts of money set aside in the state budget.

Adjusting to the rigorous schedule imposed by an academic atmosphere often proves an arduous task for students. To ease the pressure thus created and give assistance to those who seek it, the trained counselors at the Michigan State Counseling Center offer a ready ear in an atmosphere encouraging free expression. As an additional source of help, a complete testing program is maintained whereby student and counselor can identify areas of strength and weakness, whether the student's problem be one of emotional adjustment, vocational selection, or academic difficulty.

The Counseling Center, however, goes beyond this guidance function. Many counselors serve as professors, while still others engage in research, investigating areas of the counseling process. It also serves as a training ground for graduate students in guidance and counseling and clinical psychology.

Use of the Center's occupational library can open the door to many vocational opportunities.

Continuing Education: Facilitating Adult Education

Growing out of the philosophy that a state university should serve all of its people, the Continuing Education Service sponsors programs which reach nearly every Michigan community. In its effort to provide leadership in educational opportunities for adults, members of the University staff travel throughout the state, encouraging people to lead more useful lives, to do their jobs more effectively, to utilize their leisure time more wisely, and to obtain advanced degrees. The staff at Kellogg Center serves as the administrative unit for credit and non-credit courses in the fields of business, industry, government, education, and community service which form the foundation of this agency's activities.

Information booklets are prepared to maintain a liaison between University and alumni.

Alumni Relations Office: Fostering Loyalty Among Alumni

Maintaining contact with the thousands of Michigan State graduates, and instilling in them a feeling of loyalty to their alma mater is the all-important task of the Alumni Relations Office. By assimilating information of a general and specialized nature into a coherent publication — "The Alumni Magazine" — the Alumni Office provides post-graduates with an up-to-date account of current campus activities and personal news of fellow alumni. It also schedules class reunions which are celebrated in the spring at least 15 years after graduation, or during Homecoming for more recent graduates. As a result, the memories of an alumnus' college days do not dim but instead are sharpened.

Interesting bulletin boards tell of accomplishments of past students.

Housing: Providing Comfortable Living Accommodations For Over 30,000 Students

The responsibility of providing comfortable living accommodations for over 30,000 students is one of the most stupendous tasks confronting a university the size of Michigan State. To keep pace with its mushrooming enrollment, the University has developed one of the finest and most diversified collegiate resident programs in the nation. Including apartments, co-operatives, dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses, and a graduate hall, these living units not only contribute to the educational and social maturation of the student through cultural and recreational programs, but also provide invaluable experience in self-discipline and group living. In so doing, the residences play a significant part in the development of a well-rounded individual.

Placement Bureau: Soliciting Job Opportunities For Students and Alumni

The Placement Bureau, established in 1946, offers employment services to any MSU student or alumnus. Job opportunities are solicited from prospective employers and catalogued, forming a ready information file for all interested students. In addition to its interviewing service for permanent employment, the Bureau also runs a temporary employment service to aid students desiring part-time work, both on and off campus, while attending MSU. Information concerning all job interviews by representatives of business, government, industry, and education is recorded weekly in the Bureau's bulletin, keeping graduating seniors well informed on employment and career opportunities. In addition, the Bureau maintains listings of available summer employment in which students may gain invaluable experience.

Interested staff members concentrate on placing students in summer jobs.

Olin Memorial Health Center: Safeguarding the Well-being of all University Students

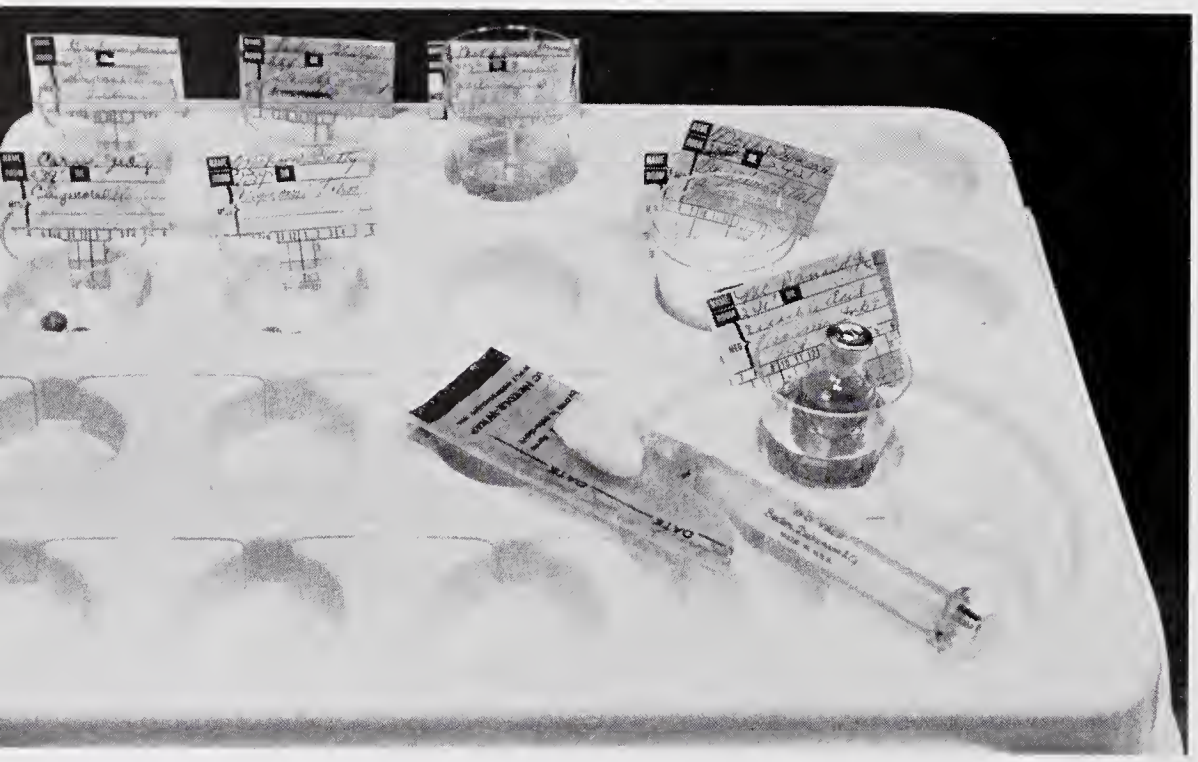

Named in honor of Richard M. Olin, Michigan State's first campus physician, the 124-bed health center vigilantly maintains the mental and physical well-being of all MSU students. Well-equipped and conveniently located, the center operates with a staff of 11 full-time psychiatrists; three psychiatric social workers; two pharmacists; X-ray, physiotherapy, and laboratory technicians; a hospital administrator; and a dietician. Facilities for the provision of medical, acute surgical, or psychiatric care are readily available to all students carrying seven or more credits. All medications and medical supplies are dispensed at cost plus a nominal handling fee.

Coupled with its medical services, Olin also houses one classroom utilized by the School of Nursing, and serves along with Sparrow and Ingham County Hospitals as a training ground for nursing students.

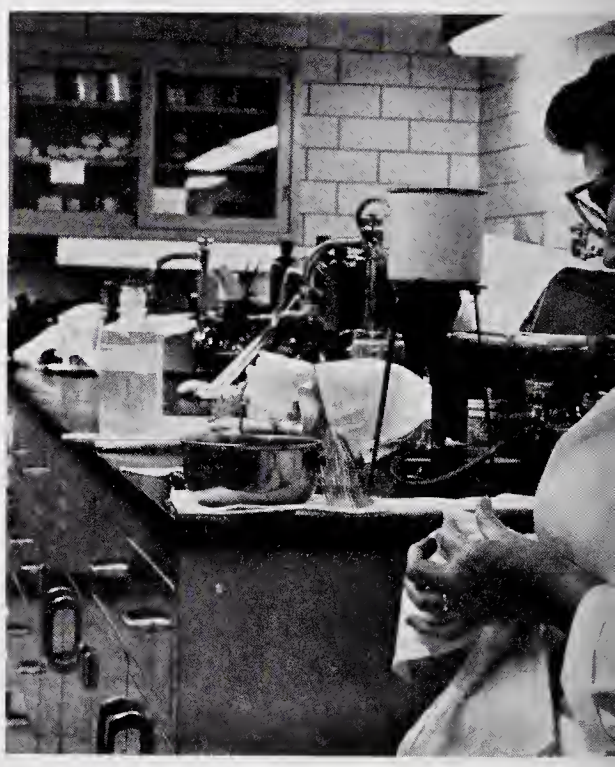

Having a temperature taken is frequently included in a day's schedule.

A tray of various medicines is prepared for distribution to patients.

A tired nurse pauses for a moment to clean needed instruments.

Public Safety: Protecting the Welfare of the University Population

Organized in 1946 to assure a quiet and safc environment for the ever-increasing campus, the Department of Public Safety protects the residences, the property, and the lives of University students. Thirty-one highly trained officers patrol the main campus on foot and in cars, striving constantly for the preservation of peace and tranquility. In addition, they are often called upon to provide rescue and ambulance service to members of the university community.

Due to the changing of student traffic regulations on campus this ycar, a parking patrol was introduced which is handled by two women — MSU's "Meter Maids."

Abiding by University rules is the fastest way to stay on the good side of the law.

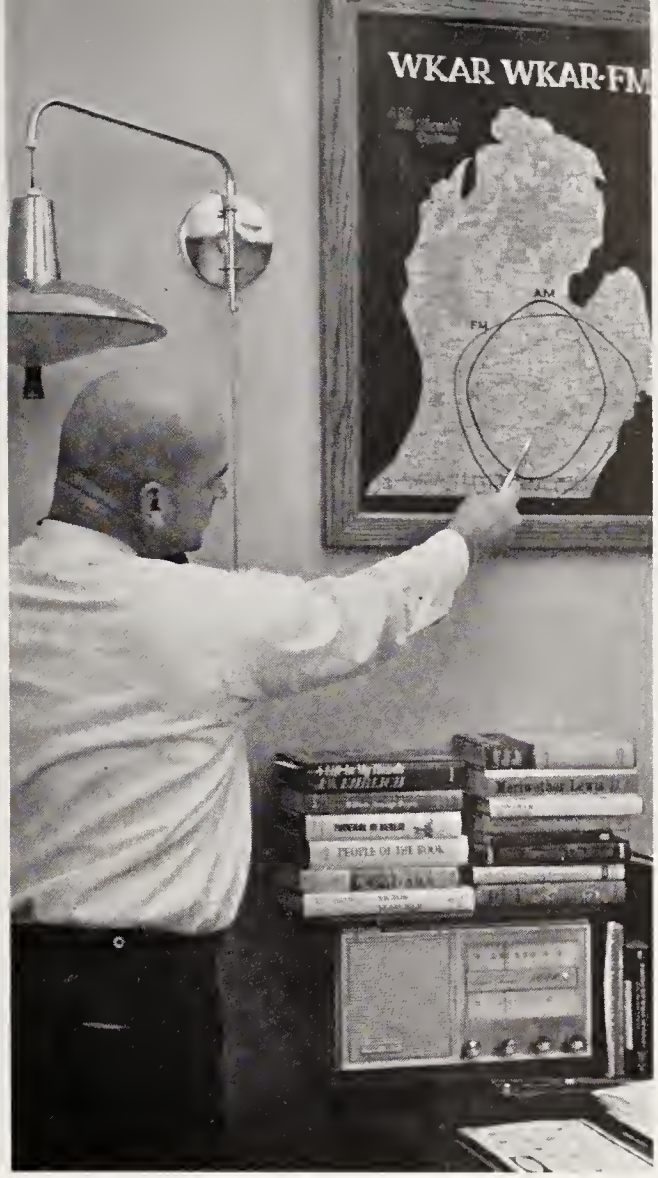

Publications distributed by Information Services need carefully planned layouts and a good selection of pictures to be effective.

Information Services: Enhancing the Image of the University

Public relations books are handy for a quick answer to a question.

Creating an impressive image is important not only for businesses, but also for educational institutions, and Michigan State is no exception. The Information Services exist to serve this need. By utilizing the widely varied and far-reaching aspects of the mass media, the Information Services keeps the public informed of the activities and projects of the University, and disseminates valuable information to residents across the country. Through this effective public relations function, the reputation of Michigan State University is strengthened, and its value to our society enhanced.

Various news, entertainments and music go out from Lansing.

WKAR, WMSB: Disseminating a Diversified Program Across the State

Providing the students of Michigan State University with information and entertainment, WKAR and WMSB are an integral part of the University's educational program. WKAR, drawing its audience not only from Michigan, but also from Indiana, Ohio, and Ontario, has shifted its emphasis from primarily a classroom focus to one that is publically oriented. In this manner, the instructional function is supplemented by an informational aspect. Cultural broadcasts in the areas of humanities, sciences, social sciences, fine arts, and public affairs are offered, while musical programs feature the best in jazz and the classics. WMSB, operating in conjunction with commercial TV station WILX, follows largely the same format as initiated by WKAR.

Materials must be efficiently organized for on-the-spot location of desired tapes.

Critically evaluating a live TV performance paves the way for its improvement.

The new International Center has become the nucleus of many campus activities.

Recognizing that the attainment of world peace is dependent upon the breakdown of existing economic, political, social, and cultural barriers among nations, Michigan State University has embarked upon a new dimension of education involving international activity. For example, foreign instructors are invited to teach on campus as a means of exposing American students to the knowledge, ideas, and outlook of other societies. In addition, educational institutions are established abroad through arrangements with foreign governments to aid emerging countries improve the educational, social, political, and economic status of their citizens. Through such exchange agreements, cross-cultural understanding is fostered, creating a more congenial atmosphere in which to function in today's complex world.

Dr. and Mrs. John A. Hannah

President

In his appointed position as chief executive of Michigan State University, President John A. Hannah heads an administrative staff of competent persons constantly striving to make the University an effective and cohesive system of education. The fundamental purpose of every university — the development and education of mature and responsible citizens and the assured progress of knowledge and truth — is the main goal of the president and the administrative segment.

Personally exemplifying the value of educated individuals in a nationwide dimension, President Hannah has focused the attention of Michigan State students on national activities through his position as chairman of the Civil Rights Commission.

Responsible for the Preservation of Knowledge and Education

Board and Provost

Elected to represent the people of Michigan in the governing of a state supported institution, the Board of Trustees of Michigan State University is responsible for the preservation and further advancement of knowledge and education for the benefit of this state, the nation and the world. The Board, composed of six members, each elected to serve a six-year term, appoints the president of the University who then, under constitutional provision, acts as presiding member.

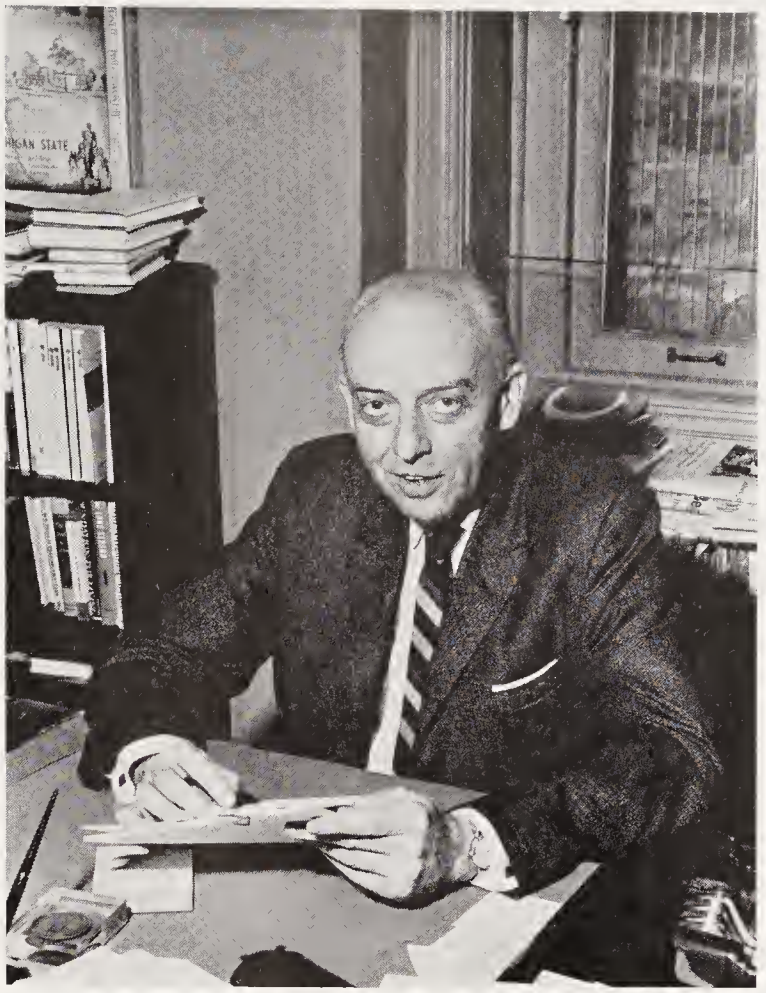

Also included in the administrative branch is the Office of the Provost, concerned with the smooth operation of the University — particularly in educational matters. Among those included in this area are the director of Honors College, the director of the Educational Development Project, the Coordinator of Closed Circuit TV and the Faculty and Staff Budget Officer.

ACTIVITIES

College is much more than blue books and classes, a fact seen by the ever-increasing need to train students both to lead and to be led. This demand is met by the many activities and organizations offered by the University, which afford each individual the opportunity to broaden his education above and beyond the academic sphere. Participation in these groups plays a major role in developing the responsibility and maturity which is expected of today's graduate.

Posters are provided during registration to acquaint students with the clubs on campus.

The cheerleaders practice long hours to perfect their intricate maneuvers.

An Array of Activities Contribute to the Total Development of the Individual and Enhance their University Life

Organizations swamp the students with literature during registration.

Busy seniors let off steam in an effort to relieve the pressures of studies and extra-curricular activities.

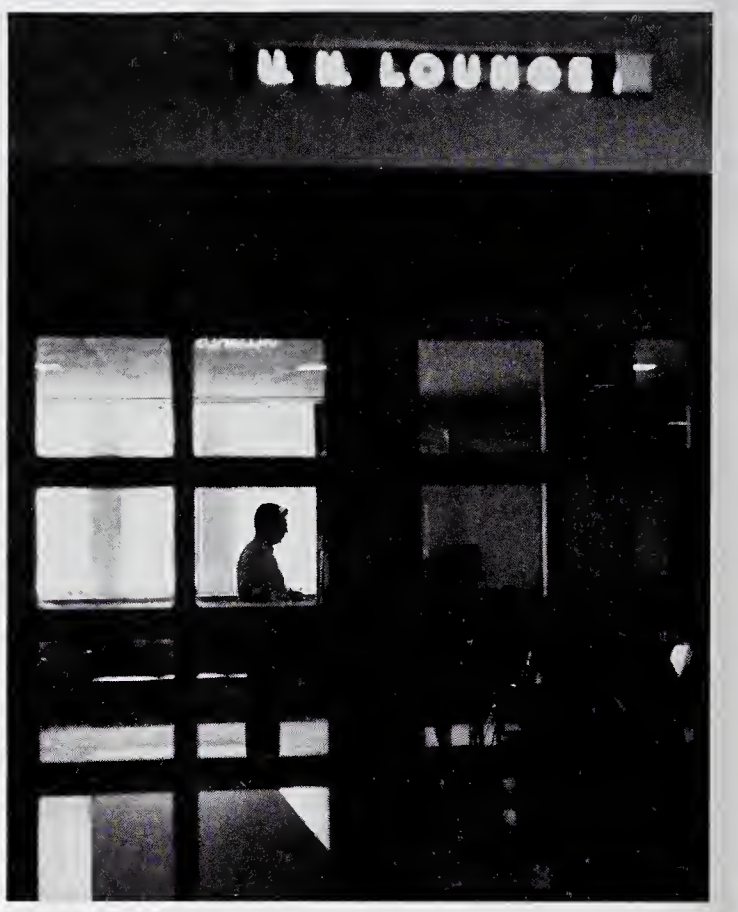

This year, as usual, was filled with many activities for Michigan State students. Hours of leisure and sometimes study were transformed into hard work for Water Carnival, Career Carnival, J-Hop, Homecoming and countless other student projects. Helping make these activities successful was the coordinated effort on the part of the various campus clubs. These groups contributed much to life in the University community from May Morning Sing to fall open houses, spring retreats and other events held throughout the year. Each organization with its own individualistic flare helped create a closer bond between its members — new and old — and the University as a whole.

The sailing club offers its members hours of pleasant relaxation of the water.

The U.N. lounge provides a friendly atmosphere for students of all nationalities.

The Michigan State marching band prepares to line up for one of its many performances.

During the year organizations were busy planning many events. Plays and musicals were staged by some groups while others expended their energies toward philanthropic endeavors which included Christmas parties for orphans and underprivileged children. Members of some groups spent their time instructing interested students in new skills or helping them learn more about old ones. But each of these organizations acted with the interests of students in mind to make life in the University community more fulfilling for active participants.

Greater understanding is fostered by

RELIGIOUS GROUPS

Many different types of religious programs are sponsored through or by the University in which a student may participate. In these twenty religious foundations the student has an opportunity to maintain a closer contact with those of his own faith as well as gain an insight in the beliefs of others.

In addition to spiritual programs, the religious foundations also serve in an academic and social capacity. During Welcome Week all the centers hold open houses to introduce new students and their parents to the functions and activities of the group. Nearly all of the organizations sponsor Sunday night suppers with bull sessions offering students the opportunity to discuss virtually every subject from the secular to the religious. Various guest speakers and discussion groups encourage students to question and reason their religious philosophies. Some of the churches make study rooms available to members and serve coffee and doughnuts during study breaks. Throughout the year members also assist in various community functions and participate in sports activities as well as social functions.

American Baptist Students

A special project of the American Baptist Student Foundation is providing books for theological students at the Kikongo Pastoral Training Institute in the Congo, one of the American Baptist mission fields. Several letters have been exchanged with a student at Kikongo, and the group also sponsored a Congolese theological student. Through a variety of activities, the Fellowship seeks to supply a vital supplement to the several Baptist churches in the area.

Christian Science

Christian Science Organization began this year with two open houses at the Union and at the Forestry Cabin to meet interested students and plan weekly testimonial meetings for the school year. Each term a lecture is sponsored by the group in which Christian Science teachings are explained. The group also distributes literature, including the Christian Science Monitor, free of charge to dormitory residents.

ROW ONE: Taranto, Olmstead, Rabbi Zemach, Post, Kahn; ROW TWO: Adler, Cavaler, Spar, Karp, Lesgold.

Hillel Foundation

During the past year, the Hillel Foundation of B'nai B'rith has been very active in religious, social and educational capacities. The organization sponsors discussion groups, Sunday evening suppers and forums, various films and religious services on holidays, Friday evenings and Saturday mornings. The Hillel Folkways Theater presented the Tenth Man this spring. Among their list of guest speakers was Dr. Mordecai M. Kaplan, the famed theologian.

St. John's Student Center

One of the largest student parishes in the United States, Saint John's Catholic Student Center provides religious inspiration for students on campus. Members also extend their activities to mission work in Texas, New Mexico, Mexico, and South America. Last spring term St. John's was all-University champion in intramural softball. The group presents the Distinguished Speaker's Award and the Newman Leadership Award to two outstanding members.

ROW ONE: Andres, Lezak, Weipent, Cassidy, Conroy, McEvilly; ROW TWO: Nutten, Kelty, Barreras, Frommeyer, Kavanaugh, McDevitt, Conrade, Schneiden, Hutchison.

ROW THREE: Allred, Collins, Vanderwerf, Paine, Rutherford, Ives, Worrall, Garvin.

Trinity Collegiate Fellowship

Trinity Collegiate Fellowship, meeting weekly in the homes of members, provides the university student with an opportunity for social fellowship and Christian development. The group serves the community by carolling, at Christmas, for older people in Lansing area hospitals. During winter term, members presented a play entitled, "Christ in the Concrete City." The organization also sponsors an annual progressive dinner.

A pleasantly decorated lounge provides the necessary atmosphere for relaxation.

Individual achievement is recognized in

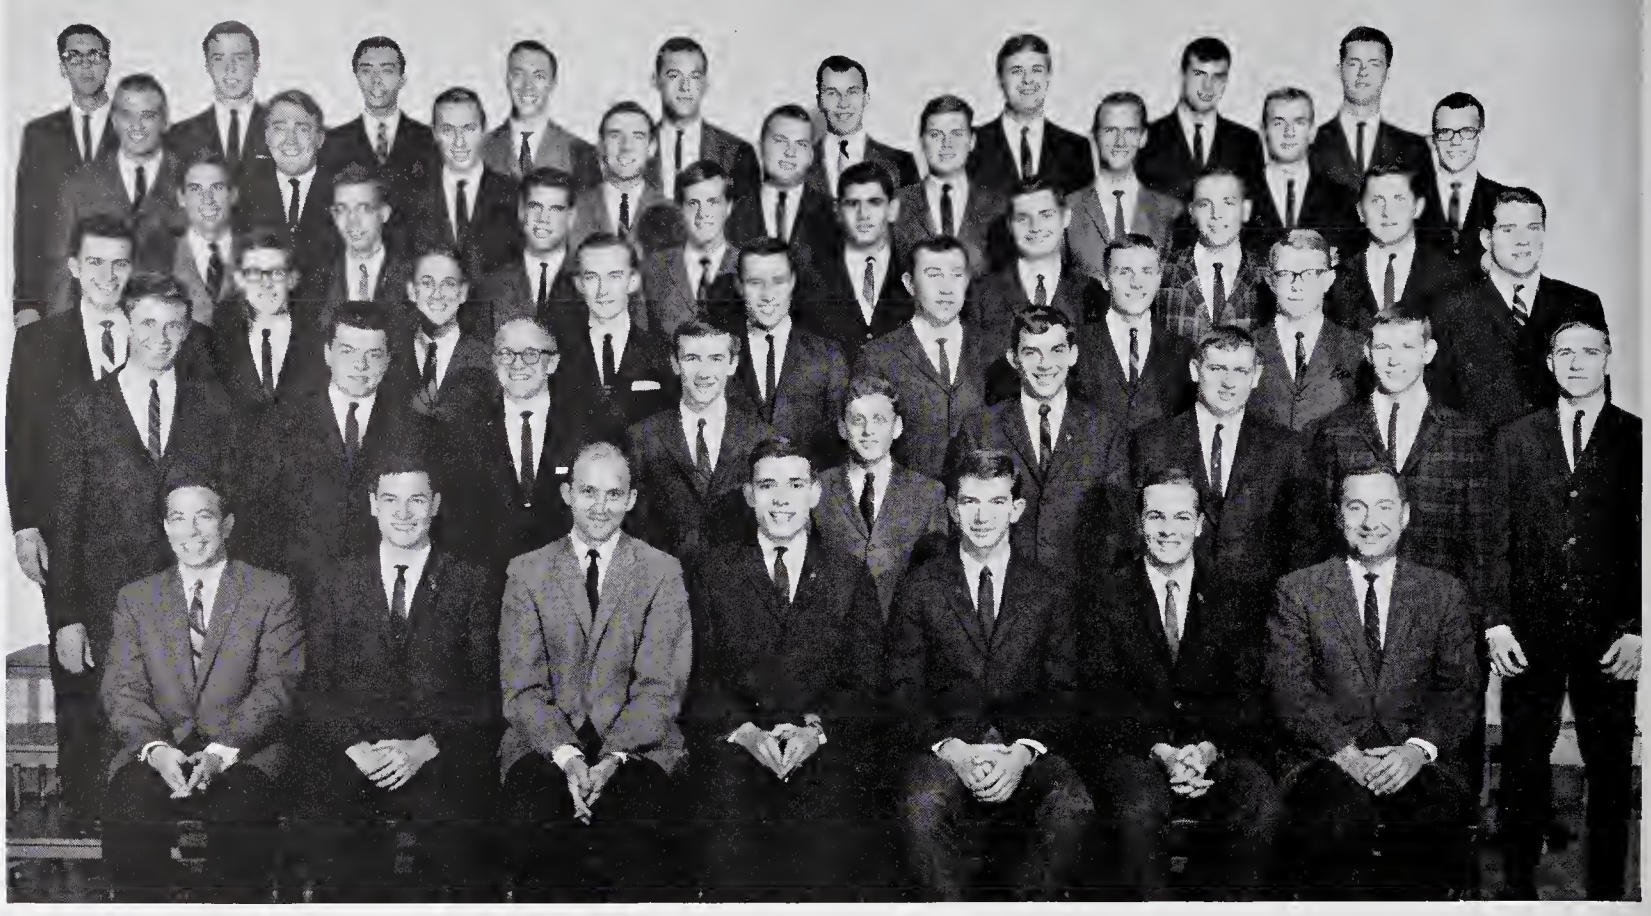

HONORARIES

Formed to recognize outstanding scholarship, leadership and service shown by students at Michigan State, the honoraries add much to university life. These 40 groups participate in almost every aspect of campus life and their services extend to many in the community. Many members donate their time to provide tutoring services for students and reading for blind students, while others assist during registration. Both the Miss MSU and the Homecoming Queen contests are planned and carried out by two men's honoraries. Favorite faculty members are honored and scholarship awards are given to outstanding students by many of the groups. Most of the professional honoraries meet solely to perpetuate their educational goals. Others promote vocational areas ranging from military science to physical education, covering such fields as chemistry, home economics and engineering. Through these groups students have the opportunity to meet and talk with leading personalities in business, government and entertainment.

The honoraries form an integral part of the University community. Their leadership, service and spirit help set the intellectual atmosphere which pervades the University.

Alpha Delta Sigma

Membership in Alpha Delta Sigma, advertising honorary, greatly increased this year as women became eligible to join. The group serves to provide extra-curricular education which included field trips to two advertising agencies. Members also gain experience in promotions and public relations through active participation. In the spring the group sponsors a sidewalk art display showing amateur work from about 50 exhibitors.

Alpha Lambda Delta

Alpha Lambda Delta, an honorary composed of freshmen women having a 3.5 all-University average, tries to promote standards of high scholarship. The women work with Tower Guard, Phi Eta Sigma and Green Helmet to provide a tutoring service on campus. Winter term, Alpha Lambda Delta sponsors a Smarty Party for all freshmen women who have acquired a 3.5 grade point during fall term.

Angel Flight

This year the women of Angel Flight assumed the task of cleaning Spartan Stadium after each of the home football games. Other service functions performed by the group included participation in the Women's Drill team and assistance at the blood drives. Members are also active socially, serving as hostesses for certain Air Force functions. Women with a 2.0 all-university average are eligible for membership.

Beta Beta Beta

Beta Beta Beta Honorary was chartered on campus in 1955 to further interest in science and scientific research. Members must have a 3.0 in their major and a 2.9 all-university grade point average. This year two library research awards and one experimental research award were given to members of the group by national headquarters. Tri Beta boasts Dr. Maynard Miller, member of the Mt. Everest expedition, among its list of guest speakers.

Beta Gamma Sigma

The purpose of Beta Gamma Sigma is to encourage and reward scholarship among business administration and commerce students and to foster integrity in the conduct of business operations. To be eligible for membership in this honorary, juniors must be in the top four per cent and seniors in the upper tenth of their classes. Robert B. Semple, President of the Wyandotte Chemicals Corporation, spoke to the group this year.

Blue Key

A national honorary fraternity for junior and senior men, Blue Key recognizes academic excellance and outstanding leadership in campus activities. Meeting regularly, the members discuss and try to solve campus problems. During winter term, the men traditionally sponsor the Miss MSU Contest which this year became a preliminary to the Miss America Contest. Membership is gained by petitions or nomination with the approval of the local chapter.

ROW ONE: Bannon, Lerman, Corey, Weersin, Baugh, Garner, Kelly; ROW TWO: Treaster, Platt, Amsler, Powers, Jackson, Wade, Harris, Van Gieson; ROW THREE: Harris, Frank, Miller, Jensen, McQuitty, Migyanka, Kelly; ROW FOUR: Proebste, Langer, Osterink, Scandirito, Wright, Armistead, Moore, Sawdey.

Circle Honorary

Women qualifying for membership in Circle Honorary must display outstanding leadership in the residence halls and maintain an all-University grade point average of 2.0. Members co-sponsor the Spinster's Spin during spring term. Other services performed by Circle Honorary include reading to the blind, providing information tables in residence halls during Welcome Week and sponsoring a tea for advisors. Members are selected during winter term.

Delta Sigma Pi

A professional fraternity, Delta Sigma Pi recognizes men in the business curriculum. Besides striving for scholarship, members are active in many service functions which include an annual Christmas party for orphans co-sponsored by Phi Gamma Delta. The Delt Sigs present a scholarship key to the senior member with the highest grade point average. This year the organization won first place in the National Efficiency Contest.

Excalibur

Excalibur, composed of thirteen outstanding senior men, recognizes the leadership and service these men have contributed to the University. The program for their meetings consists of talks by guest speakers and of group discussions among members. Each year Excalibur honors an outstanding professor by presenting him with the Distinguished Faculty Award. Members are chosen twice during the year at the Homecoming Dance and at Water Carnival.

Meetings of Excalibur are held at the Coral Gables.

Green Helmet

Green Helmet is a service and scholastic honorary composed of sophomore men and performs many duties for the University. Members offer 24 hours of their time each term for tutoring services and also provide assistance at registration. Of the top 100 freshmen scholastically, a maximum of 35 are selected for membership during spring term. Prospective members must have a 3.2 all-university average.

Green Splash

Members of Green Splash must be senior lifesavers, participate in swimming intramurals and demonstrate specified synchronized skills. The highlight of the year's activities is a water show, this year staged to the theme "American History Through Folk Music." The money earned from this event is used to sponsor benefit shows performed throughout the state and toward a donation for the Women's Collegiate Golf Tournament.

ROW ONE: Stafford, Cogger, Markland, Miller, Prince, Cushing, Pritchard, Brown, Maas, Barbour, Sterling; ROW TWO: Dash, Brown, Schauble, Robinson, Kennedy, Rae, Graening, Lundeen, McCormick, Lawton, Glove.

ROW ONE: Moore, Bontekoe, Myers, Litwin, Collins, Smith.

Kappa Delta Pi

Kappa Delta Pi recognizes education majors, graduates and undergraduates in the top fifth of their classes. Members act as hosts for high school Future Teacher groups visiting on campus. The group strives to encourage high professional, intellectual and personal standards and to recognize outstanding contributions to education. Dr. John Jamrich and Dr. Elizabeth Rusk, both deans in the College of Education, spoke to the group this year.

Mortar Board

A national organization composed of twenty-five outstanding senior women, Mortar Board is very active on campus. Each year the chapter sells calendar books to students. The money earned from this project is awarded in the form of a scholarship to a student planning to do graduate work. One of their most favorite activities is the Apple Polishers dessert at which each girl invites her favorite professor to an apple pie dessert.

ROW ONE: Vincent, Huerstel, Ramsey, Shaffer, Ellis, Langohr; ROW TWO: Dixon, Rudman, Linsday, Haugen, Houvener, Baum, Frey; ROW THREE: Crimm, Leslie, Buchalski, Tellman, Frey, Green, Lipert.

Phi Beta Lambda

The purpose of Phi Beta Lambda is to improve relations between students and faculty; to assist high school students in establishing chapters of Future Business Leaders; and to improve scholarship, student loyalty and cooperative efforts. Membership is open to any student who is enrolled in a business education course or who has taken at least one such course in the past.

Phi Gamma Nu

Phi Gamma Nu, a national women's professional business sorority, strives to promote fellowship, scholarship and extra-curricular activities. Members are voted on by the active chapter and must have a 2.2 all-University average with a 2.5 in their major field. The group attempts to expand interest in civic and professional enterprise. Each year the women co-sponsor a Christmas party for Lansing orphans with Delta Sigma Pi, business fraternity.

ROW ONE: Burch, Hobson, Lorencz, Zorn, Mills, Kryszak, Redstone; ROW TWO: Pijanowski, Manecke, Tower, Carrick, Packer, Slusne; ROW THREE: Scales, Caukin, Foss, Janetzke, Vilhauer, Malenoor.

Phi Kappa Phi

Members of Phi Kappa Phi, national scholastic honorary, are governed by the motto, "Love of learning rules the world". To carry out this goal this honorary emphasizes scholarship, higher learning and mental achievement. To be eligible for membership, a student must have a 3.7 all-university average and be enrolled in either the final quarter of his junior year or be a senior. Phi Kappa Phi also requires that prospective members must have been enrolled in the University for at least a year.

Thomas H. Osgood,
Phi Kappa Phi Vice-President.

Sigma Lambda Chi

Sigma Lambda Chi, associated with the National Association of Home Builders, recognizes outstanding students in the building materials merchandising, residential construction, and wood technology curriculum. This honorary supplies student workers for the Lansing Home Builders Show. In the Spring awards are presented to the two outstanding seniors in scholastics and activities. Sigma Lambda Chi also sponsors a student loan fund for forestry majors.

Tau Beta Pi

Juniors in the upper eighth and seniors in the upper fifth of their classes are eligible for membership in Tau Beta Pi, engineering honorary. Also eligible are alumni who have made significant contributions to the engineering field. The group acts as host for the Engineer's Reunion following the homecoming football game. This year Tau Beta Pi won third place for their display at the Engineering Exposition. An outstanding freshman is honored by the group.

Tower Guard

The forty members of Tower Guard are chosen for membership on the basis of their leadership, scholarship, character and service on campus. A sophomore honorary, Tower Guard women read to the blind, aid students in registration and provide a tutoring service. Each year the members work on Spinster's Spin in connection with the Spartan Women's League. Members are tapped at the May Morning Sing.

Xi Sigma Pi

Members of Xi Sigma Pi, forestry honorary, are currently making improvements at the Toumey Arboretum on campus. This organization honors those of high scholarship and personal achievement and aims to promote fraternal relations among forestry members. A scholarship award is presented to the top sophomore in forestry. Richard Arnold, Farm Editor at WKAR, spoke at one of their meetings on agriculture in the Soviet Union.

Common interests are shared in

ORGANIZATIONS

As Michigan State continues to expand, student clubs and organizations play an increasingly important role in University life. These groups provide the student with valuable extra-curricular opportunities which add to the knowledge gained in classroom studies.

The diversity of these organizations permits expression in many fields. Various vocational associations, ranging from engineering to agriculture, assist students in furthering their knowledge of information related to their future occupation. Academic subjects are stressed in history and foreign language clubs. Sports and recreational groups are open to any student interested in developing athletic talents or acquiring new skills, while special fine arts societies promote the study of drama, music, dance and other cultural areas. Foreign students are also encouraged to participate, especially in the International organizations which include nations from every corner of the globe.

African Students

The Association of African Students is organized to develop a spirit of cooperation, initiative and intelligent leadership among African students. It fosters cultural understanding and cooperation between African and American students at Michigan State University. Members participate in many of the joint activities of the international organizations including the Internation Festival.

Agriculture Council

The aims and purposes of the Agricultural Council are to work for the general interest and welfare of the College of Agriculture. Each term, the organization sponsors at least one agricultural activity. Farmer's Week and Small Animals' Week are also managed by the group. Members of the Council are representatives of recognized campus agriculture clubs.

ROW ONE: Mann, Zech, Fritz, Frieberg, Smith, Hecht; ROW TWO: Brown, Mackson, Waite, Thar, Roger, Dowd, Twardzik; ROW THREE: Sands, Kreutzman, Rautiola, Lilly, Alexander, Bull, Hindman.

ASAE

To be eligible for membership in the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, one must have earned eight credits in agricultural engineering or be majoring in the field. The organization aims at supplementing the student's education by various activities, including the Engineering Exposition held during spring term. ASAE members also participate in Farmer's Week activities, operating an information booth which displays new aspects of agricultural engineering.

ASCE

The purpose of the American Society of Civil Engineers is to unite civil engineering students at Michigan State University. The ASCE also strives to acquaint members with the civil engineering profession by helping them gain professional contacts and associations. In order to join, perspective members must have attained sophomore standing. Two of the most outstanding guest speakers this year were Lt. Commander H. J. Stites and Mr. Edward Servarias.

ROW ONE: Market, Stoddard, Allen, Doblech, Comrade, Turner; ROW TWO: Oehler, Mills, Bugher, Alden, Lee; ROW THREE: Beckman, Weber, Brzezinski, Culp, Gross.

Block and Bridle

Block and Bridle members begin each year with a Student-Faculty night, an informal get-together which features a steak dinner. The group, composed of students interested in livestock, participates in the Little International Livestock Show and spring and fall livestock and meats judging contests. The highlight of the year's activities is the Spring Round-Up, considered one of the best horse shows in Michigan. The group awards scholarships to a deserving freshman, junior, and senior.

Any horseman knows that careful grooming of his horse is important.

Campus 4-H

Campus 4-H assists in various Agricultural Council activities. Members usher at the Agriculture Honors Convocation and participate in the International Festival, Small Animals Day and National 4-H Club Week. During Farmers' Week 4-Hers man information booths and usher at the talent show. At Christmas they present a food basket to a needy family in the Lansing area. The group also acts as a service group for state 4-H clubs.

Forestry Club

Winter term beards are a common sight among Forestry Club members as they prepare for the annual beard-growing contest at the Foresters' Shindig. At this dance, members and their dates dress in rustic attire. Each fall, members try to outwit University of Michigan students at a liar's banquet sponsored jointly by the two schools. The club placed fourth in the Midwestern Foresters' conclave. Larry Buloch was named the Outstanding Senior Contributor.

HPER Club

Any girl majoring or minoring in physical education is eligible for membership in the HPER Club. Members try to provide an opportunity for service and social activities. This year's projects included an orientation day for high school students interested in physical education. The group also made a donation to the United States Olympic Fund with profits from the vending machines at the Women's IM building. Each year the outstanding senior is honored.

India Club

India Club, the largest organized nationality group on campus, strives to promote the understanding and exchange of Indian culture and tradition through various activities. Members sponsor the Diwal (Festival of Lights) celebration with a banquet featuring Indian food and entertainment. They also celebrate Independence Day during the summer and Republic Day. Members participate and compete in the International Festival.

International Club

Many long lasting international friendships have their beginning in the International Club, the largest club on campus. Open to all interested students, the group invites various nationality clubs to put on programs of dancing and singing at their weekly meetings. The organization sponsors three main events each year — the International Ball during fall term, the International dinner winter term and the International Festival spring term.

Medical Technologists

The Student Chapter of the American Society of Medical Technologists assists the student in obtaining a better understanding of this field and contact with the professional ASMT before graduation. This year the club sponsored various talks by Lansing doctors who discussed such topics as cancer research, med. tech. internship and drug research. Members participate in a spring term honors convocation for veterinary and medical technology.

MSU Flying Club

The goal of the MSU Flying Club is to promote aviation on and off campus. To carry out this goal, they provide an opportunity for any interested student or staff member to receive flying lessons. During winter break, the club completed purchase of two airplanes, a trainer and a cross-country cruiser, which are hangered at Capital City Airport along with the club's other two aircraft. Winged Spartans participate in the Activities Carnival and Inter-collegiate Flying meets.

The first flight of a new plane is exciting for all.

Marketing Club

Founded in 1953, the MSU Marketing Club strives to present and discuss aspects of marketing not found in the classroom in addition to offering students first hand experience in managing an organization. The club acts as host for the executive sales management seminar. Members also sponsor the National Intercollegiate Marketing competition with 28 participating schools. This year's theme was "Uniqueness in Marketing".

MSU Varsity Club

Composed of men who have won a letter in varsity competition, the MSU Varsity Club works to provide leadership service for the University. The Club sponsors an annual basketball clinic for high school students and a chicken fry in the spring. The men also entertain a group of orphans by taking them to the Green and White Football game. Varsity Club honors the outstanding senior of the organization and chooses the Outstanding Coach-of-the-Year.

ROW ONE: McCollam, Sterlin, Collins, Walsh, Juday, Jenkins, Smith, Christoff; ROW TWO: McClure, Gobel, Lawrence, Mulchay, Kaines, Lewin, Hunt, Ganz; ROW THREE: Noble, Biedenbach, Warner, McLane, Levin, Janes, Ford, Erickson; ROW FOUR: Sherwood, Bach, Billings, Enustun, Migyanka, Kaye, Peters, Devereaux, Hargreaves; ROW FIVE: Proebstle, Maidlow, Krzemienski, Jamieson, Ross, Flynn, Leonard, Roberts.

ROW ONE: Jenning, Miller, Moore, Hoskins, Jenkins, Green.

NAACP

Through membership drives and campus contributions the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People raised money to donate to the Mississippi Freedom Fund Drive and the Relief Drive. The NAACP also presented a talent show in the spring and a play, profits from which were given to the AUSG summer project in Mississippi. This year such outstanding speakers as Roy Wilkins and Dr. James Hooker addressed the group.

Packaging Society

Any student interested in packaging and its related fields is eligible for membership in the Packaging Society which promotes packaging knowledge among students, faculty and industry. This year, members participated in the Activities Carnival where they laminated I.D.'s as a service to students. The Packaging Society presents awards to the outstanding packaging man and company-of-the-year.

Promenaders

Although MSU is no longer primarily an agricultural college, there is still much emphasis on the rural ways. For instance, the MSU Promenaders have done much to keep square dancing alive on campus and in the community. The members present demonstrations both on and off campus to promote good public relations for the University while having fun at the same time. The only requirements for admission are interest and the ability to dance.

Spartan Women's League

A very active group on campus, Spartan Women's League participates in the Tower Guard Breakfast, Activities Carnival, and Who's Who and What's What. This service organization also co-sponsors the fall-term blood drive and assists in the Spinster's Spin along with the women's honoraries. Mrs. John A. Hannah, a charter member, spoke on the beginnings of SWL at the fall term initiation during which the most active active and two outstanding pledges were honored.

SNEA

The Student National Education Association is organized for education majors interested in the professional aspects of education. Each year the Michigan Education Association grants a scholarship to a member of the group. Through SNEA members receive professional affiliation with local, state and national education organizations. Members sponsor a Future Teacher Association Field Day on campus.

2 x 4 Club and NHBA

Members of the NHAB and 2x4 Club sponsor a booth at both the Chicago and Grand Rapids conventions of the National Association of Home Builders. Members also work at the Lansing Homarama. During the spring the organization enjoys a steak barbeque and plays a baseball game. Meetings usually feature a realtor or carpenter as guest speaker. Les Houck was awarded the NHAB Foundation Scholarship.

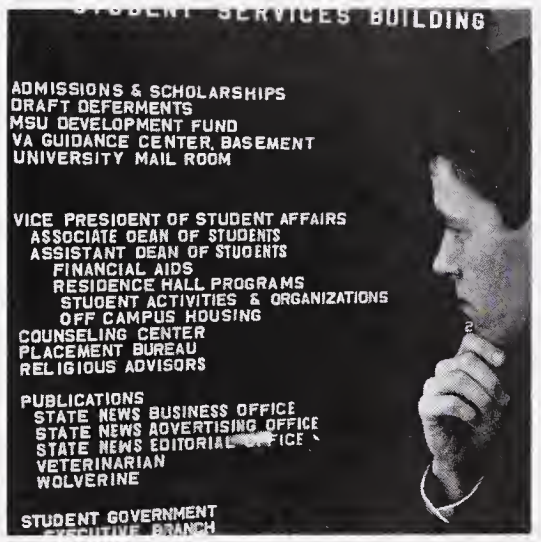

ROW ONE: Forthofer, Kelly, Mills, Houck, Lloyd; ROW TWO: Hawkins, Hornburg, Mackin, Dragich, Fruman, Dodick; ROW THREE: Sands, Brown, Day, Line, Prucha, Troxel, Drone.

STUDENT SERVICES

Various kinds of student services are available to both full and part-time students at Michigan State University. Ranging from student publications to a tutoring program and small loans service, they provide an opportunity for closer association between the student and the functioning of the University. The Placement Bureau not only helps graduating seniors find employment, but also assists students looking for part-time or summer jobs. Students are offered an insurance plan under the direction of All-University Student Government. Mimeographing, thermofaxing and silk screening are available to students at low cost. In addition, AUSG sponsors pep rallies, parades, a tutoring program and the inter-University College Bowl. Student publications, including the Wolverine, State News and MSU Veterinarian, inform the University community of local, national and international events. Class activities are planned and carried out by the Senior, Junior and Frosh-Soph Councils, while other organizations coordinate activities for Greek, dormitory and off-campus affairs.

State News Editorial

Beginning with the Welcome Week Edition in September and continuing through the school year, the Michigan State News Editorial Staff kept students informed of events from the student union to the Soviet Union. As a result of their efforts the State News was awarded the Pacemaker Award for the third year in a row. The paper also received an All-American rating for spring term, awarded to only one other college in the nation.

State News Advertising

Members of the State News advertising staff are not only responsible for selling space to local merchants, but also for preparation of their advertisement layouts. Realizing that Michigan State students comprise a substantial part of the purchasers in the area, the advertising staff embarked on many campaigns to bring this fact to the attention of businessmen. The classified section is also handled by this group.

IFC

Scholarship, brotherhood, community service, leadership, athletics and social life describe life in the 32 fraternities at Michigan State which are bound together by the Inter-Fraternity council. This organization is in charge of various issues regarding the Greeks including requirements for pledging and colonization of new fraternities on campus. IFC sponsors two scholarships for foreign students. In addition, the Council presents an award to the outstanding alumnus-of-the-year.

One can find contestants competing for the title of "Ugliest" only on a college campus.

Panhellenic Council

Panhellenic Council, the governing body of the sorority system, spends much of its time improving and developing rush rules. This year the Panhel made it possible for girls who did not sign up for formal rush to participate in deferred rush providing they met the grade requirements. The group sponsors various philanthropic projects which include a scholarship for a foreign student. The women also made hand puppets as Halloween gifts for underprivileged children.

PanHel provides each rushee with a booklet explaining MSU's Greek system.

Fall teas give rushees an opportunity to visit each sorority house.

ROW ONE: Keyser, Osterhout, Dusseau, Harris, Mlotok, Winslow; ROW TWO: Price, Costa, Boyajian, Cope, Grenzke; ROW THREE: Peck, Scott, Lunn, Haack, Breinling.

Greek Week

Greek Week Executive Board plans, organizes, and carries out all the operations of Greek Week. The event was altered somewhat this year with more projects and contests to strengthen unity between the fraternities and sororities on campus. Awards are given by the board for the Ugliest Greek, the two outstanding Greek seniors and the winners of Greek Sing. Highlighting the week's activities is the Greek Feast, at which Greeks and their dates enjoy a chicken barbeque.

Men's Hall Association

Men's Halls Association is comprised of the presidents of each of the men's residences. The group sponsors mixers for freshmen in three dormitories during orientation week in the fall. The association also provides for the finance and the direction of Block S, the freshman card section at football games. When high school students come to Michigan State for the Alumni Distinguished Scholarship test, MHA takes care of the room arrangements.

ROW ONE: Wingo, Amsler, Wright, Doolittle, Bond, Preston; ROW TWO: Rasmussen, Sink, Maust, Milne, Hnatek, Rogin; ROW THREE: Floate, Wallace, Guthrie, Foodym, Terry, Schimp.

AWS

Associated Women Students is the organization serving the interests of MSU coeds by establishing a representative form of government. Membership is automatic for a woman upon completion of her registration, although the assembly, consisting of delegates from each living unit act as spokesmen. This group seeks to coordinate programs and activities for women as well as interpret the standards and rules of the University. The executive power of AWS is vested in seven officers. These women are elected by the assembly from qualified petitioners. This year the officers began operations under the auspices of a new constitution making their objectives more meaningful.

ROW ONE: Greenawalt, Carman, McLaughlin, Jucius, Kearney, Reinka.

AWS Organizations Council

The Organizations Council of AWS is composed of the First Vice-President, representatives from various women's organizations and complex representatives. The members of this committee are responsible for the planning, execution and evaluation of all AWS programs. The group also coordinates all activities of women's organizations and selects chairmen of projects sponsored by and originating in the council.

Judicial Council

Composed of the Second Vice-President and the chairman of each complex board, the Judicial Council acts as the highest court of appeals for judicial cases. Members study methods of handling cases and recommend policies and standards of conduct for Michigan State University women. The group is also concerned with present procedures of AWS and how they may be improved. The Judicial Council has jurisdiction over the Complex and Residence Board Courts.

ROW ONE: Obeshau, Bauer, Kearney, Meadows.

Women's Inter-Residence Council

Women's Inter-residence Council is the governing group for the women's residence halls. Members, elected from each dormitory, co-ordinate all-university activities for students living in residence halls and discuss areas of interest and concern to them. WIC sponsors officers' workshops and receptions and organizes the Inter-residence sing. During Welcome Week members co-sponsor three freshmen mixers. The Council also provides Homecoming trophies for the women's halls and co-ed division.

Presidents' Council

The Presidents' Council of the Women's Inter-Residence Council meets three to four times a term for the purpose of discussing and working out problems among the dormitories. This year the group, composed of the presidents of the women's dorms, is concerned with re-evaluation in an attempt to remain a unified, useful organization in the enlarging university community. The women also promote cooperation between dorm and campus organizations.

ROW ONE: Lloyd, Seidman, Parish, Johnson, Soderman, Winship; ROW TWO: Castle, Stevens, Klinger, Heisch, Leonard; ROW THREE: Wiley, Rosenow, Smith, Taunt, Jucius, Braids.

AUSG Executive Officers

All-University Student Government Executive officers serve as the communications link between AUSG and the chief organizations on campus. Members include the presidents of AWS, MHA, WIC, IFC, Panhellenic and Union Board, as well as the editor of the State News. Through this group the president of AUSG can relay new decisions to students at MSU.

AUSG Steering Committee

The executive branch of All-University Student Government is presided over by the steering committee. The six members of the organization are appointed by the president of AUSG and make most of the policy decisions not only for the executive administration, but also for student government as a whole. In this committee new ideas for a more effective student government are suggested, considered and tried out.

ROW ONE: Buchholz, Platt, Harris, McQuitty, Jensen, Newcomer.

AUSG Cabinet

The AUSG Cabinet, directed by the executive vice-president is responsible for planning such programs as the Provost Lecture series, College Bowl competition, Spartan Spirit activities and Homecoming events. The organization is also in charge of re-evaluation of AUSG to make it a body that can more effectively serve student needs. Other duties of the group include keeping files of the charters of student organizations and conducting AUSG elections.

AUSG Congress

The All-University Student Government Congress was created to promote better communications between the students and the faculty of MSU. Members represent each of the dormitories, off-campus living units and sororities and fraternities. Congress votes on money appropriations for student organizations on campus. They also decide on granting charters to newly formed clubs and discuss special projects in which students could participate.

AUSG Judiciary

The All-University Student Judiciary gives students the opportunity to take part in judicial decisions on campus. Members, selected from each class on the basis of petition, hear both legislative and disciplinary appeals. They decide on what action should be taken and make their recommendations to the office of the Dean, who has the final approval. The Dean's office has made few reversals of these decisions.

Student Traffic Court

A branch of the All-University Student Government Judiciary, Student Traffic Court, hears appeals of students regarding traffic violations of campus driving, of parking or of failing to register a car. The group is also responsible for making rulings such as requiring every student to register his car. Members are selected by the chief justice and the president of AUSG on the basis of petitions and interviews.

ROW ONE: Meyer, Wright, LeBlanc: ROW TWO: Fisher, Bain, Amerman, Pacer.

Senior Council

Senior Council members, selected on the basis of petition and an interview in the spring of their junior year, supervise the various senior class activities. The group tries to interest more seniors in planning and participating in these activities including Senior Swingout and Commencement. This year a performance by folksinger Judy Collins was also sponsored. The council also selects the seniors-of-the-week and of-the-year.

Water Carnival

After considering various ideas, the Executive Committee chose the "De-losers of Grandeur" for the 1965 Water Carnival. To carry out this theme the living units were urged to construct their floats representing famous losers of the ages. Trophies are awarded both in residence halls and Greek living units to give both groups a fair opportunity in competition. Water Carnival, sponsored by the Senior Class, donates its profits for a class gift.

ROW ONE: Lansky, Freeman, Jackson, Goldstone, Kearney, Wizel; ROW TWO: Frank, Rowe, Lerman, Stealy, Strange; ROW THREE: Newcomer, Osterhout, Sockol, Musmannd, Lishnoff, Sankovich.

J-Council

A new innovation of the Junior Council was the establishment of a council-at-large which coordinates the various activities of the general council with dormitory and off-campus residents. This year the group sponsored a Halloween hootenanny and leadership conference for students. To be eligible for membership juniors must have a 2.2 all-university average. During spring term the outstanding junior is chosen.

J-Hop

Decorations including red and gold satin, diamond dust columns, crystal chandeliers and a 12 foot high water fountain transformed the Auditorium into a plush speakeasy of the Twenties for the 1965 J-Hop. This dance, sponsored by the 25 members of the J-Hop Executive Committee, featured Les Elgart's dance band. During intermission the ten semi-finalists for Miss MSU were announced and the comedy duo of Hap and Joel provided entertainment.

Frosh-Soph Council

As the governing body of both the freshmen and sophomore classes, the Frosh-Soph Council provides varied services and activities for members of these classes. The Council publishes a newsletter, the Frosh-Soph Focus; sponsors the Spartan Ambassador program; and organizes a forum for the spring elections called "Meet the Candidates." Parents' Weekend during spring term is also the responsibility of the Frosh-Soph Council. To be eligible for membership in this group, a freshman or sophomore must submit a petition and then be interviewed by the executive board consisting of the sophomore officials and chairmen of the committees.

The Frosh-Soph Council uses their newsletter to inform underclassmen.

Union Board Directors

The Union Board Directors, chosen from Union Board members, head the Board and are responsible for its policy decisions. The group is also responsible for communicating with the Union building management regarding the Board's activities. Seven committee chairmen, three Union Board officers and two members-at-large make up the membership of the Union Board Directors.

Union Board

Coordinating the various facilities of the Student Union Building is the Union Board. In the past it has sponsored a ride board, information booth, dancing and bridge lessons and charter flights to Europe. This year the group participated in the Winter Carnival which included events ranging from a snow sculpture contest to donkey basketball. They also were in charge of publicity and sponsorship of the mock presidential election.

ROW ONE: Kline, Davidson, Mellem, Ellis, Heyman, McComb; ROW TWO: Smelker, Howard, Highstreet, Wile, Englebert, Steinbaugh; ROW THREE: Winterhalter, Lind, Byrd, Gruber, Smith, Osterhout, Kerbawy.

Victory and defeat: A varied year

ATHLETICS

From its humble beginnings as a competitor in athletics in 1858 and its entry into intramurals in 1919, Michigan State today offers a staggering array of sports facilities and activities which puts it in the forefront of college athletic programs. Growth of these programs has been and will continue to be dependent upon many people. Not to be overlooked, however, is the degree to which the students themselves have put forth their efforts to make Michigan State athletics an integral part of university life and general well-being.

Athletics Means Action and People

Athletics at Michigan State have long reflected the strength and vitality inherent in an institution of its size and quality. Available to some 36,000 members of the University community, MSU's athletic program boasts many of the finest facilities in the nation for the physical and mental development of its students, faculty and staff.

Outstanding intercollegiate, intramural and physical education programs have contributed meaningfully to the well-being of the University. In the forefront of these programs are the men who have participated in the Olympics or broken athletic records in intercollegiate competition; but beyond the recognized varsity athletes are the far greater numbers of students who have participated without the reward of fame. They too have contributed greatly to the general well-being of the University community while deriving personal satisfaction from competition.

Excitement Runs High

Michigan State's entire sports program, from clubs to intramurals to varsity, has been marked by rapid growth which has brought physical fitness and the spirit of competition within the reach of every student. The athletic program has become truly a major phase of university life, second only to academic work for students and faculty. On football weekends the pulse of the campus quickens as the grid battle draws nearer and is reflected in numerous rallies, dances and other activities. Throughout the year, sports club activities, hard-fought IM matches and the thrill of State downing longtime foes takes some of the dreariness out of grueling class schedules and exam blues. For alumni, visitors, area children and parents too, Michigan State's gigantic and varied athletic program has come to be a vital part of the collegiate scene.

VARSITY SPORTS

Back in the 1890's when MAC was a fledging agricultural college, varsity teams were often so small and lacking in talent that they were forced to play against YMCA and high school teams. Today, in contrast, a major football game is likely to fill the $4 million Spartan Stadium with the cheering of more than 76,000 fans, bringing gate receipts of more than $200,000. At present there are 14 intercollegiate varsity teams on campus. A great portion of the credit given these teams rests in the able hands of Athletic Director Clarence "Biggie" Munn, who brought MSU athletics to national prominence as the coach of the 1955 Rose Bowl team. With at least four sports per term throughout the regular University year, there is always plenty of excitement for the spectator at State —especially as MSU rises to break the old records of the past and set the pace for the new. Sports, promoting State throughout the world, have also acted as a proving ground for future professionals and coaches for both high schools and colleges.

Football

An air of pessimism hung over the Spartan gridiron as the 1964 season got underway. With the loss of 14 lettermen from the 1963 team, best guesses pointed to a mediocre Big Ten season. At the close of the season, predictions proved valid as Michigan State compiled a 4-5 record, placing sixth in the conference. This was the first losing season in six years.

The blame could not be placed on any one weakness, for inexperience permeated both the line and the backfield which had to be rebuilt. However, the season was a winning one in many ways. It saw the Spartans break records of long standing, place high in the all-college performances and win invitations to play in the various bowl games throughout the nation.

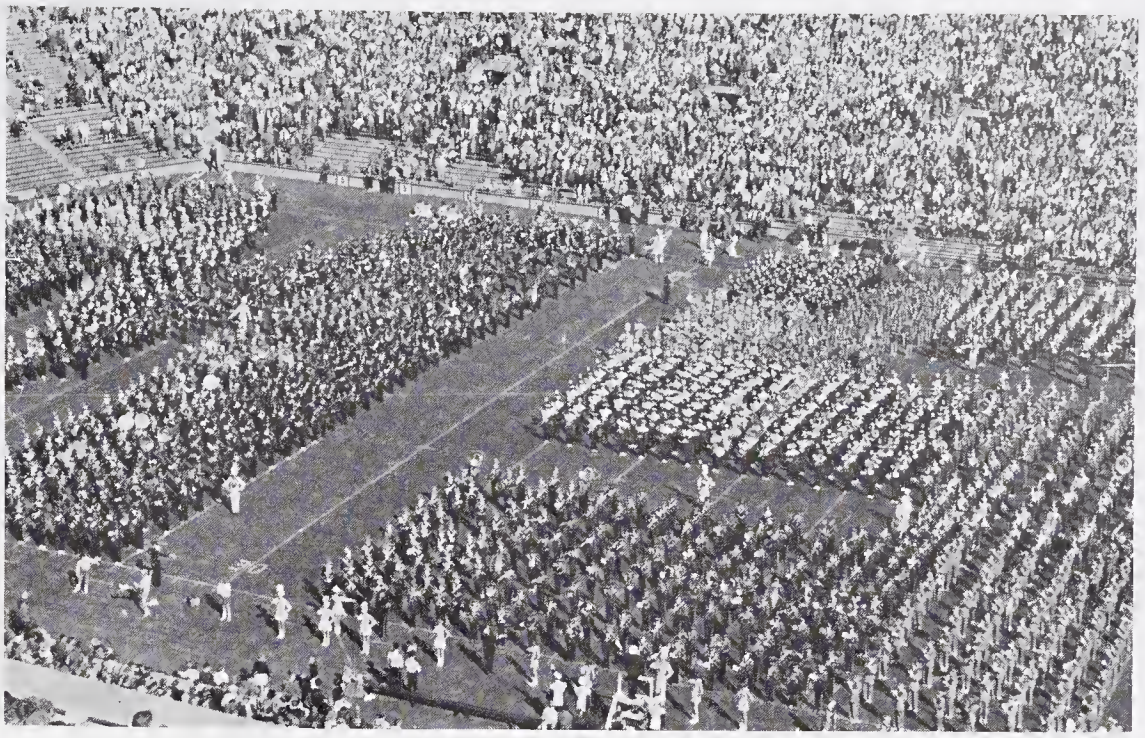

The Spartans traveled to Chapel Hill to face North Carolina in the first game of the 1964 season. Michigan State's young team played the fourth quarter with impressive football, but fell short in its bid for a comeback victory as the Tarheels won 21-15.

The highly-ranked University of Southern California team invaded East Lansing as MSU started its home season. Fine performances from the Spartans made for a 17-7 romp over So. Cal., and for this feat, Duffy Daugherty was named UPI Coach of the Week.

For the 57th gridiron contest, traditional rival Michigan came to East Lansing to battle the Green and White. The day was Michigan's in an action-packed game which was only settled in the last two-and-one-half minutes of play when the Wolverines charged the Spartan line to score the winning touchdown and a 17-10 win.

The following week, with a 1-2 record, the Spartans were once again on foreign turf, playing Indiana. MSU's offensive did its best job for the season, but the injury-riddled defense had a letdown. At the afternoon's end, the Spartans were handed a 20-27 loss despite a great effort by quarterback Steve Juday who hit 16 of 20 pass attempts for 187 yards and three touchdowns.

The Marching Band's Patterns in Motion depend upon explicitly following the directions of Director Falcone.

Northwestern, led by great passer Tom Myers, came to Spartan Stadium October 24. The offense flashed its brightest in the first quarter, producing 17 points to wrap up the game in a hurry. Thereafter, the action resulted in a single touchdown for each team. The Spartan eleven won an easy victory of 24-6, sending the Wildcats scrambling home.

State was on the road the following week as they faced an ever-improving Wisconsin team. It was a Halloween treat for the Spartans as they posted a 22-6 triumph. Halfback Dick Gordon ground out a new MSU rushing record, while end Gene Washington hauled in seven of Juday's 12 passes to set a Spartan Big Ten game mark and tie the all-time MSU record.

The last home game of the season was played against the Boilermakers from Purdue. MSU's first touchdown came just before the half when Harold Lucas caught a blocked Purdue punt and loped into the end zone for a touchdown. Dick Gordon ran for a new record and Clinton Jones scored two touchdowns as the final tally showed a Spartan victory of 21-7. The Spartans now had a 4-3 record.

With two games left on their sehedule, the Green and White went to Notre Dame for the NCAA national television "Game of the Week." A frustrated first half was followed by a second half 51-yard pass from Juday to Washington for State's only touchdown. The final seore of 34-7 climaxed an Irish afternoon for the No. 1 rated team.

A last and desperate stand against Illinois found a 4-4 reeord Spartan team battling for a winning season. Despite a good performance by halfbaek Clinton Jones and pass-receiver Gene Washington, odds seemed against the players from MSU. Diek Gordon, senior groundgainer, was held short in his efforts, but did gain 741 yards for the season, making him one of the all-time Big Ten standouts. It seems that individuals could not make the game or the season a winning one, though, as the Fighting Illini blanked MSU 16-0. The Spartans finished the season with a 4-5 overall record for their first losing season in six years.

A Season to Rebuild

Basketball

There are years when teams simply have to rebuild, and this was the case with the MSU Cagers this past winter. Gone from last year's squad were a number of outstanding players, notably Pete Gent, the second highest scorer in MSU history. Last year's season boasted an MSU team that had the third highest scoring of any team in the nation, but that team finished fourth in the Big Ten Conference. This year the Green and White finished at the bottom with a 1-13 record and a 5-18 over-all record for the season.

According to Coach Forddy Anderson, prospects for the season didn't look good from the start of the 23-game schedule. Lack of height and ability were given as the reasons for the losing series.

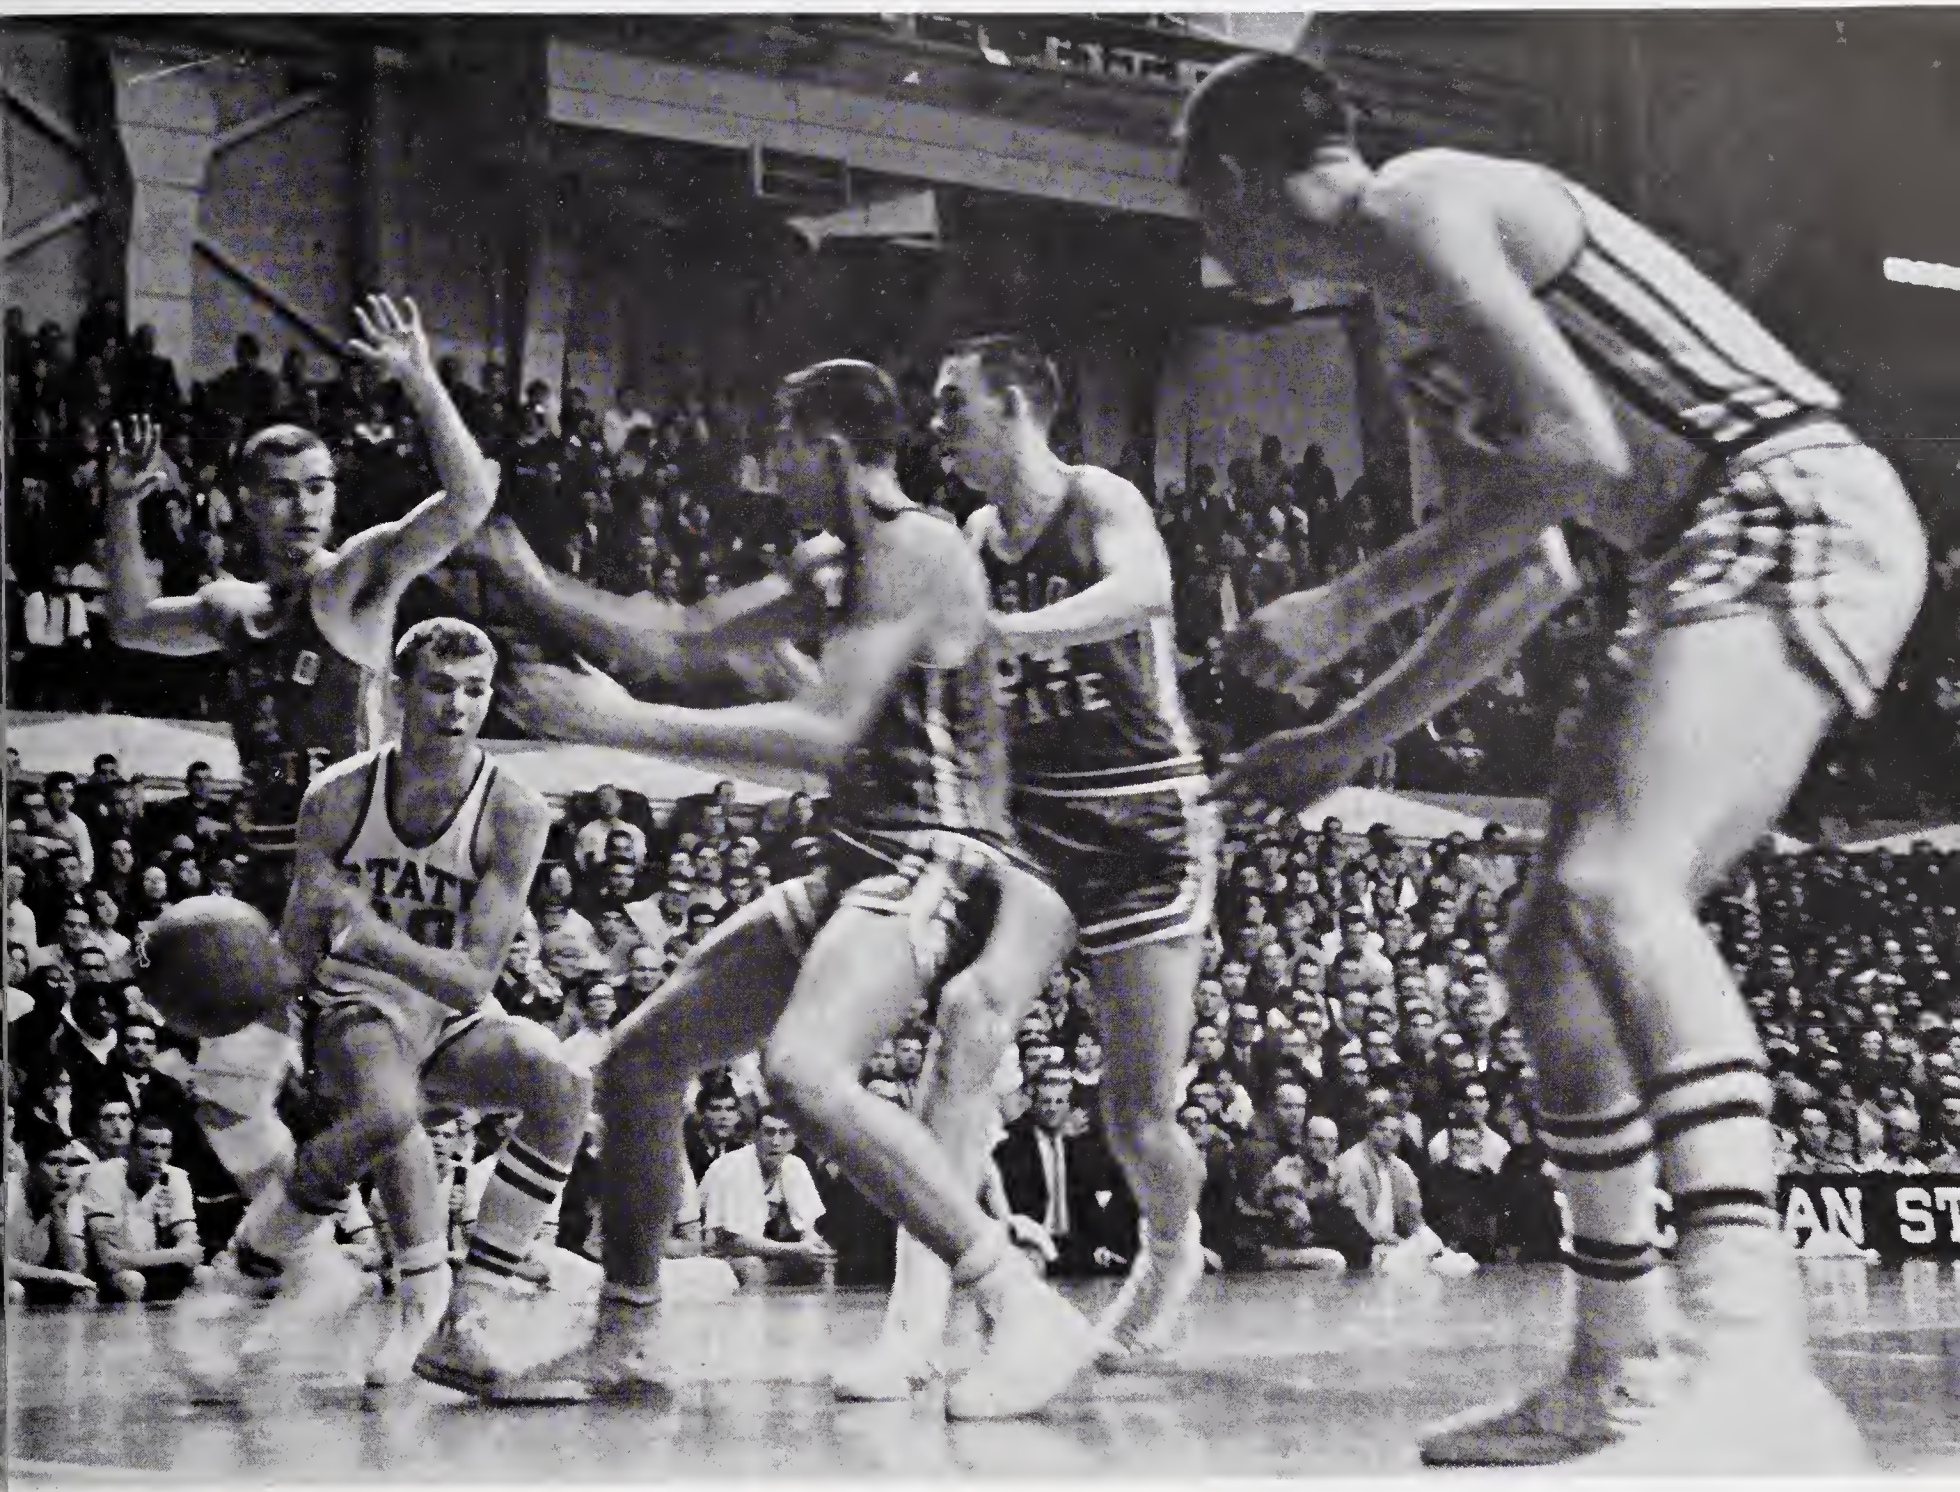

The season started with a two-game win which was followed by a three-game losing streak. As the season progressed, it was more of a downward sloping team that vainly tried to bolster the Spartan record. The most disappointing aspects in early action play were sloppy, erratic ball-handling and offensive rebounding; but on the positive side there was good defensive rebounding and balanced scoring. Toward the season's end, Michigan invaded the East Lansing campus for a thrilling game, placing the number two team in the nation in a precarious position against the hard-driving Spartans. The game went into an overtime, won by the Wolverines by a score of 103-98. Though Michigan won the game, the Spartans won the praises.

The Spartans could not do what was anticipated in their last game of the season. MSU traveled to the University of Illinois for their worst defeat of the year. Illinois poured in 75 points in the second half for an overwhelming defeat of the Spartans by 121-89. The point total against State was the largest ever amassed, ending the year by tying the record set in 1950 for most losses in a season.

To ignore the good play by individual players would be a mistake, however. Guard Stan Washington scored 490 points this season, the third best Spartan single season effort of all time. Efforts by center Bill Curtis and Captain Marcus Sanders were also near the top of MSU's all-time records.

Prospects for next year point to a successful season for the Spartans due to the return of many good players and the good potential talent from one of the best freshman teams State has ever had.

Baseball

The pre-season training trip gave a good indication of MSU's final baseball standings last spring. A 7-2 record bloomed into an over-all 22-12 record as the Spartans finished fourth in a Big Ten conference tie. The main source of strength was in hitting, but inconsistent pitching and defense play intermittently hampered Spartan efforts.

Led by pacesetter regular Jerry Sutton with a .383 average, the Spartans batted a commendable .297 over-all average. Pitching totals gave Spartan hurlers a 3.34 earned run average, far below opponents averages. John Krasnan was the season's number one starter, hurling some 82 innings, winning six games and losing two.

Unreliable pitching and lack of a tight defense was evident as the Spartans lapsed into a disastrous slump against league-leaders Minnesota and Michigan in the second half of the season. Efforts by pitcher Bill Collins and clutch hitting by Dick Billings and Bruce Look revived the Spartans for a long-awaited victory over Michigan which ended a five-game losing streak and a six-game loss over-all.

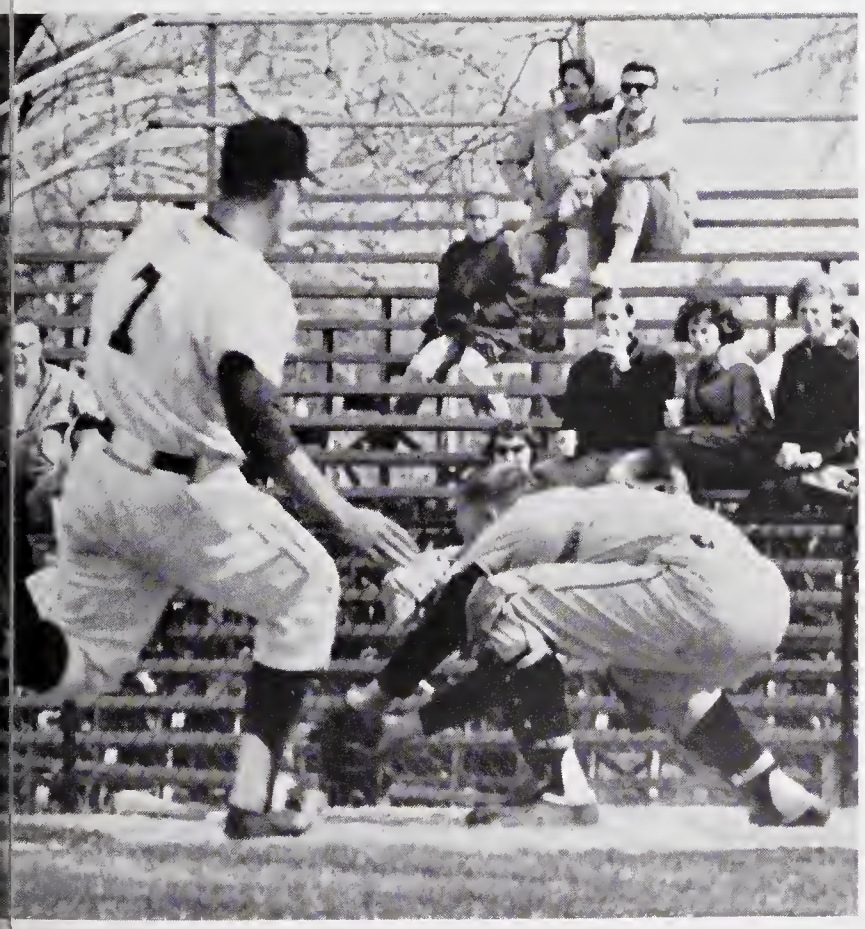

Post-season honors were received by four Spartan ballplayers who were named to All-Big Ten teams.

Soccer

Spartan soccermen did what other teams seemingly could not do this fall, posting a 10-1-2 record, their best ever compiled, and brought runner-up NCAA honors to the East Lansing campus. An indication of their immense strength is evident when comparing the number of points scored during these games: MSU-67 vs. 8 for all opponents.

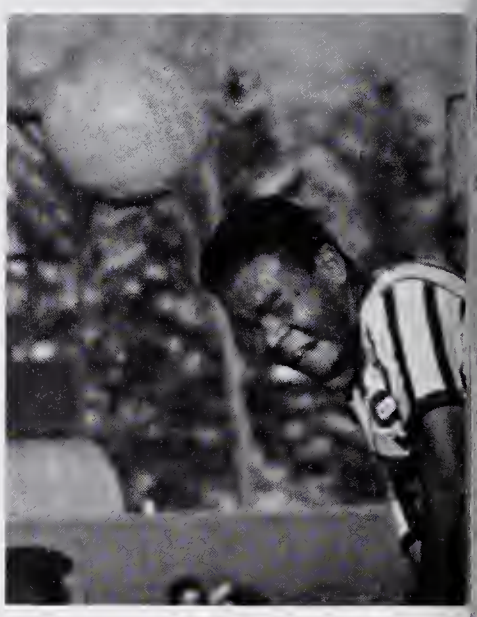

The Booters' success this year was due to a well-balanced attack and a stronger-than-usual defense. The individual players were another reason for the Spartan success led by All-American George Janes. Among other outstanding players were Clare Deboer, Nick Krat and Sydney Alozie.

MSU's only ties came against Indiana and perennial power St. Louis. A great NCAA effort vs. Navy led to a 1-0 loss, due partly to injuries that had plagued the team all season.

Cross-Country Final

The 1963 Big Ten champions from MSU had a strong returning team this year. Coach Dittrich's Harriers won four out of five dual meets, being beaten only by a powerful Notre Dame squad. Victories were scored over Wisconsin, Minnesota, Indiana and Northern Illinois, and chances looked good for repeating the title as Big Ten champions.

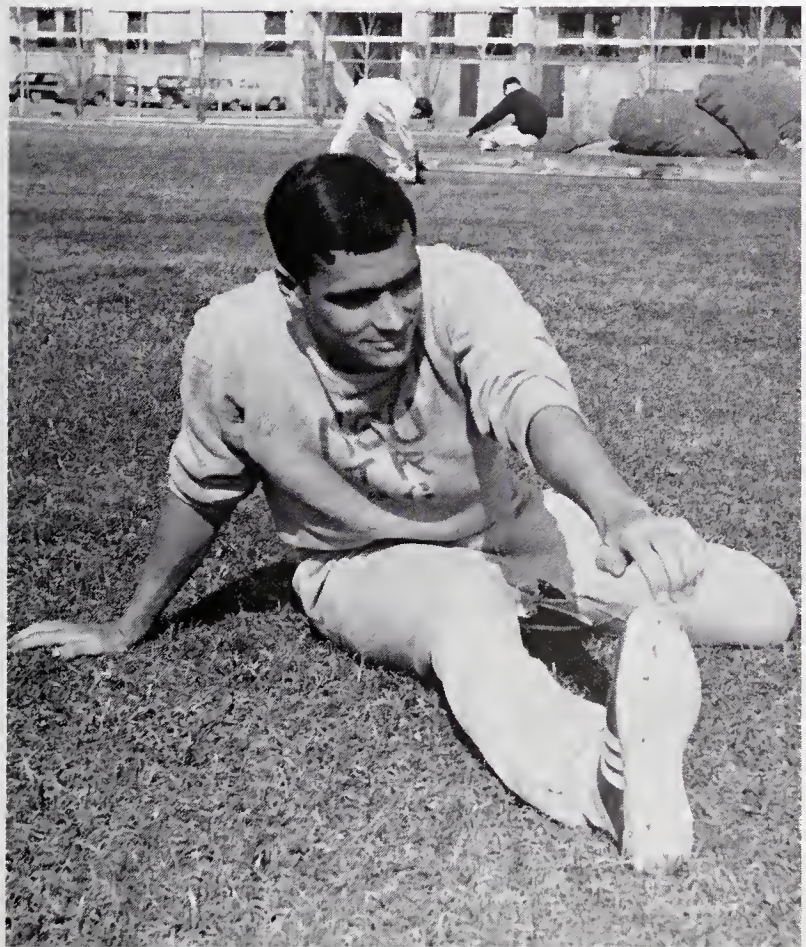

Predictions did not prove valid however, as the Golden Gophers from Minnesota dashed away with the Big Ten championship. Following this, the Harriers finished a disappointing fourth in the ICAA meet in New York and ran a below-par 16th in the NCAA meet held in East Lansing. It was a season that held high hopes that were dashed by injuries and outstanding competition.

Hockey

Achievements by the MSU Icers were more than evident this year as the Spartans rallied behind Coach Amos Bessone for a thrilling 17-12 season's record, set new MSU all-time records and won an invitation to play in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs. In the playoffs the hockey team split a two-game series against North Dakota, losing the first game 7-1, then came back in the second game for a 6-4 victory. The Spartans were omitted from post-season honors, however, because total goals decided the winners.

Victories were won early in the season due to better balance and improved speed over last years team. The Icers won six out of their first seven games, dropped two games in the Brown University Tournament, then went on to complete their winning season.

Captain Doug Roberts surpassed the MSU record for most points scored in a season, and sophomore Mike Jacobson set an all-time MSU record for goal production.

Gymnastics

Prior to the opening of the Spartan gym year, State's team was rated by many as a strong contender for the Big Ten title. However, State ended the season with a third place conference record of 5-2. According to Coach George Szpula, the team wasn't consistent in their efforts all season. A big loss was dealt to State through injuries and lack of experience.

With the bone chip and strained ankle of Jim Curzi, the Spartans lost the services of their top man. Curzi was simply not up to par in the Big Ten meet due to these injuries and lost his all-around title, but he came back in the NCAA meet to bring the parallel bar title and a share of the high bar crown back to East Lansing. Along with Curzi, the gymnasts had the excellent efforts of Dave Price and Ted Wilson to guide them through the season.

State's Best Season on Record

Swimming

Spartan swimmers fulfilled pre-season victory predictions by Head Coach Charles McCaffree this year as they racked up an 11-1 dual meet record — the best in the School's history.

In a record breaking season, the swimmers competed against every conference team except Indiana. Team members brokc seven out of 10 competitive varsity records.

Led by team captain Dick Gretzinger, the MSU swimmers received strong backing from Gary Dilley, 1964 Olympic medal winner, and sophomore Ken Walsh. Gretzinger, Dilley, Walsh and Jim MacMillan combined efforts against Northwestern in a dual meet to tie the American 400-yard freestyle relay record with a 3:08.1 effort.

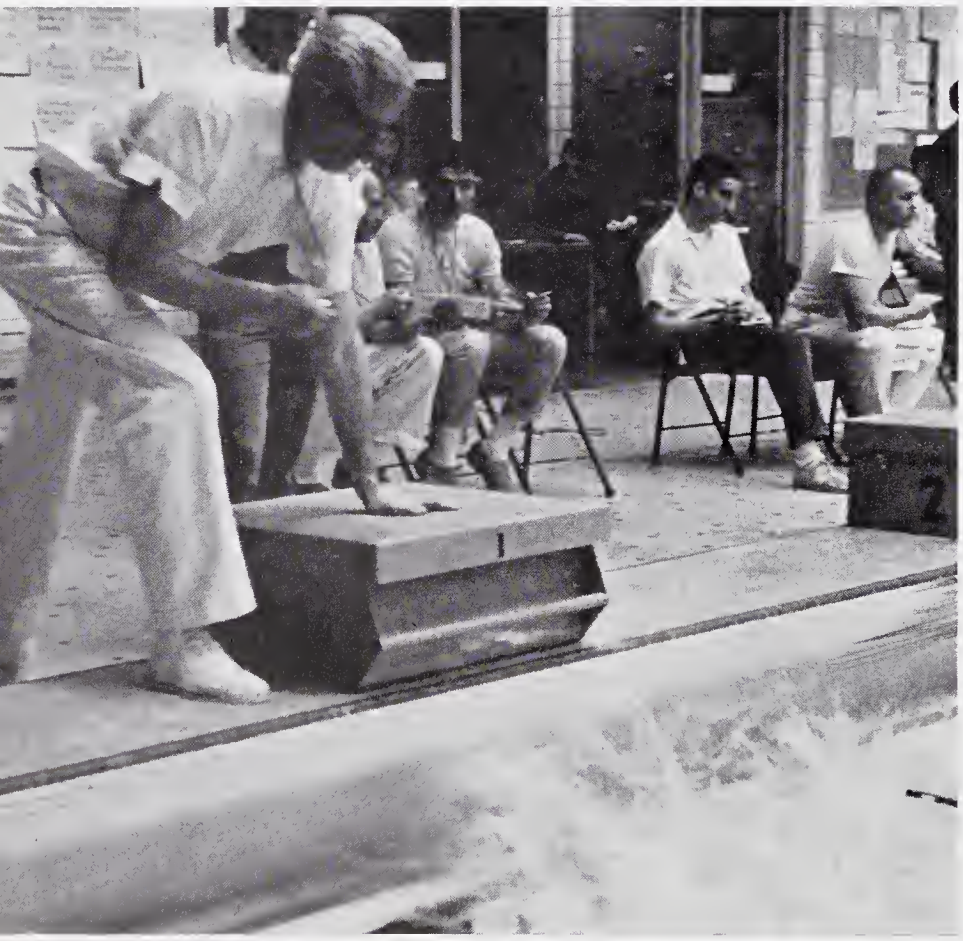

At the Big Ten meet at Madison, Wisconsin, the Spartans stroked to a third place title behind top-ranked Indiana and Michigan. In NCAA competition the team finished sixth.

Honored by the NCAA for his coaching ability this season, McCaffree was awarded the National Collegiate and Scholastic Swimming Trophy.

Fencing

Pre-season predictions for the fencing team were grim. Graduation and injuries made deep slashes into the strength of last year's team, for there were only four returning lettermen. Two of these, Mel Laska and Mark Haskell, were in the sabre unit. Bryan Kutchins, a runner-up in epee at the Big Ten meet last winter, was this year's number one man in foil, and Joel Serlin led State in the epee unit.

The Spartans finished with a 7-5 regular season record and fifth in the Big Ten title meet. Steve Vore and Haskell were State's only winners in this competition as Vore finished sixth and Haskell second, qualifying him for the NCAA championships. In spite of the many "green" fencers, State compiled a winning season and gained experience for next year's team.

The injuries which have riddled the wrestling team in previous years eased up on the Spartans' team this year and gave the Grapplers a chance to show their talent. However, the squad was hurt early in the season when outstanding heavyweight Homer McClure was sidelined with a leg injury. But the team escaped further losses to finish the season with a 7-3-1 record.

The four returning lettermen and some promising sophomores were enough to make Coach Grady Peninger look to the season with high hopes. The sophomores proved their ability when Don Behm, 130 pounds, finished undefeated, and heavyweight Jeff Richardson sustained only one loss. Along with junior Dick Cook, the three helped the team enter the Big Ten Conference as one of the top three contenders for the championship.

With Richardson and Behm winning in their respective weight classes, Michigan State emerged second in the Big Ten with 34 points, topped only by the University of Michigan.

With many experienced matmen returning along with Don Behm, who placed third in the Nationals, State's wrestling team shows further promise for next season.

Tennis

A season that started with the winning of the Cherry Blossom Tournament in Washington, D.C., for the second consecutive year gave the Spartan Netters high hopes as they started the 1964 season. Led by a strong group of seniors and the loss of only one man from the previous spring's unit which posted a 17-4 record, the Spartan tennis team was trying to better its fourth place record of a year ago. This season the wish was not to be fulfilled, however, as the team once again finished fourth in the Big Ten conference with a 14-6 record.

According to Coach Stan Drobac, the low points of the season were losses incurred in Big Ten play to league-leading Indiana, Michigan and Northwestern by scores of 2-7, 1-8 and 1-7 respectively. From matches against other Big Ten teams before the conference meet, the Netters won victories over Ohio State, Purdue, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

MSU hosted the NCAA Tennis Tournament in mid-June. The Spartans tied for 10th place with six other colleges.

Golf

The 1964 golf season started with the hope of bettering a 1963 seventh place Big Ten finish. A veteran team of lettermen and some good newcomers were encouraging signs of doing just that.

At the University of Miami Invitational Golf Tournament during spring break, MSU finished a respectable eighth against 18 varsity squads, most of which can play the year round because of their southern location.

Starting the regular season against Ohio State, the Spartans won a 20-16 victory from the Buckeyes, but non-conference matches that followed against Ohio University and Western Illinois saw the Golfers take a plunge, followed by a defeat from Notre Dame. A notable victory against Western Michigan was offset by a loss to Purdue. Against this unsteady record the Spartans traveled to Iowa City where they posted a mediocre record against seven opponents in a match there.

The Big Ten meet again placed MSU in seventh place, but this overlooked the outstanding play all season by seniors Bob Meyer and Phil Marston.

Track

The Spartans placed fourth in the Big Ten last spring for the second consecutive time. Jan Bowen, sole returning conference titleholder for MSU, was unable to retain his outdoor mile crown. However, the Spartans were able to win a second place in a triangular meet and amass a respectable dual meet mark of 4-1.

As the 1965 winter track season started, Coach Fran Dittrich described his talent as being young, inexperienced, but showing fine potential. Yet he was not disappointed, for they put forth a fine effort all season. The Thinclads were early victims of misfortune as five top men were declared unable to compete due to scholastics and injuries.

After winning an easy victory over Ohio State, 87-54, the Spartans joined some 600 athletes in the Michigan Federation Relays at Ann Arbor. The Spartans had four varsity victories, and the freshman team put forth an outstanding effort for another first place.

With a burst of energy, a Spartan heads for the bar.

Clinton Jones, one of State's best hurdlers, led the Thinclads to a victory over Miami of Ohio.

In the Michigan State Relays, the Spartans responded on home turf by placing in 15 of the 18 events entered. In the hurdles, Gene Washington tied the meet mark twice, then went on to rewrite that record by tying the Field House mark in the finals.

In the meet against Miami of Ohio, Clinton Jones stole the attention away from teammate Washington in the hurdles, as he led the Thinclads to a 87-54 sweep over the Redskins.

Broad jumper Jim Garrett successfully defended his Big Ten indoor crown in the Big Ten meet. In this all-important effort, the Spartans came within one-half point of tying Wisconsin, the winner. In the first NCAA indoor meet, the Spartans tied for fourth.

INTRAMURALS

While participation in varsity sports must be kept for a select few, Michigan State offers a broad program of intramurals, physical education classes and sports clubs which are open to all students regardless of ability. Over $12 million has been invested in the intramural facilities which include the Men's and Women's IM buildings, Jenison Fieldhouse, Forest Akers Golf Course and numerous other playing fields. Each year, thousands of students participate in intramurals or sports clubs, while hundreds more flock to popular HPER classes in scuba diving, archery and golf. Freshmen are required to take three terms of physical education, but many more choose to continue beyond the minimum requirements. Most of these classes are offered individually to the sexes; however, some are coeducational. No matter what the sport, the student finds a smooth blend of formal instruction and unadulterated fun. From fraternity football to bait casting classes, there is something for everyone at MSU.

Men's Intramurals

Since 1919, the year the I.M. program was officially begun, Michigan State has been growing at a rate almost too rapid to comprehend. This year as the enrollment reached new heights and set new records, use of our abundant facilities grew proportionately.

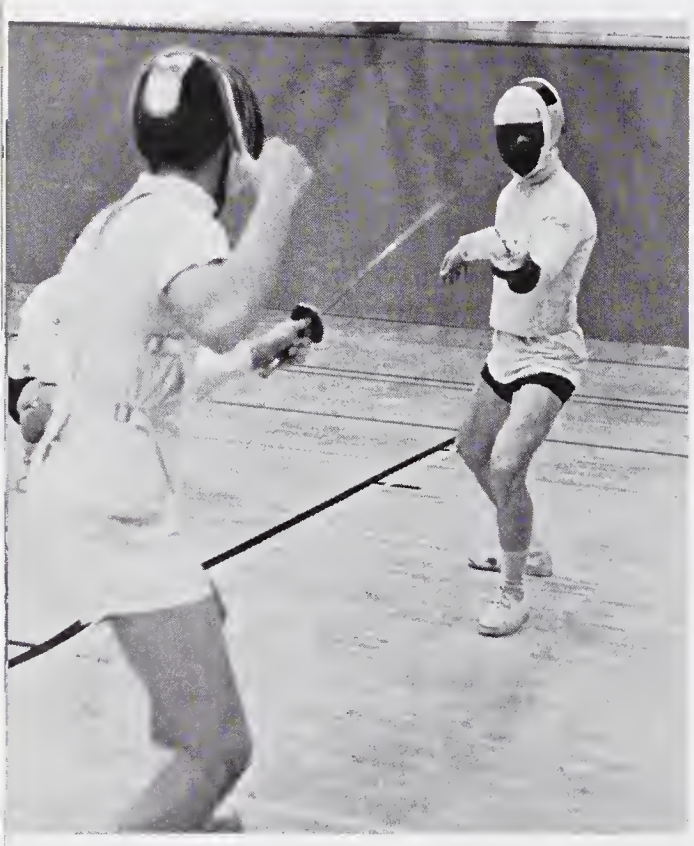

Dr. H. F. Beeman, the man who deserves a good share of the credit for State's growth in this area, sums up the equipment as "the best facilities in the Big Ten." With four pools, the Men's I.M., Women's I.M., Jenison Fieldhouse, the tennis courts, golf course, annexes in Snyder, Abbot and Bailey equipped for weight lifting and the fields for football and other sports, total expenses well exceed $10 million.

The Competitive Spirit Runs High

Every varsity sport has its counterpart in IM sports.

Fraternity football can get pretty "fraternal."

Nothing beats a good workout in the modern Men's Intramural pool.

IM hockey matches offer plenty of thrilling action.

With many full time and part time employees and sports clubs available for those interested, State has worked its way into a top position in the country. Not only are sports offered for athletes, but facilities are available Friday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons for independent enjoyment.

The men's program broke all new records in participation with over 8,000 taking part in various activities. Touch football, won by the Red Trojans, and basketball, won by the Delta Chi's, were the most popular sports, boasting over 4,000 participants. More than 10,000 towels were issued weekly — a 72% increase over last year.

Records were broken in quality as well as quantity as State won first place in National Collegiate Weightlifting, led by Ted Begeman in the 148 pound class.

Nick Ford came in second in the 132 pound class. Joe Puelo credited to his record the middleweight championships of North America and National YMCA and the Pan-American Games Crown. MSU also received a boost when Mohabula Rashti, member of the All-India lacrosse team, led the way for State's inexperienced group. Al Johnson of the Spartan ski club won the senior men's championship in slalom and giant slalom races. He also took a second place award in the U.S. Ski Association Division Championships.

Many new ideas such as separate budgets for the I.M. program and inter-dorm facilities have been suggested to improve the present program and thus serve the growing needs that arise in a program of such magnitude.

Women's Intramurals

MSU's sports program for women has bounded forward with amazing progress in the past few years. Beginning with no facilities for the "weaker sex", State has travelled to its present position — one of the best in the country. MSU now has more athletic facilities and spends more money per woman student for intramural activities than any other university in the Big Ten.

The women's I.M., costing $3 million, consists of two pools, three gymnasiums and rooms for archery, modern dance and gymnastics. Women students make good use of the facilities with over 2,700 participating in sports this year. The most popular sports were swimming, with 835 participants, and volleyball, with 609.

All women aren't inexperienced novices as proven by Marsha Jones when she won the Olympic bronze medal in kayak racing. Mrs. Fran Koenig, the coach of MSU's two field hockey teams, was doubly proud when 10 of her girls were selected to play in the U.S. Field Hockey Tournament in the sectionals held in Dayton, Ohio. Six were on the first team and four on the second.

Of the seven sports clubs available to women, sailing and skiing are the largest and kayak the smallest. Women turned out in larger numbers than ever before as they comprised nearly one-third of the judo club.

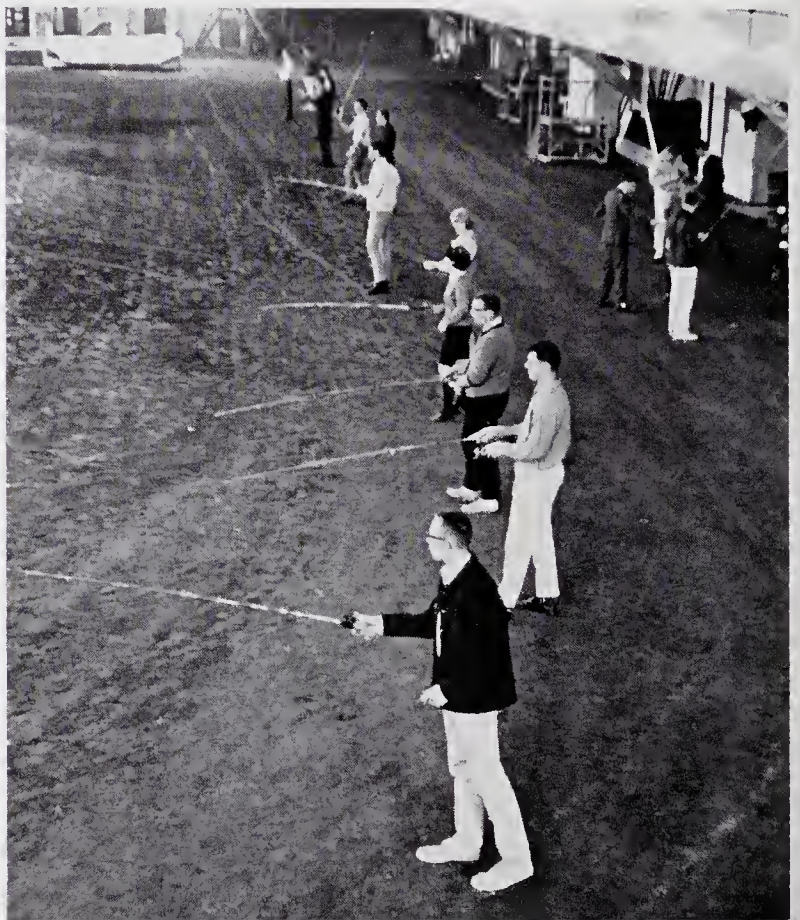

The honoraries, Orchesis, Promenaders and Green Splash, while providing an atmosphere of friendly competition for the more skilled women, also afford enjoyment for the public in their annual shows. Besides being a showcase for skills, the shows feature colorful costumes and a carnival atmosphere.

HPER offers everything — even baitcasting.

For the student who wishes to learn more about a particular sport, the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department offers dozens of courses ranging from bait casting to scuba diving. Physical education courses of the student's choice are required of all freshmen. Many students choose to continue sports education, electing HPER as a major. Currently there are 283 men and 233 women registered in the Department.

Most of the HPER classes are offered to both men and women; some are coeducational. Whether it's blooperball, sabre fencing, archery, dancing or badminton, HPER offers the student a chance to learn basic fundamentals, develop skills and have fun in the process.

In addition the Department conducts research in health in an effort to continually improve the program.

Lacrosse can be a rough and tumble sport as these club members are learning.

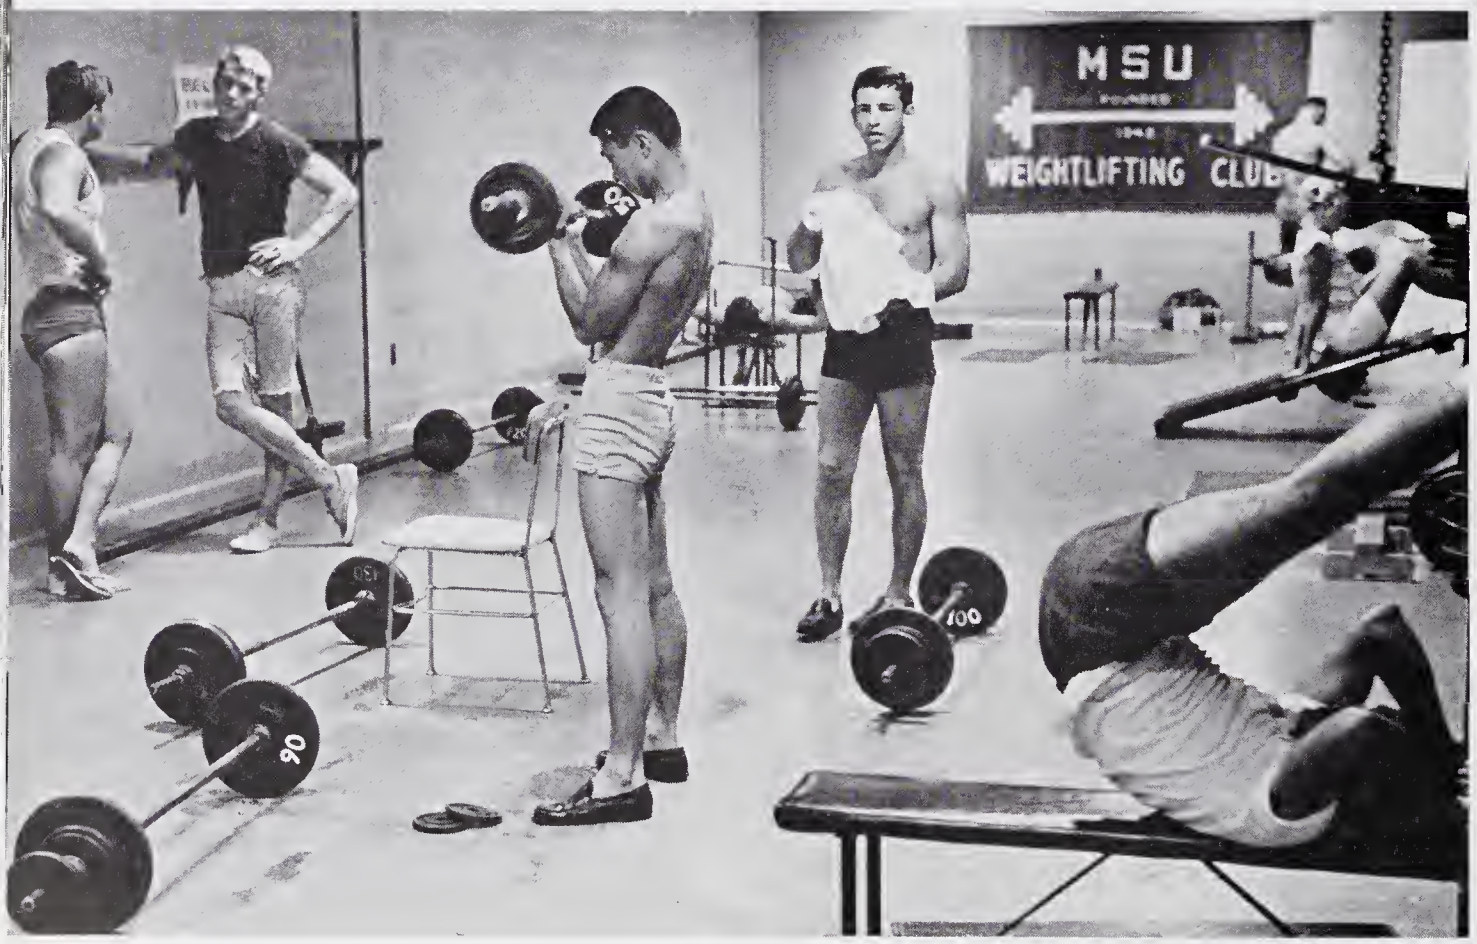

For the avid sports enthusiast who wishes to meet students with similar athletic interests, there are a number of clubs which offer unique advantages. For men there are bowling, crew, judo, kayak, lacrosse, volleyball, weightlifting, rugby and acrobatic clubs. For women students there are contemporary dance and judo. The largest clubs, which claim 200 to 300 members, are sailing and ski, both of which offer membership to both sexes. Many of the clubs hold regular meetings and informal practice sessions in addition to contests with clubs at other schools. Each winter the ski club sponsors organized ski weekends. Sailing club members can be found at Lake Lansing spring term where experienced sailors give instructions to new members. For all, Michigan State's sports clubs offer a wide variety of activities, recreation and exercise for the sports-minded.

Individual Recreation Takes Many Forms

For bowling fun, nothing beats the Union.

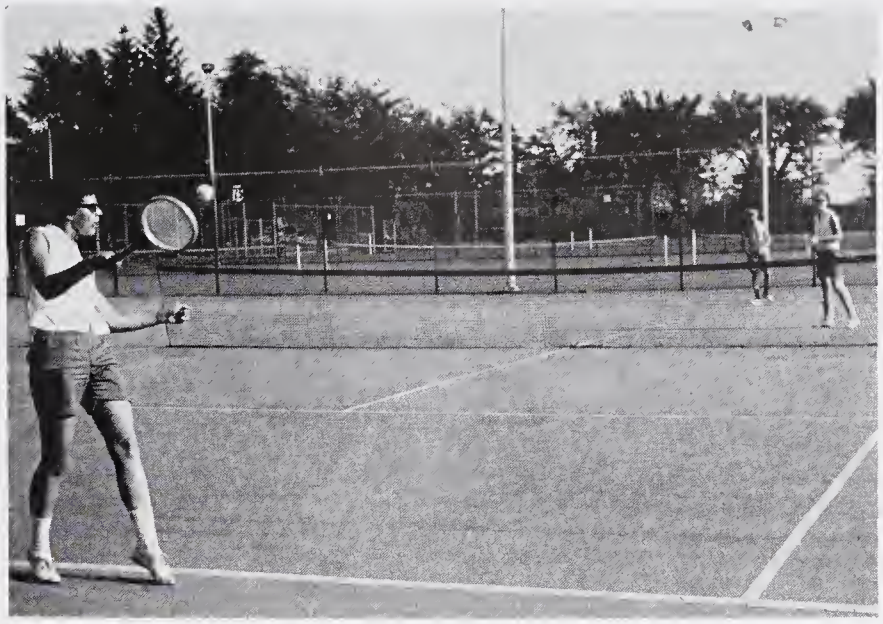

Throughout the year, Michigan State offers many athletic diversities in which the individual may participate. Large numbers of students, faculty members, employees and guests flock to the numerous recreation facilities which have always been unexcelled at State. Warm weather finds the golf course, the pool and the tennis courts alive with eager participants. During the winter months also, the ice arena and various IM gyms display similar popularity, drawing avid enthusiasm from many of the University population.

ACADEMICS

To the graduating seniors of 1965, the moment of graduation brings meditation on both the past and the future. In addition to remembering social and extra curricular fun, they look back to the main purpose of their college careers — the academics. These 12 areas, through one of which all have passed, have given them ammunition to meet the multifarious demands of the future. With awakened minds, these graduates will determine the course of society.

Research: The Key to Experimentation and Improvement

Research and its related activities are conducted in many areas throughout the University in an effort to constantly improve the educational caliber of this institution. The quality and scope of the University's endeavors, which underlie its graduate program, are attested to by the number of doctorates awarded annually. Michigan State ranks among the first 20 universities in the nation in this area.

Providing all University students with a basic core of disciplined courses in general education is the fourfold task of the University College. Its program embraces studies in four fundamental areas of knowledge necessary for the development of all educated men and women, including American Thought and Language, Natural Science, Humanities and Social Science.
Consistent with its manifold obligations to graduate study, the University has established 10 Colleges authorized to offer a variety of intellectual opportunities in pursuance of advanced degrees. Colleges offering graduate programs are Agriculture, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts, Education, Engineering, Home Economics, Natural Science and Veterinary Medicine.
Established in 1957 as the first of its kind in the nation, the Honors College at Michigan State University enables its students to follow a specially designed program best adapted to their own needs and capabilities. Directed by Stanley J. Idzerda, the College waives nearly all graduation requirements, sets aside prerequisites for advanced graduate courses and encourages accelerated individual study.

University and Honors Colleges: Providing An Atmosphere for Learning

MSU Philosophy of Education

Adhering unfalteringly to the fundamental purposes of every university — "to seek the truth, to teach the truth and to preserve the truth" — Michigan State University has dedicated itself to the continual advance of education. Consistent with the Jeffersonian ideal that education is the key to understanding, it has espoused the principle that the teaching of knowledge should not be restricted to any one group or class, but should be made freely available to all who will utilize it to its fullest.

Personal instruction is a vital part of the development of musical proficiency.

Michigan State University is different from many of its contemporaries. Rather than confining its research endeavors to a limited area, it has focused on the entire province of knowledge. Within its 11 colleges, more than 70 departments offer over 200 different programs leading to undergraduate and graduate degrees. Since academic greatness can be attained only by virtue of the stature, dedication and constant involvement of an institution's faculty to the general improvement of the quality of education, MSU's Educational Development Program, begun in 1963, plays a vital part. A division of the Provost's office, the program is responsible for continuing work toward the advance of educational opportunities.

Projects undertaken since April of last year include university curriculum development, which initiated the 180 credit minimum, assured the retention of the quarter system, and introduced the concept of larger blocks of undergraduate course credit; a junior faculty responsibility study; an experiment in academic advising; the coordination of learning resources; an evaluation of departments; course development studies; and course evaluations. Its primary purpose is devoted to the development and implementation of educational principles and procedures which will preserve and improve undergraduate education in the face of increasing enrollments, potentially limited financial resources, a growing shortage of faculty personnel and explosive increases in the amount and complexity of knowledge.

College of Agriculture

FOUNDED: 1855

DEAN: Thomas K. Cowden

Michigan State's first school, the College of Agriculture, has the distinction of being the initiator of formal education in scientific agriculture. Established in 1855 by an act of the state legislature, it served as a model for all land grant colleges spreading throughout the country following the passage of the Morrill Act in 1862. Now, the College is only one of 11 others within the University, offering a program divided into three phases — education, extension and research. Its 14 departments include Agricultural Chemistry, Agricultural Economics, Agricultural Engineering, Animal Husbandry, Dairy, Farm Crops, Fisheries and Wildlife, Food Science, Forest Products, Forestry, Horticulture, Poultry Science, Resource Development and Soil Science.

MSU's towering smoke stack stands as one of its oldest landmarks.

Barely visible at dusk is the silhouette of the livestock barn.

The progression of a branch from life to death provides interesting study for potential horticulturists.

Horticulture includes study in a multitude of diverse areas.

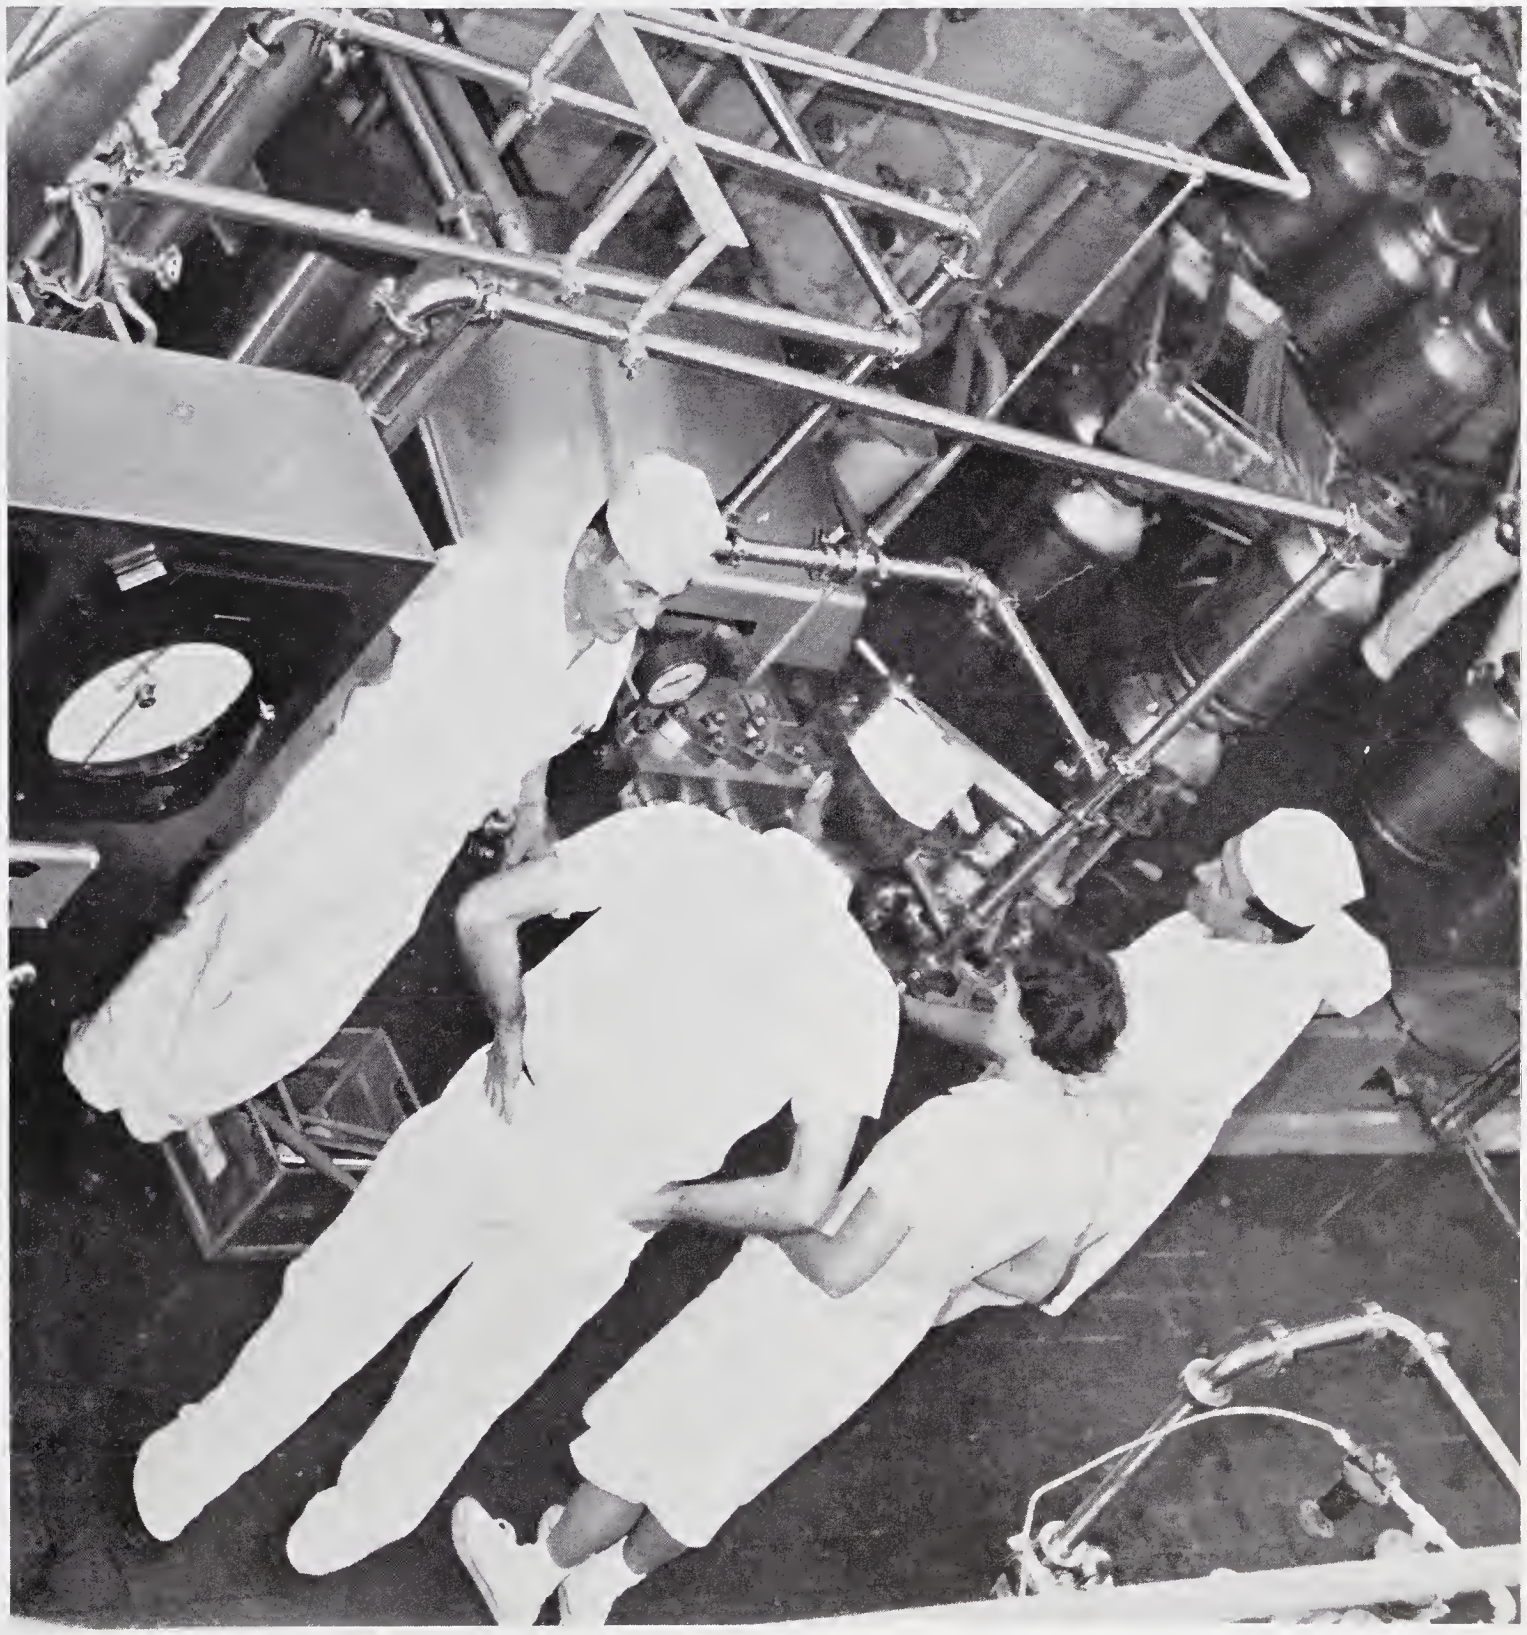

Though the College was designated initially to prepare students for work in applied agriculture, only about 11 per cent of its graduates go into actual farm production. The remainder pursue careers in industries related to agricultural production; public services, including state and federal employees in conservation, agriculture and related fields; secondary or advanced education; and research. Whatever area the student of agrciulture wishes to explore, the curricula emphasizes the ephemeral characteristics of agricultural techniques. Students are kept abreast of the latest scientific developments in all areas.

In conjunction with the College's extensive research program, a number of foreign endeavors are promoted in an effort to spread the myriad of technical advances to agronomists throughout the world.

Though apathetic to progress, these animals play an important role in agricultural research.

The role of mechanization has contributed greatly to all areas of agricultural endeavor.

College of Arts and Letters

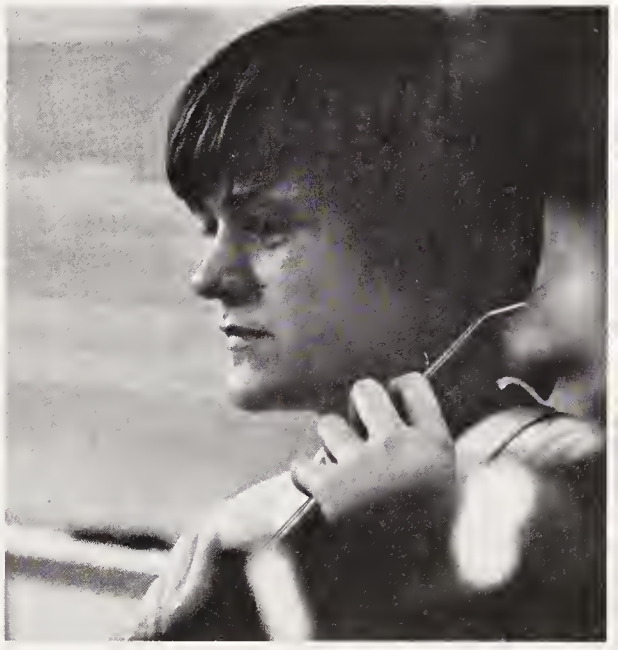

FOUNDED: 1962

DEAN: Paul A. Varg

Established in 1962 when the College of Science and Arts was divided, the College of Arts and Letters seeks to provide students with a broad liberal education. Recognizing that an individual can never quite be assured of keeping a single position in the business world, the College strives to enable him to cope with general problems lying beyond those encountered in a specialized area. Enrichment in the aesthetic sensibilities, such as art, music, and religion, is also encouraged. Therefore, to obtain a mastery of an academic discipline characterized by the ability to critically analyze a problem, to arrive at appropriate value judgments, and to express conclusions in a clear, succinct, and cogent style is part and parcel of the College's program.

A lecture by Dr. Hodgson furnishes the foundation for a better comprehension of music.

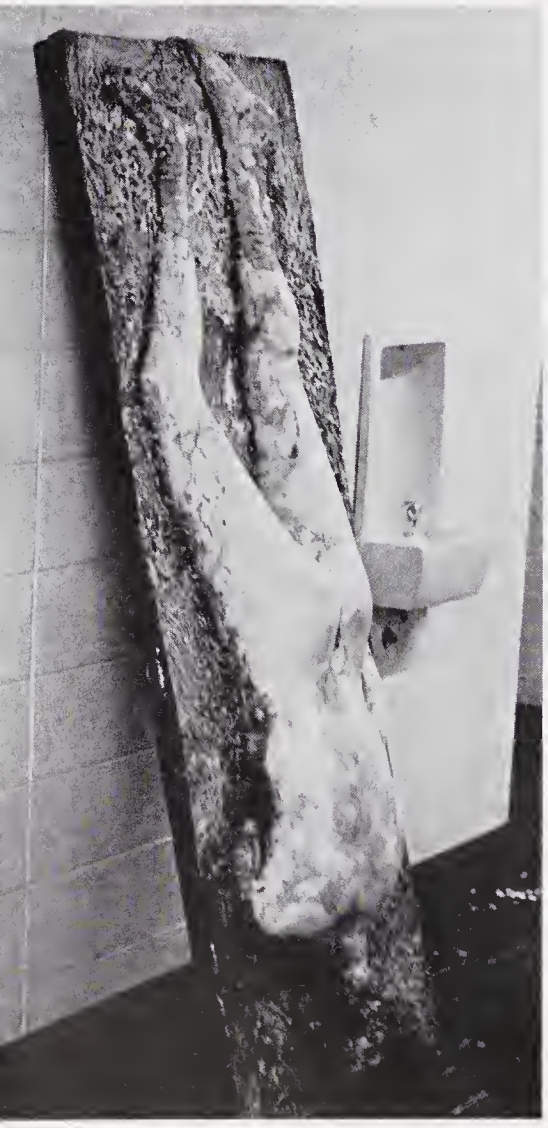

Intent upon the complexity of her music, this celloist is oblivious to all else.

Organized into seven departments — Art, English, Foreign Languages, History, Music, Philosophy, and Religion — the College offers a diversified program for both graduates and undergraduates. In cooperation with the 11 other colleges within the University, it aids in the preparation of qualified educators on both the secondary and higher educational levels through its graduate program. Those students who do not wish to pursue a life of scholarship, but merely desire to enlarge their sphere of knowledge, find many stimulating courses to satisfy their intellectual curiosity. Adults whose quest for knowledge has not been dampened over the years may enroll in courses offered by the College for Adults Program of which the Evening College is an integral part.

Alfred L. Seelye, Dean

College of Business

FOUNDED: 1944

DEAN: Alfred L. Seelye

The College of Business, formally established in 1953, with courses dating from 1926, provides an understanding of the basic tools of the industrial, economic, social, and political society in which we live. It also presents a background for solving problems and making executive decisions. Today's curriculum provides instruction in decision theory — stressing the WHY as well as the WHAT. Emphasis is not only on the economic aspects and functional disciplines of business, but also on the behavioral sciences and the application of modern quantitative methods of business problems.

Secretaries, like students, often find their days filled with unending paper work and confusion.

Careful use of a free hour between classes improves the grade point.

The College of Business includes the departments of Accounting and Financial Administration; Business Law, Insurance and Office Administration; Marketing and Transportation Administration; Personnel and Production Administration; Business Administration; the School of Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management; the Department of Economics; and the Bureau of Business and Economic Research. The College also offers programs in business administration, economics and in the management of the feeding, housing and recreational sectors of the service industries.

Advisors from MSU helped establish the first school of business administration in South America at Sao Paulo. In addition, at the request of the Brazilian government, the College has recently initiated new programs in business administration at the University of Rio Grande do Sul in Porto Alegre and the University of Bahai in San Salvador.

Eppley Center, now a familiar land mark, is used not only for classes, but also for quiet individual study.

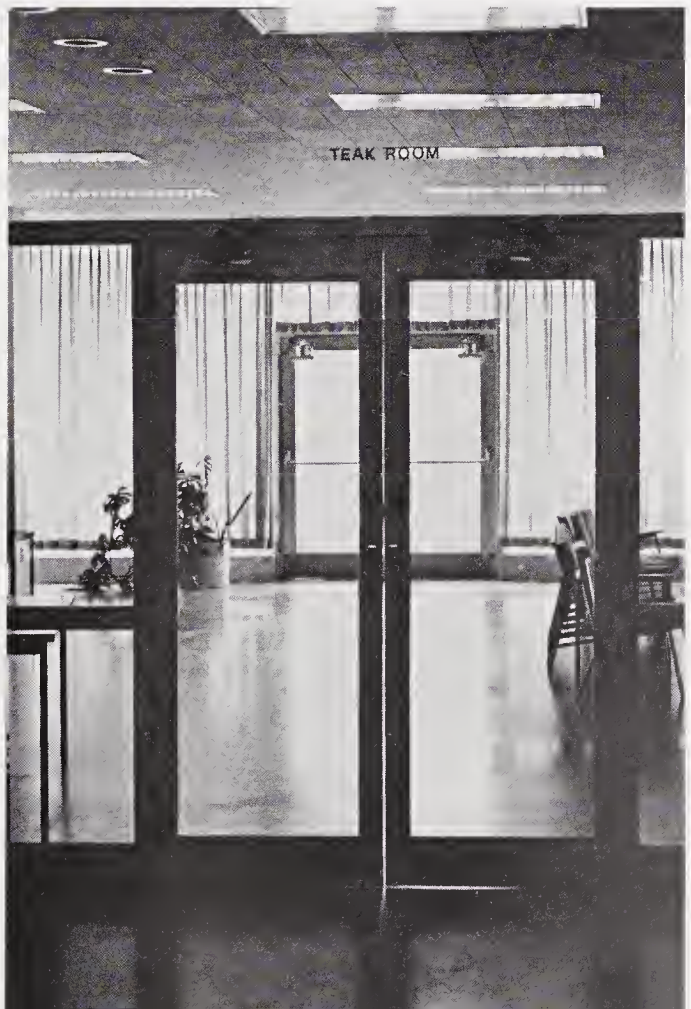

The modern lobby is a perfect place to exchange greetings with old classmates.

Conferences and meetings are often held in the Teak Room of Eppley.

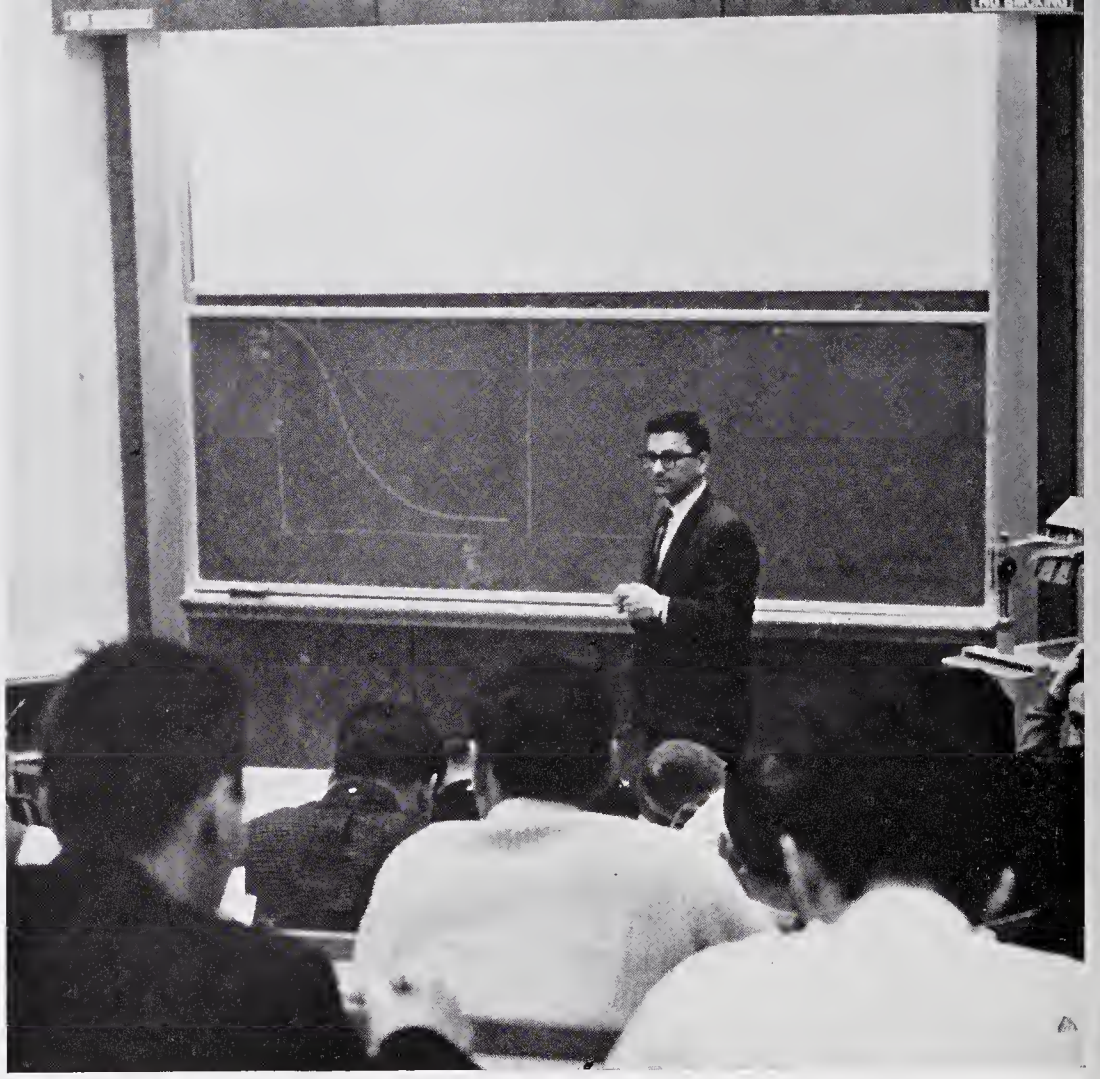

The attractive interior provides a pleasant environment for learning.

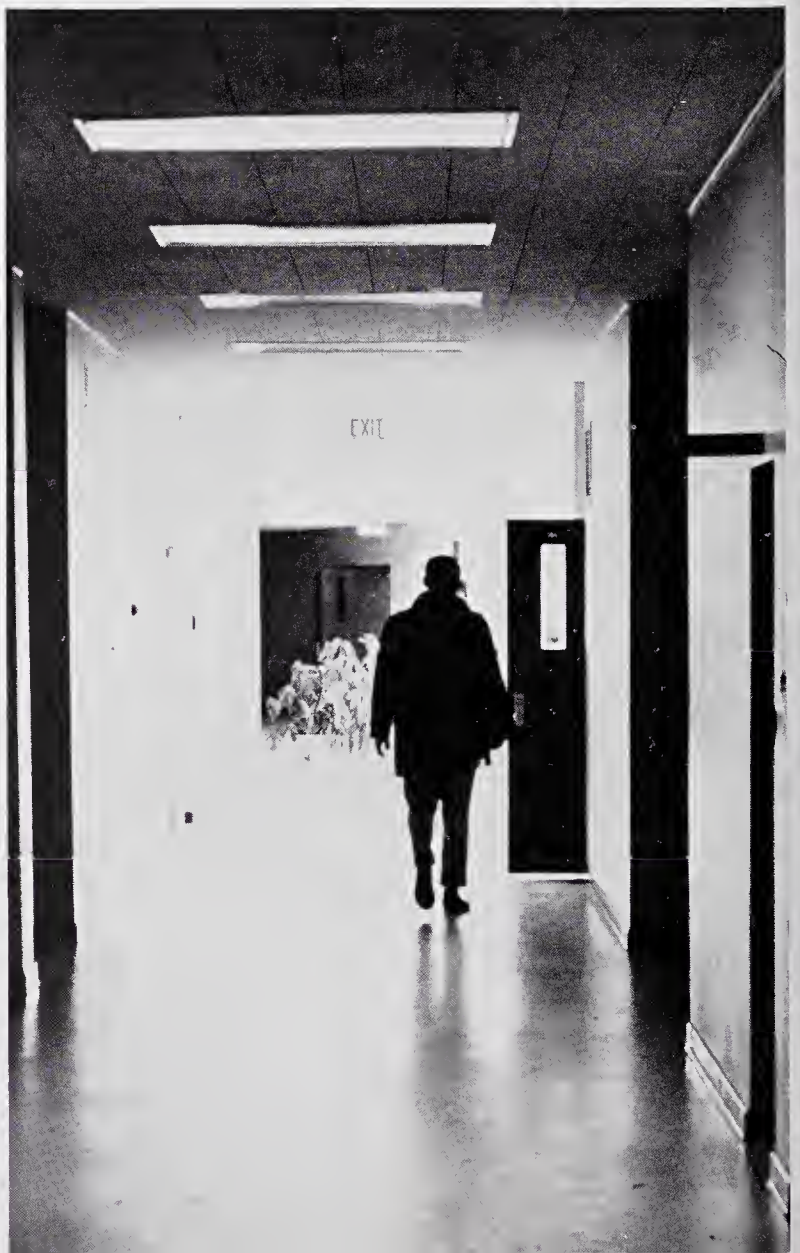

An abstract in Eppley sets the mood for free, uninhibited expression.

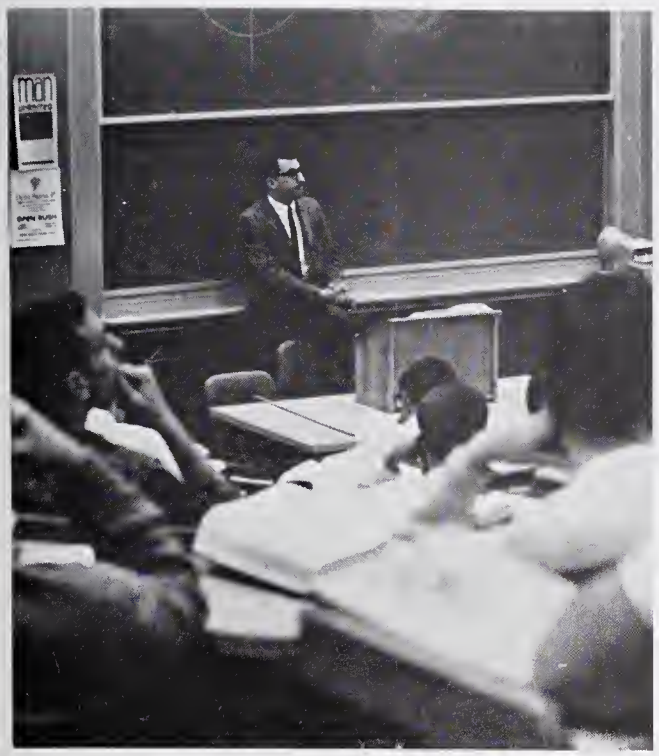

Intensive students listen as their professor explains the principles of business economics.

The search for the correct room number in Eppley is often a bone of contention among students.

During the past year, under the Agency for International Development, the College has conducted advisory programs of assistance in the improvement and development of public administration in educational systems in Turkey and South Vietnam.

There has been a quiet yet continual revolution in higher education throughout the country, and Michigan State's Graduate School of Business Administration has been a vital part. Since 1957 there has been a continual increase in the number of masters and doctoral degrees awarded by the College. Students receiving these degrees come from nearly 150 colleges and universities located in 41 states and the District of Columbia, and from 23 countries including Brazil, Turkey and Japan.

Fred S. Siebert, Dean

College of Communication Arts

FOUNDED: 1955

DEAN: Fred S. Siebert

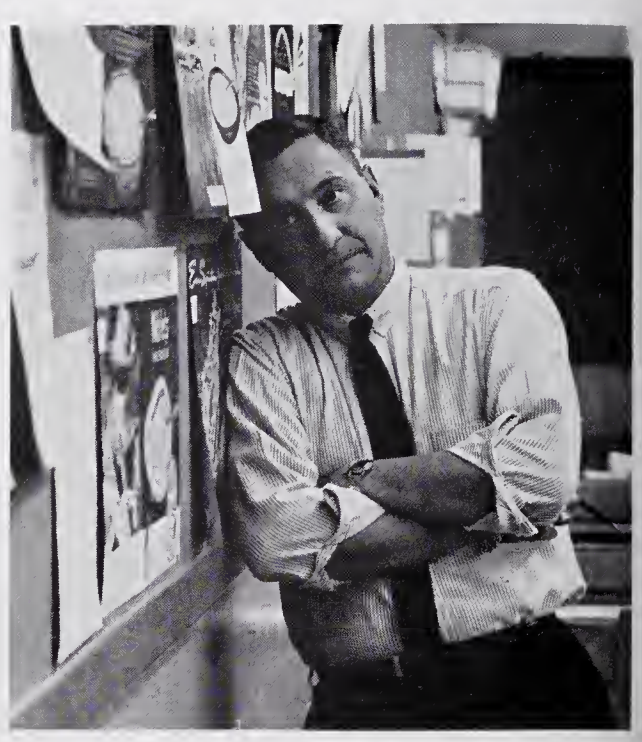

Recognizing the vital impact that good communications would impute all over the world, Michigan State led the way in making this awakening a living part of the University. Established in 1955 as the first of its kind in the Untied States, the College of Communication Arts brings into one academic structure most of the major fields of University study which are concerned with the arts of communication and receiver response.

Proper lighting effects and duplication of properties aid the drama student in his study of plays.

In such a manner, preparation of better and more competent professional communications who comprehend the pervasive scope of the communications media and the endless social responsibilities which ensue is facilitated. Its program — focused on the achievement of that goal —endeavors to provide the potential communicator with the indispensable criterion on which to critically evaluate any message.

Aside from the technical and specialized courses offered within each of the College's five divisions — the Departments of Advertising, Communications, Speech and Television and Radio, and the School of Journalism — the College requires its students to take courses with a broader liberal arts orientation. Over three-fourths of the programs in all areas of communication arts are concerned with general education. A Communications Research Center is also under the auspices of the College.

Mr. Wolter pauses after a spring class of restless students.

Instructor Louis Wolter assists laboratory students in practice of the techniques of advertising layout.

Classroom situations give Radio-TV students an education not found in books.

Graphic arts demonstrations add to Professor Elwin McCray's classroom presentation.

John E. Ivey, Jr., Dean

College of Education

FOUNDED: 1952

DEAN: John E. Ivey, Jr.

The College of Education at Michigan State University has developed into one of the finest teacher education institutions in the nation. With its 8,000 students, the College is larger than any other division of the University except the University College. Established in 1952, though begun as a department in 1908, it recognizes education as one of the nation's essential professions in maintaining America as a democracy. The College provides complete professional educational training for teaching positions in elementary, junior, or senior high school; in colleges and universities; and in special areas such as special education for the physically and mentally handicapped, speech correction, and remedial reading. Each faculty member is selected for his outstanding knowledge in his special arca and for his personal interest and concern in helping students develop into outstanding educators.

Student teachers demonstrate patience and understanding while working with their students.

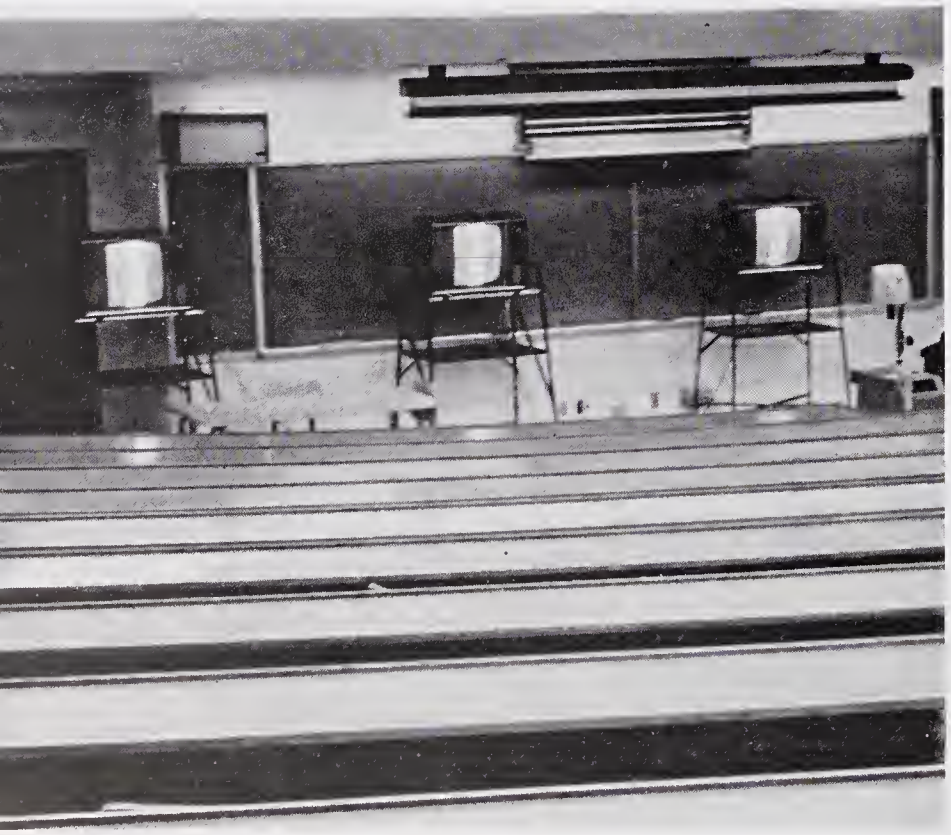

The library stacks provide necessary solitude for an education major.

Erickson Hall never lacks students, but parking spaces are a different thing.

Closed-circuit televisions provide a new method for classroom instruction.

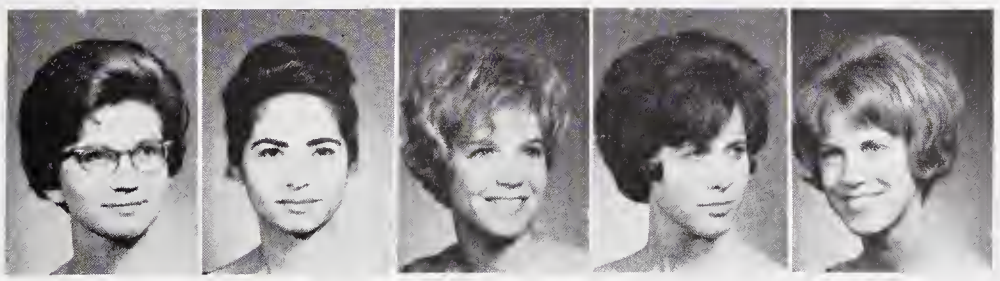

Experience is believed to be one of the keys to good teaching. Therefore, the College provides for laboratory experiences in actual school systems.

Two new approaches to preparing the prospective teacher are the Elementary Intern Program and the Student Teacher Education Program. The former is a program designed to couple methods courses and student teaching together with a public school setting. This experience is followed by a year of paid internship under the guidance of an experienced teacher and the faculty of the College of Education.

The latter, commonly referred to as STEP, allows junior students to live at home and draw a salary during part of the time they are enrolled at MSU.

Also conducted under the auspices of the College is the Student Education Corps, a voluntary organization of students who devote part of their spare time to assisting teachers in schools having large enrollments of economically deprived children. In this manner, the student himself secures valuable experiences while at the same time contributing to the advancement of society.

John D. Ryder, Dean

College of Engineering

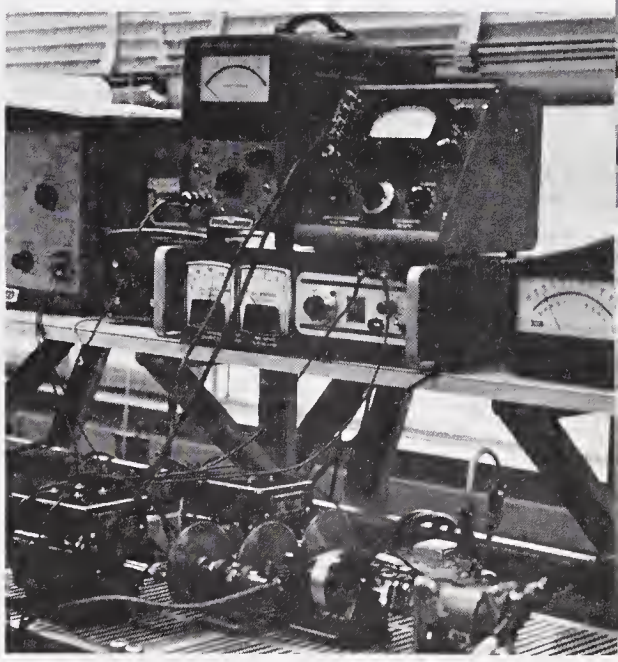

FOUNDED: 1855

DEAN: John D. Ryder

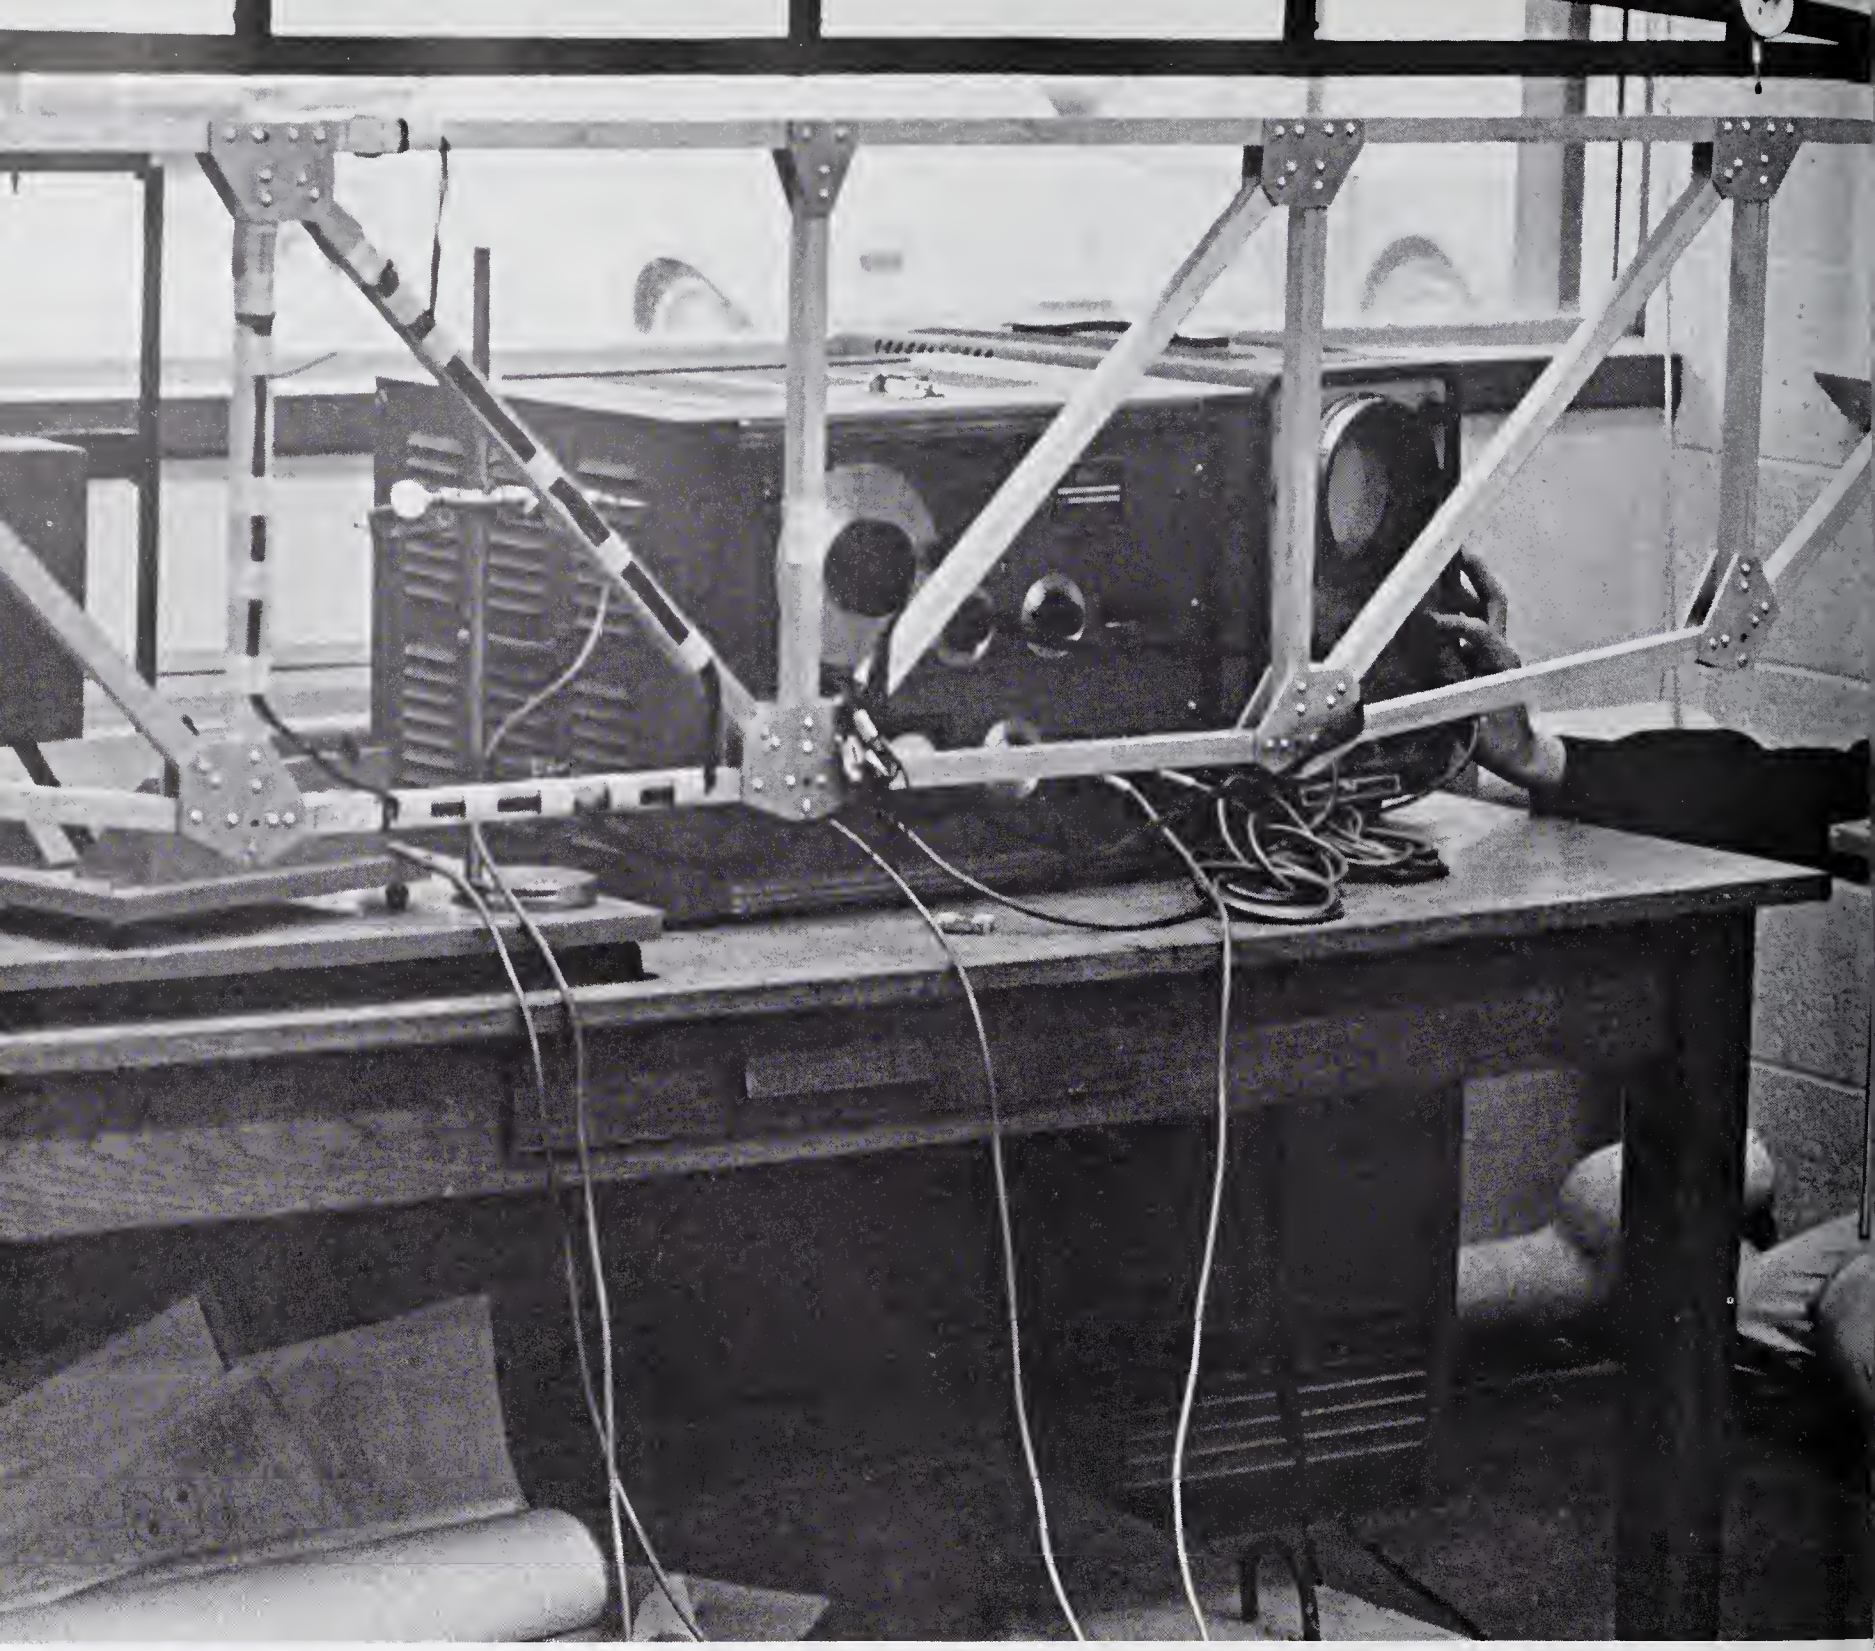

Dealing with the science of employing nature's forces, material and men for the ultimate benefit of mankind, the College of Engineering, established as a department in 1885, seeks to provide the engineering student with a firm comprehension of the fundamental engineering sciences. It encourages student endeavors along lines which will enable him to lead a useful and prosperous professional and civilian life.

In a physics lab, cooperation helps insure success of a project.

An intricate model of a bridge enables this student to test the points of stress and strain.

Egressing from a time concerned with the teaching of procedural techniques to an era stressing the study and application of the applied sciences, Engineering education at Michigan State University is subdivided into six specialized fields: Agriculture, Chemical, Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering and Metallurgy.

Without the products conceived by engineering minds, the world would lack radio, television, telephone, refrigeration, electrical power and lighting which we now take for granted. To keep pace with the explosion in population and the resultant extension of basic needs, the future engineer must provide more improved methods of travel, more rapid means of communication, better materials and cheaper, more diversified sources of power.

Since engineers have been largely responsible for the rapid development of our contemporary scientific civilization, this phase of intellectual endeavor has received impetus in colleges and universities throughout the country.

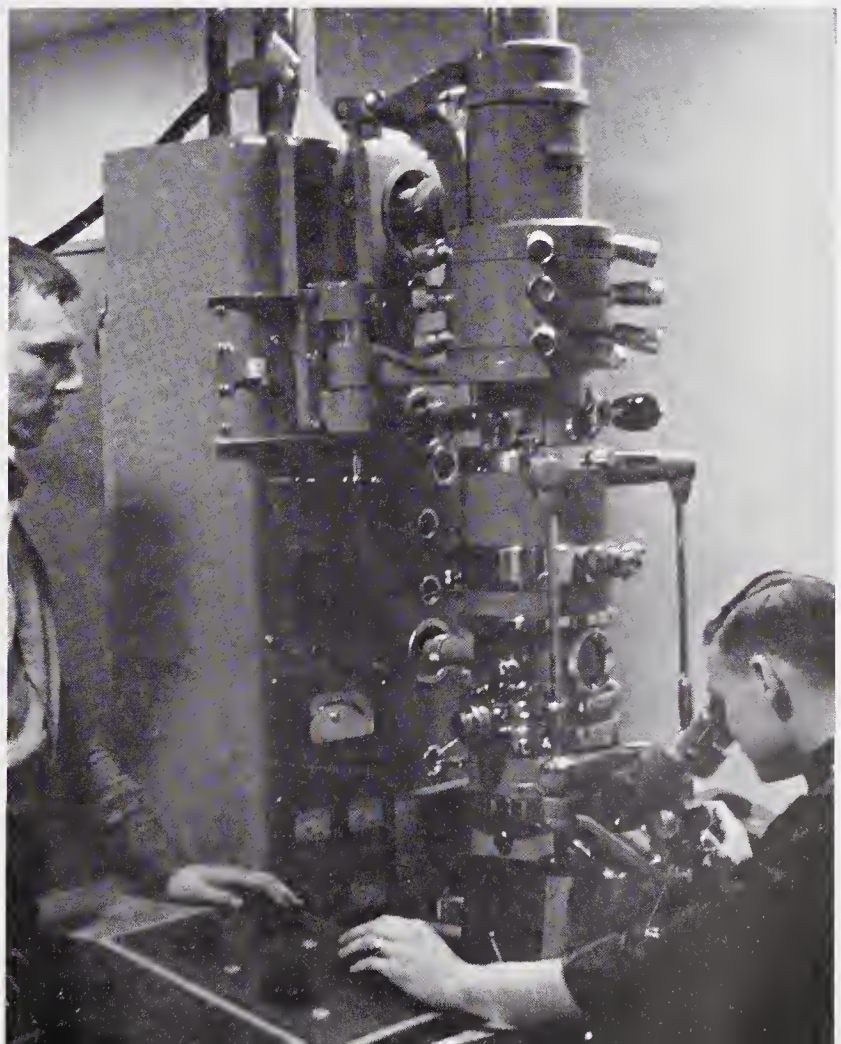

The MSU College of Engineering has contributed significantly in this development through the quality of its incoming students and revision of the courses offered. Now, consistent with all other colleges in the University, it is prepared to award its Bachelor of Science degree for 180 credit hours rather than the traditional practice of requiring more course work than any other college to earn a degree — sometimes as much as a fifth year of undergraduate work.

The inroads made in the sphere of engineering can be viewed anually at the Engineering Exposition which houses displays of modern enginecring methods, laboratory equipment and materials. Here, awards are presented to the best individual and group exhibits which comprise the major portion of the Exposition's attractions.

Engineering studies involve elaborate mechanical devices such as this complicated array of gages and dials.

Minute particles are studied through use of an electron microscope.

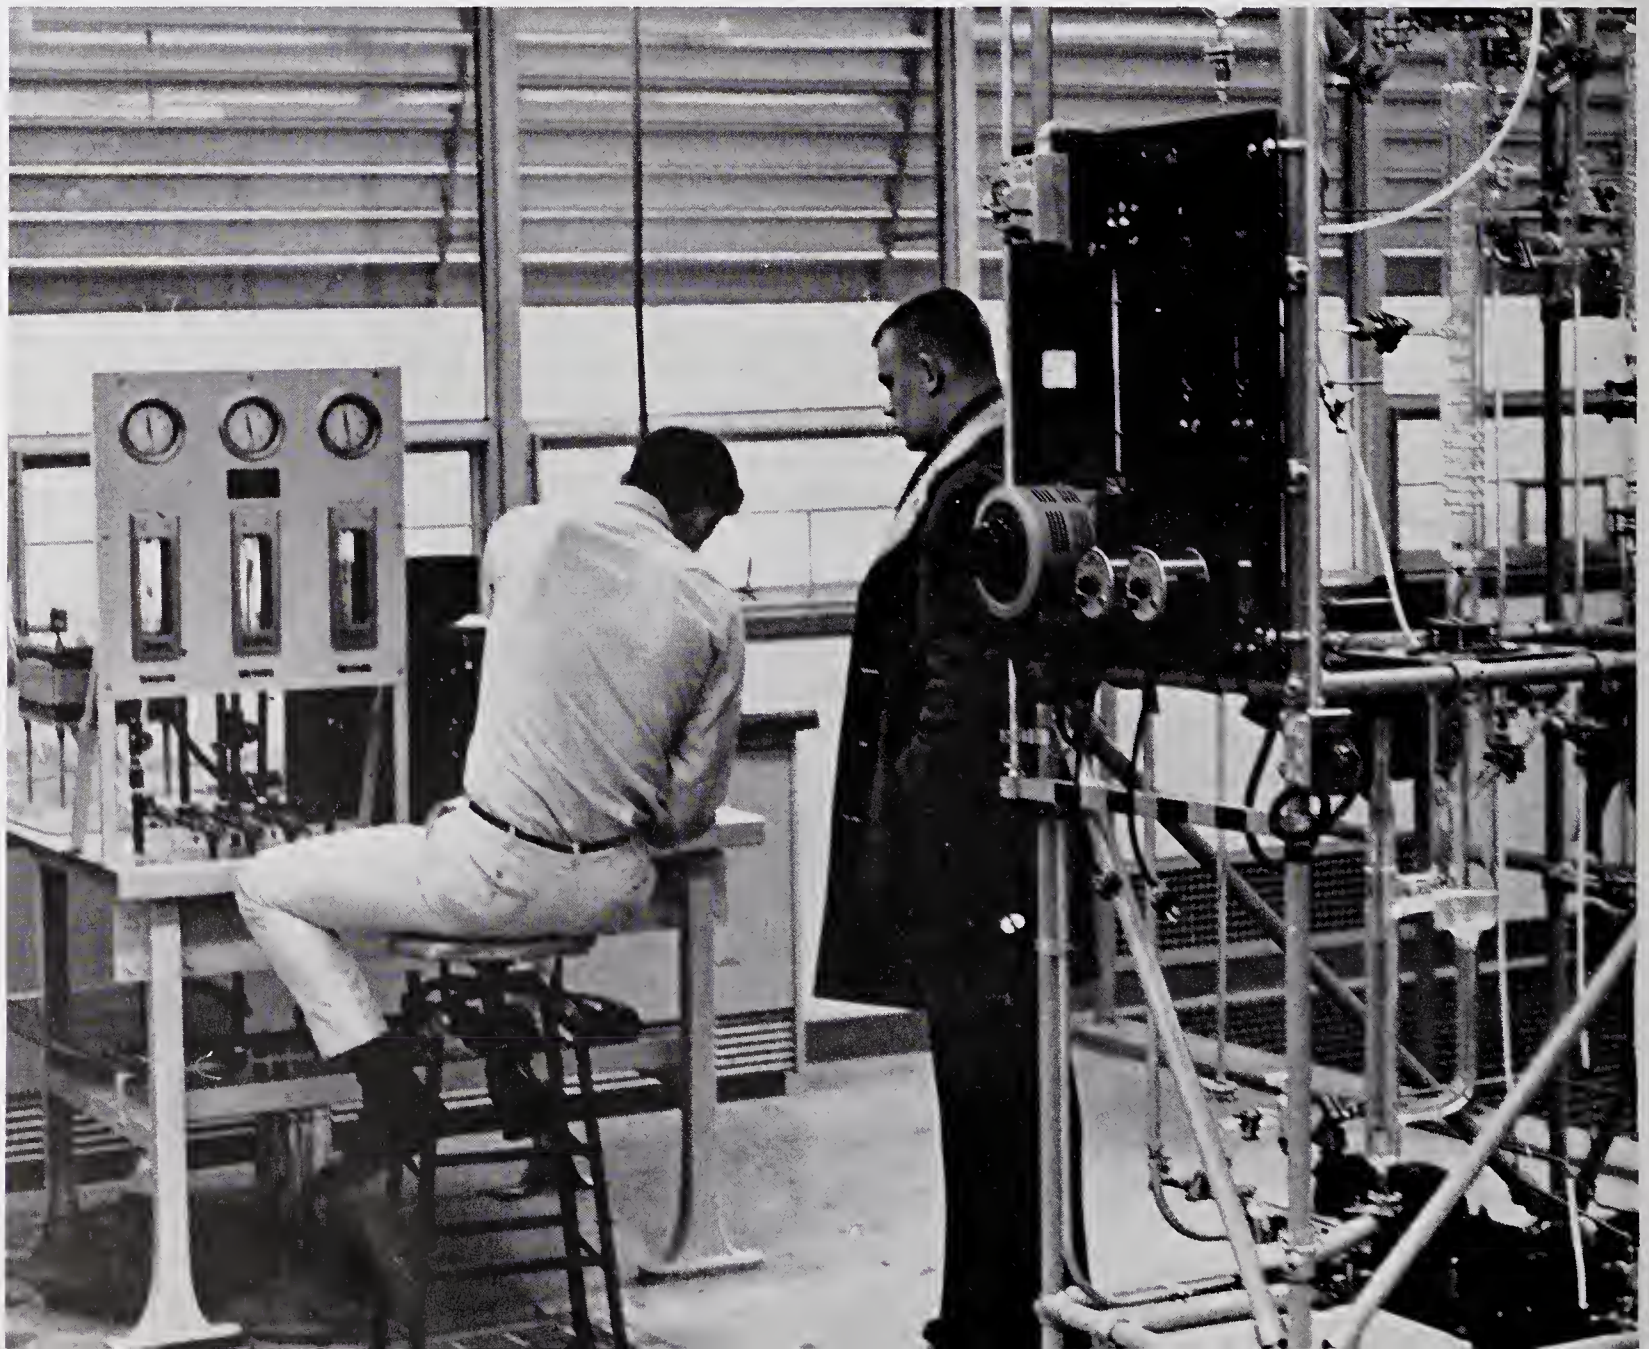

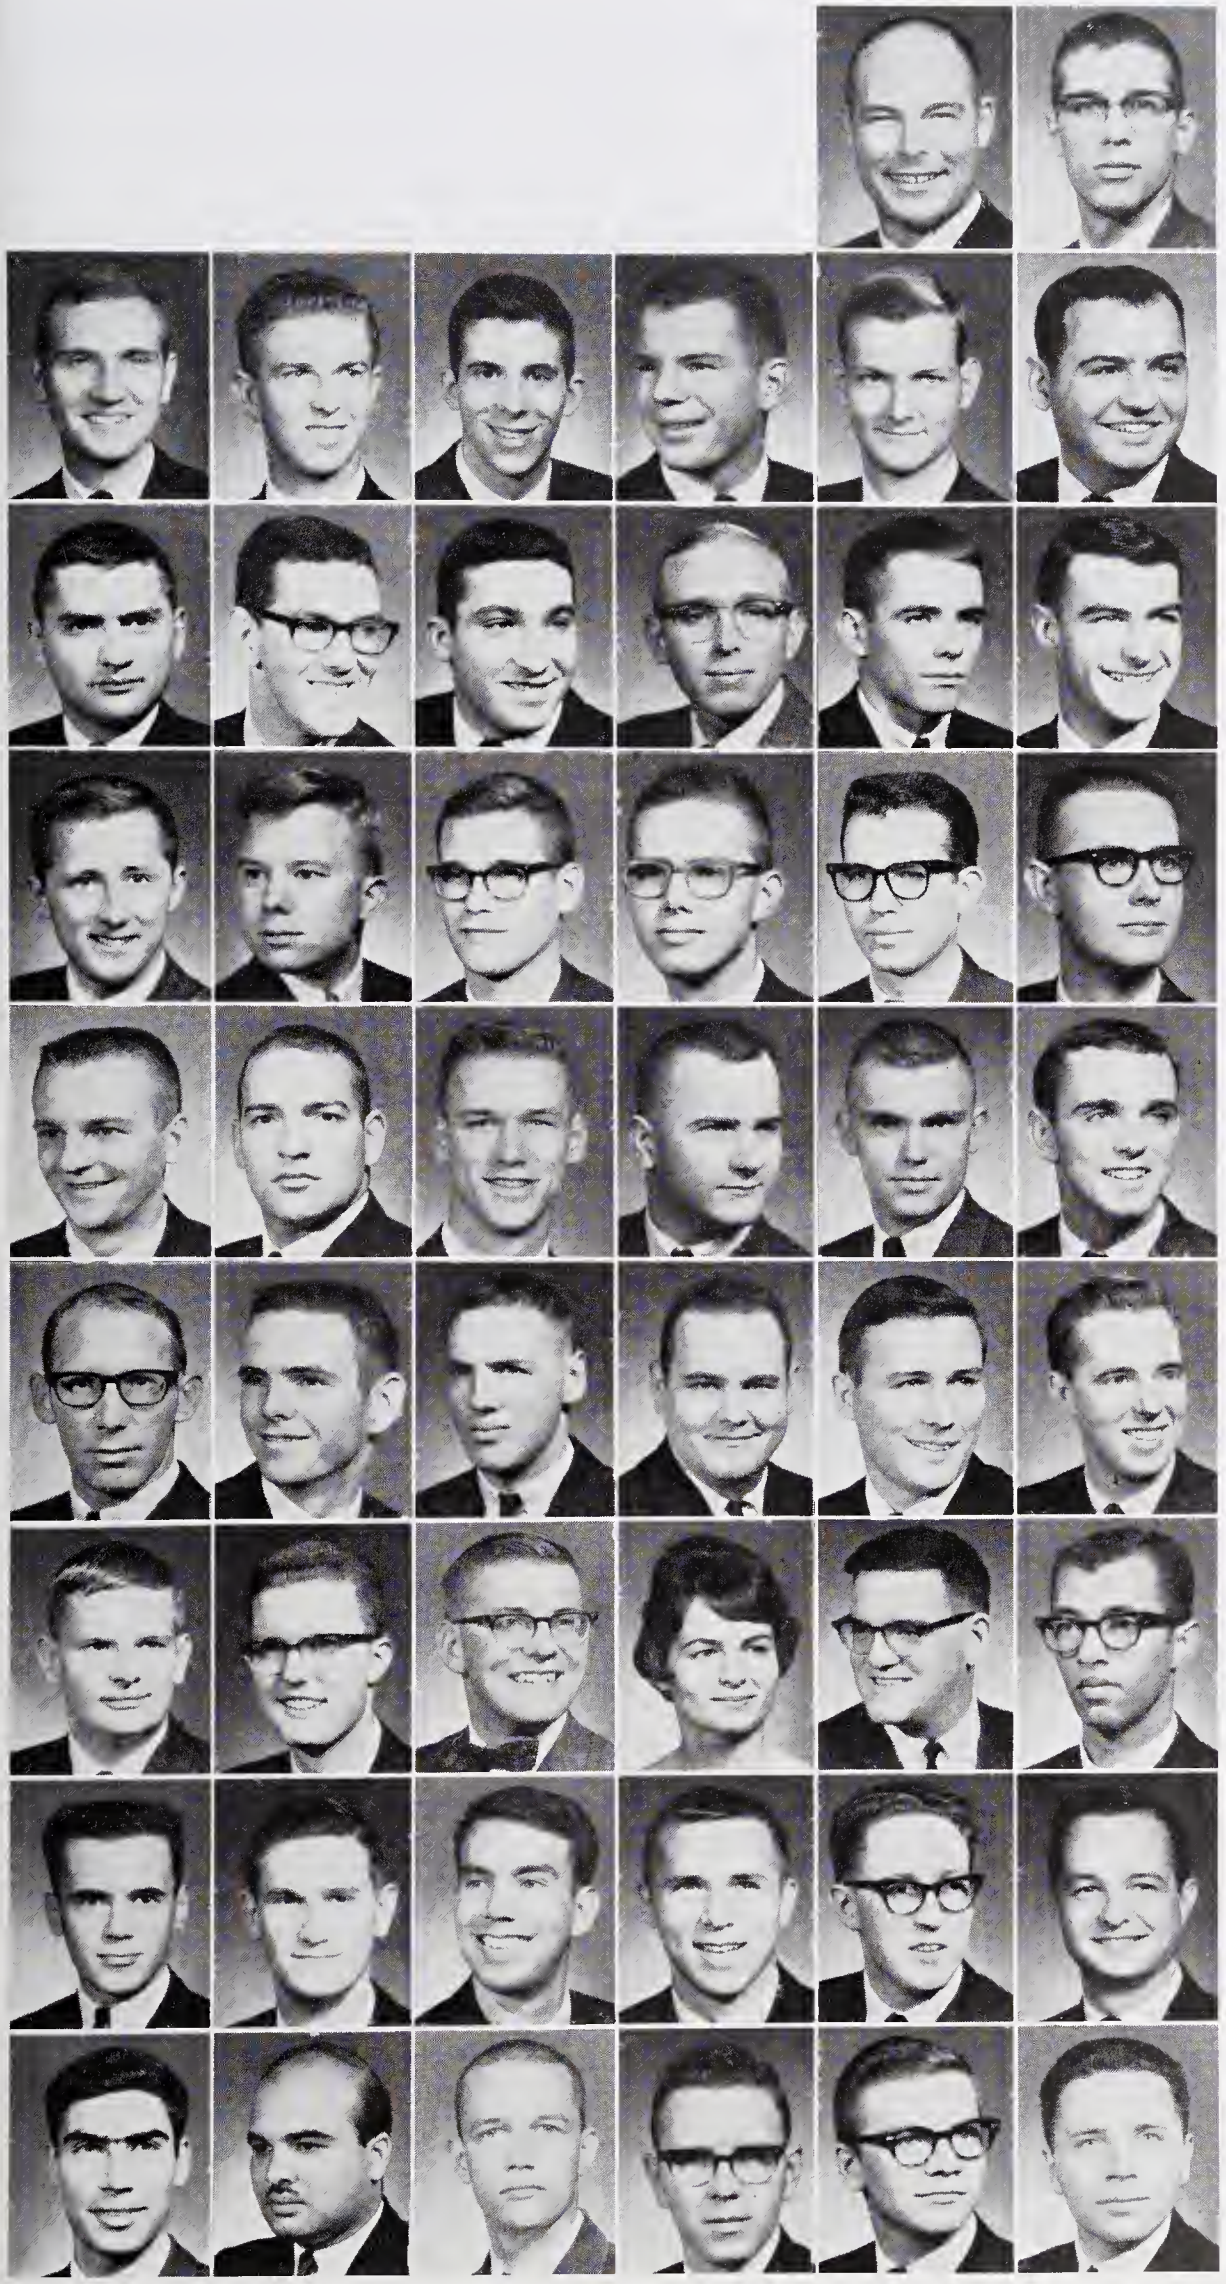

Tedious concentration in lab is a must for the engineering student.

Exemplifying the high intelligence of the incoming students is the fact that 70 per cent of the engineering freshmen in the fall of 1964 ranked in the top decile of their high school classes on the CQT test and included 30 National Merit Scholars. This is reflected in their performance at Michigan State, as approximately 30 per cent of the College's seniors graduate with grade-point averages of a 3.0 or higher.

The confidence with which the College is proceeding is indicated by the observation by the Dean that with students of such high caliber, accompanied by resources of a large and broadly oriented University, the College can strive for and achieve educational objectives not necessarily possible for other engineering institutions.

Individual experiments offer opportunities to demonstrate abilities and aptitudes in the field.

Thelma E. Porter, Dean

College of Home Economics

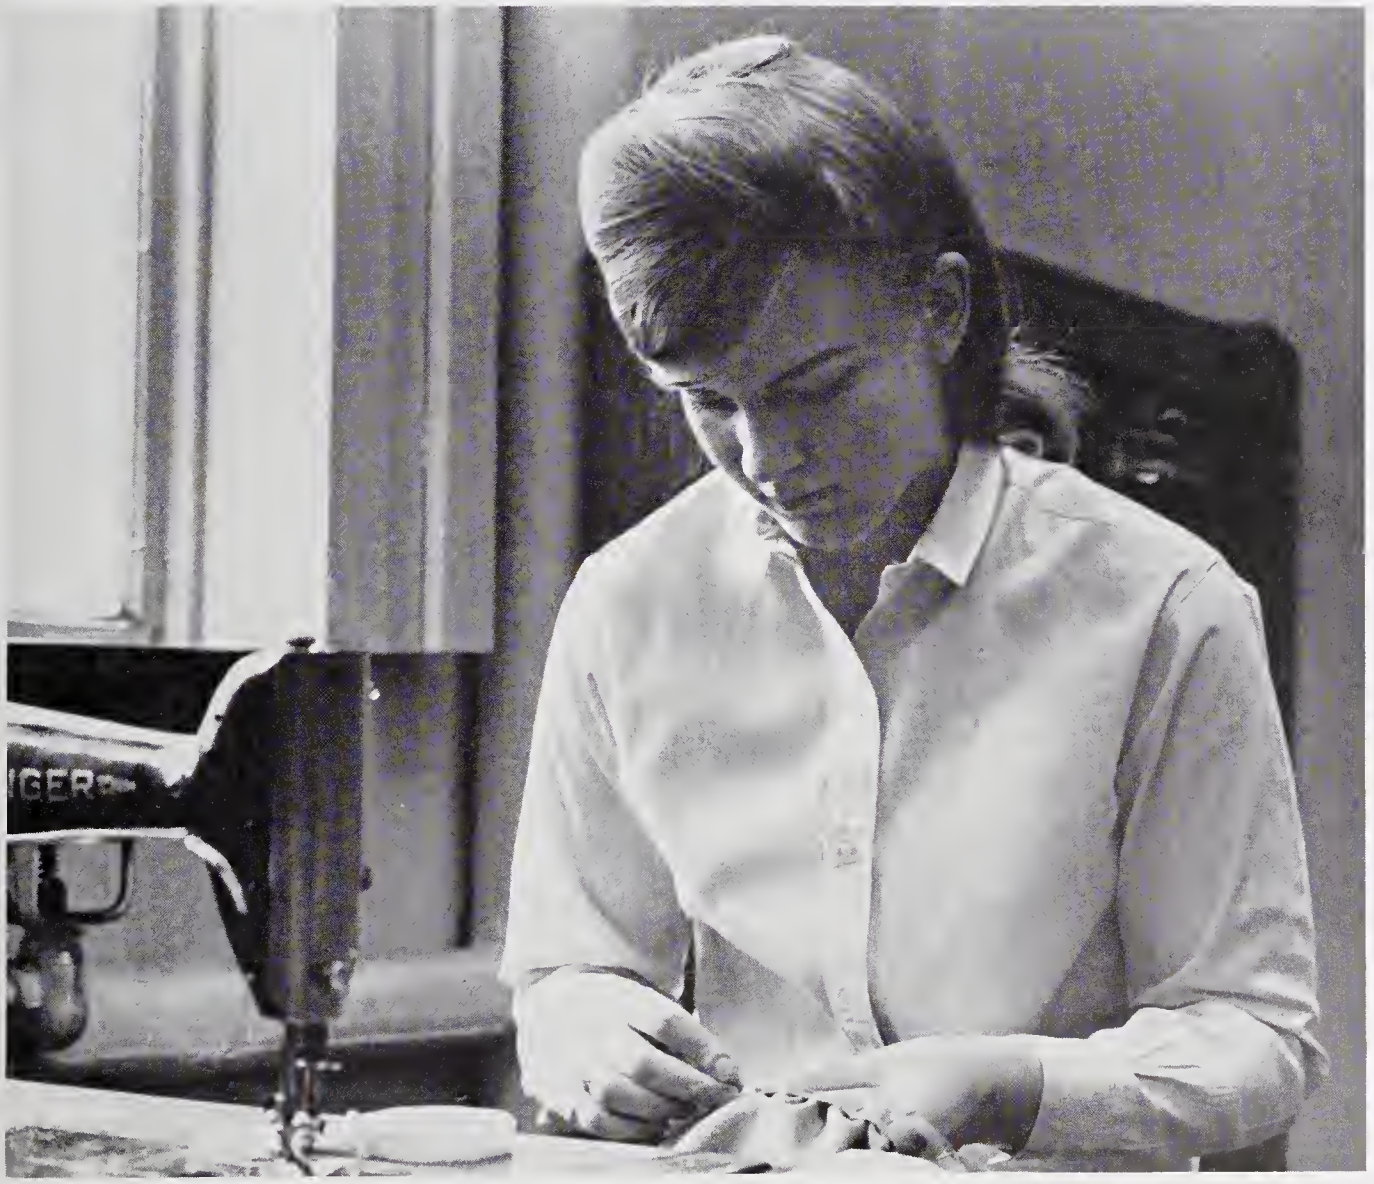

FOUNDED: 1896

DEAN: Thelma E. Porter

The College of Home Economics was founded in 1896, just 26 years after the first women students were granted admittance to Michigan State. Since then, it has developed into one of the largest colleges in the nation. It is recognized leader among the country's colleges and universities for its educational program, and is rated among the top three in the caliber of its research program.

Over 1,100 graduates and undergraduates pursue courses within the four major divisions of study: Foods and Nutrition; Home Management and Child Development; Institutional Administration; and Textiles, Clothing and Related Arts.

Fashions are born in a clever mind and executed in many places — even the classroom.

Good food results from an experienced chef and just the right "dash" of salt.

Ability to follow a recipe leads to a tasty dish.

Classroom practice in the culinary arts can contribute much to any kitchen.

Many Home Economic majors use their skills to become teachers in both elementary and secondary schools.

Helping a tot build a house involves more than merely stacking toy bricks.

With its newly revised curricula, students receive a broad general education in addition to courses in their specific fields of interest. The recent reduction of required credits, which has affected the entire university, enables the student in Home Economics to augment his required courses with an added number of electives.

Home Economic students may participate in field training courses in surrounding cities where they receive practical, on-the-job training in retailing, design, and related areas. Even students with majors in other colleges find home economics courses valuable.

"Learn by viewing" is a motto followed by budding designers as they strive to create more beautiful interiors.

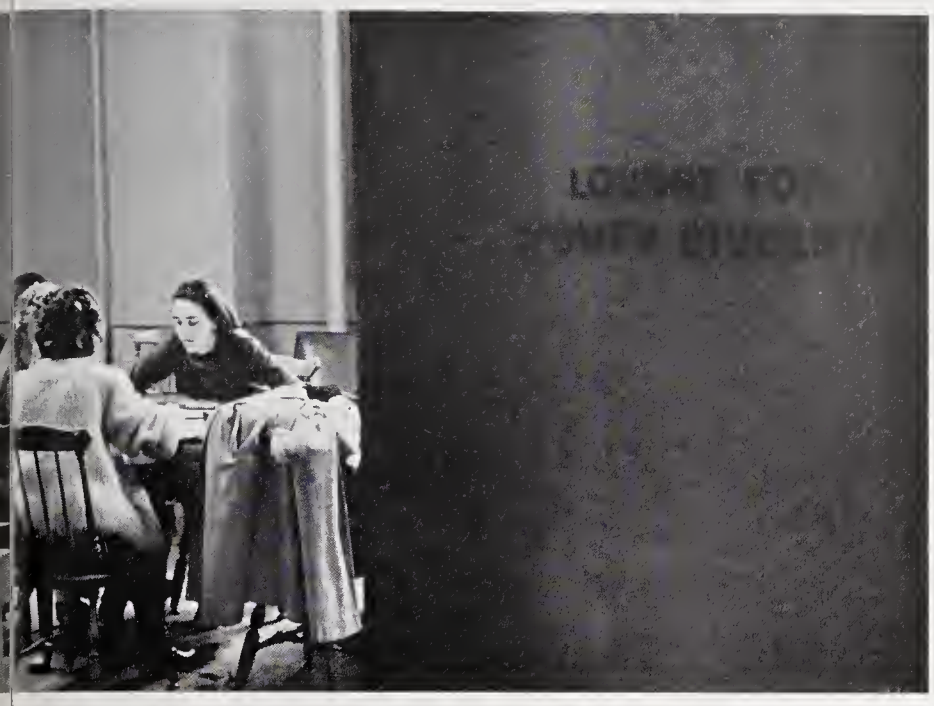

College and university graduates in home economics permeate the business world as competent home economists, serving individuals and families in a variety of ways. Through schools and colleges, business organizations and services, community and government agencies, and the mass media, these graduates complement society as teachers, researchers, writers, interior designers, dieticians, fashion consultants, merchandizers, extension workers, and food service managers.

The College is also involved in a number of areas outside the school itself. Several members of its faculty assist in radio broadcasts on WKAR, and considerable work is carried out in cooperation with the MSU extension service.

Students take T-square and triangle in hand to complete floor plans and elevations.

Richard U. Byerrum, Dean

College of Natural Science

FOUNDED: 1962

DEAN: Richard U. Byerrum

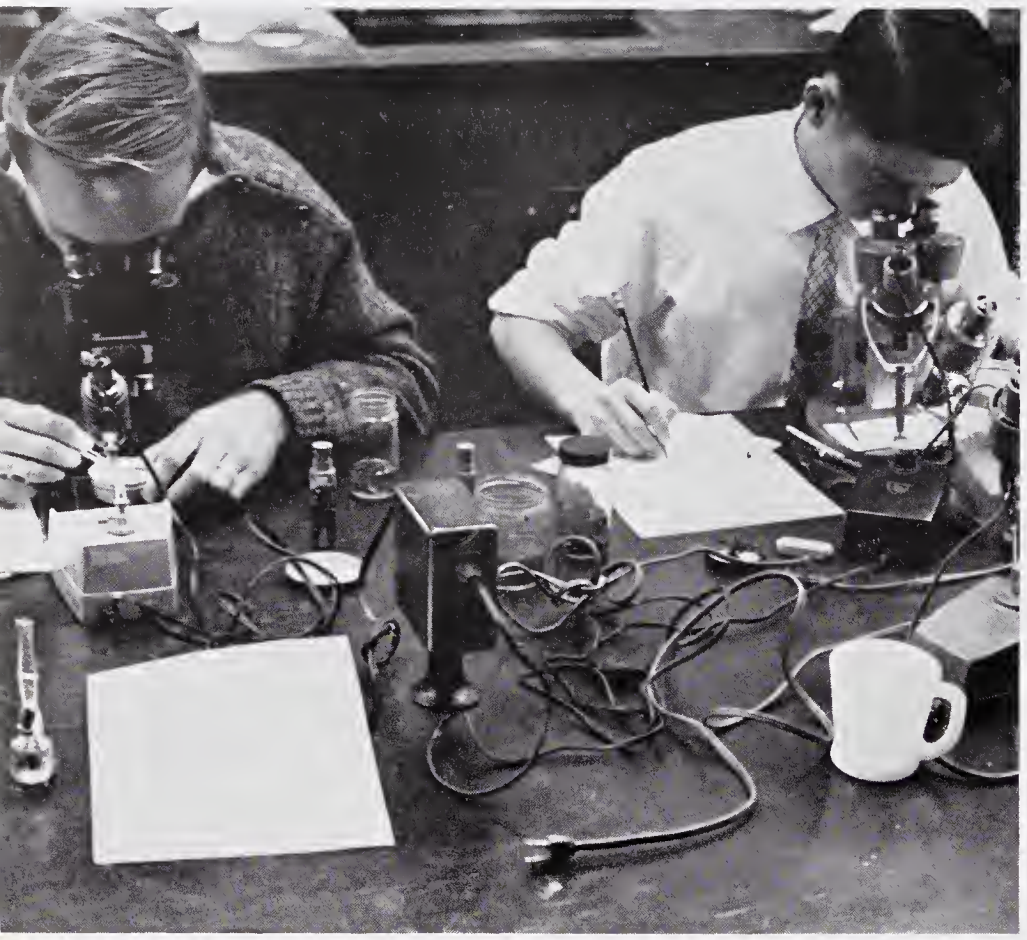

Formally established as a college in 1962, the College of Natural Science is dedicated to the augmentation of existing knowledge regarding the biological and physical world that can be used for the improvement of mankind. Its dissemination and discerning application of this new knowledge, coupled with its re-examination of such queries as the nature of the universe, the origin of the solar system and the ability of man to control his own environment contribute to the dynamic quality of its educational program.

The new Abrams Planetarium hosts crowds of students and campus visitors throughout the year.

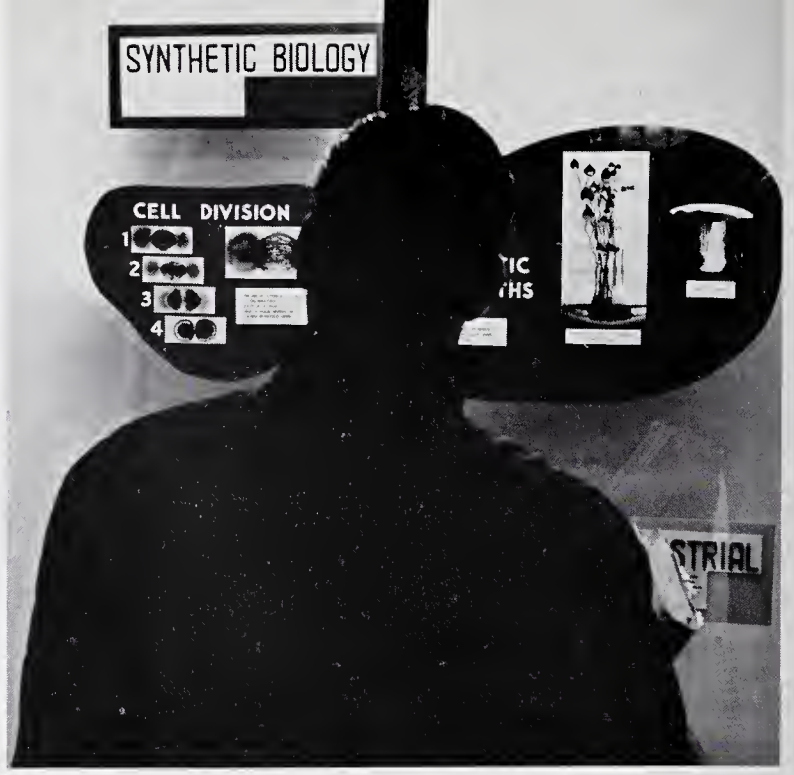

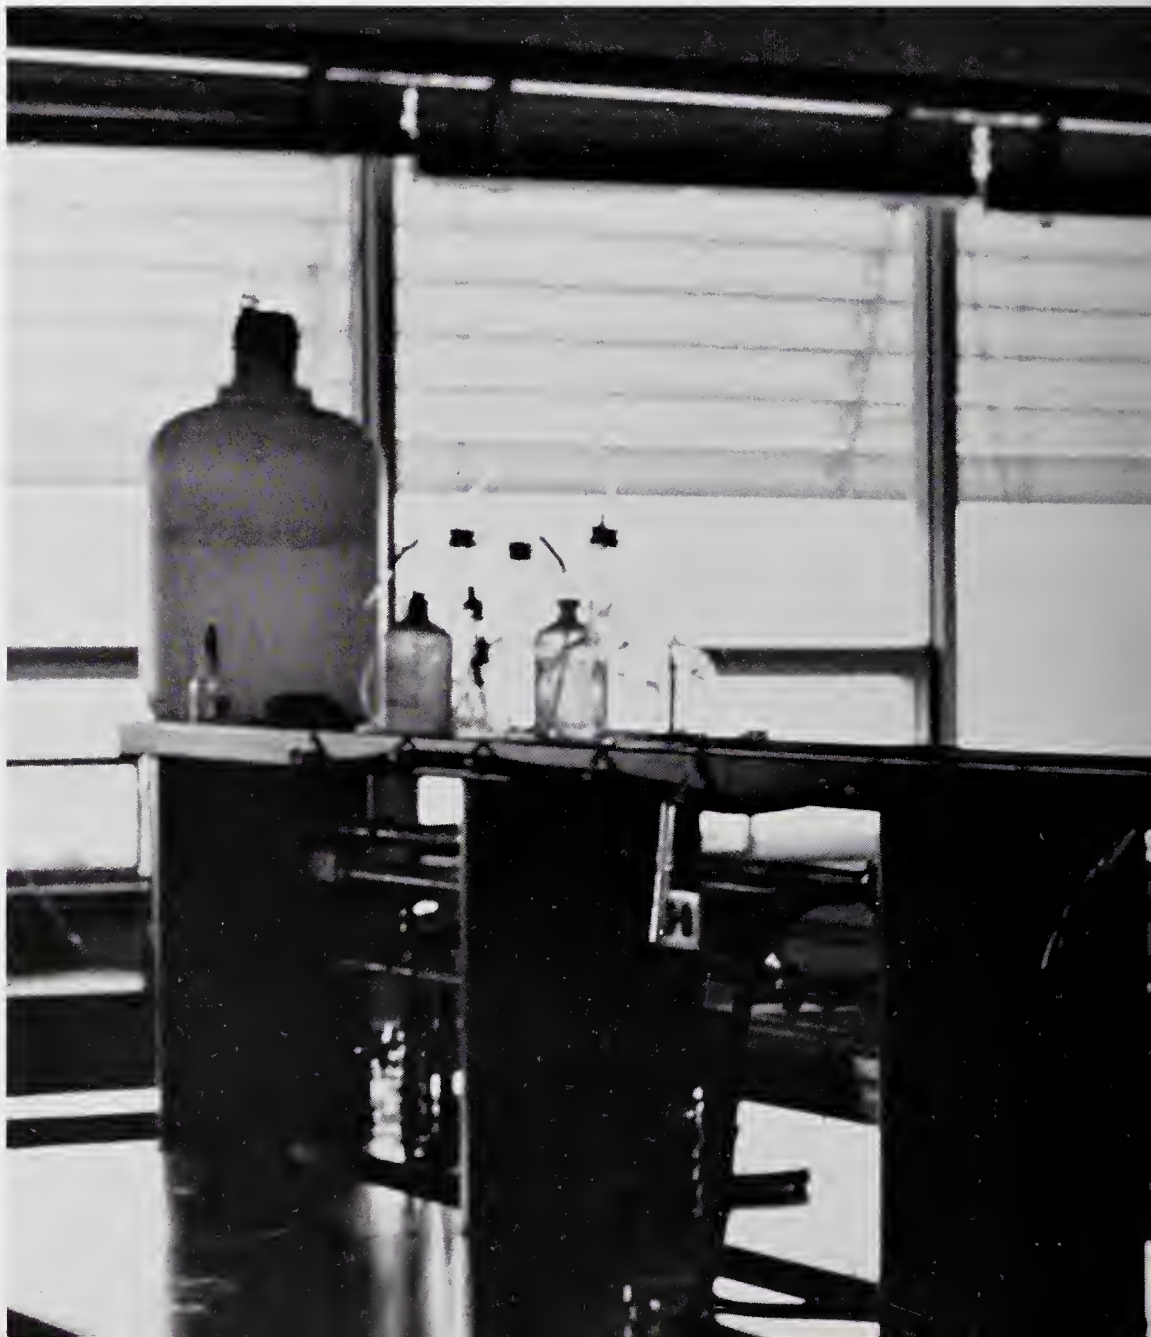

An old planetarium projector provides an interesting exhibit.

Microscopes, electrical equipment, bacterial slides — all are a part of scientific experimentation.

Synthetic Biology involves a mastery of cell division theories.

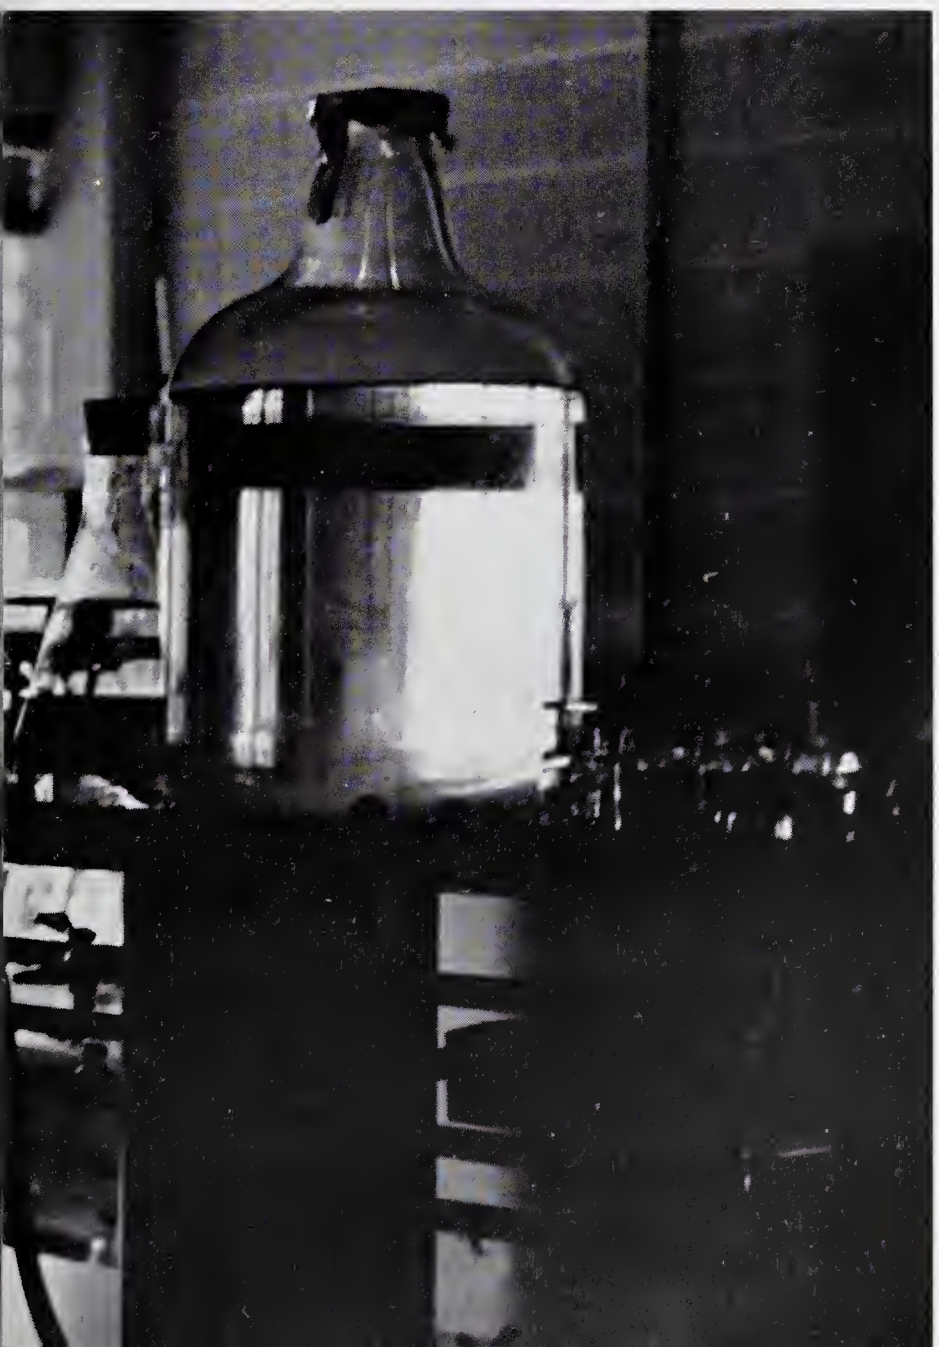

The College offers degree programs in 10 of its 12 instructional units at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. The exceptions are the Department of Biophysics having only graduate programs and the School of Nursing offering solely undergraduate courses. The units offering degrees include the departments of Biochemistry, Botany and Plant Pathology, Chemistry, Entomology, Geology, Mathematics, Physics and Astronomy, Statistics, Zoology, Microbiology and Public Health, and Physiology and Pharmacology. The latter two are administered jointly with the College of Veterinary Medicine.

The College also operates two noninstructional units — the W. K. Kellogg Gull Lake Biological Station and the Science and Mathematic Teaching Center. Though some courses for credit are available which are applicable to various majors, they function primarily in an advisory capacity.

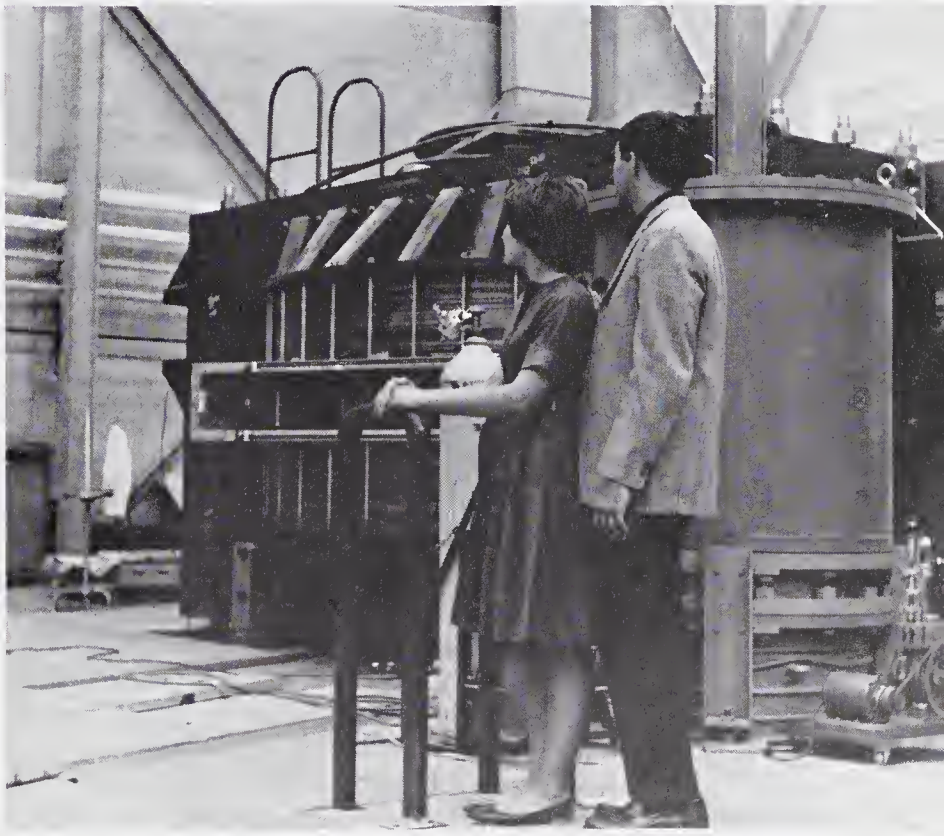

Added to meeting the needs of people unable to attend classes during regular session through participation in the Evening College, the College offers credit courses in several Michigan communities in cooperation with the Continuing Education Service.

That one last look at rock specimens often assures higher quiz scores.

Containers, beakers and flasks become an integral part of a natural science lab.

The newly built cyclotron greatly enlarges the possibilities of exploration in the nuclear field.

Louis L. McQuitty, Dean

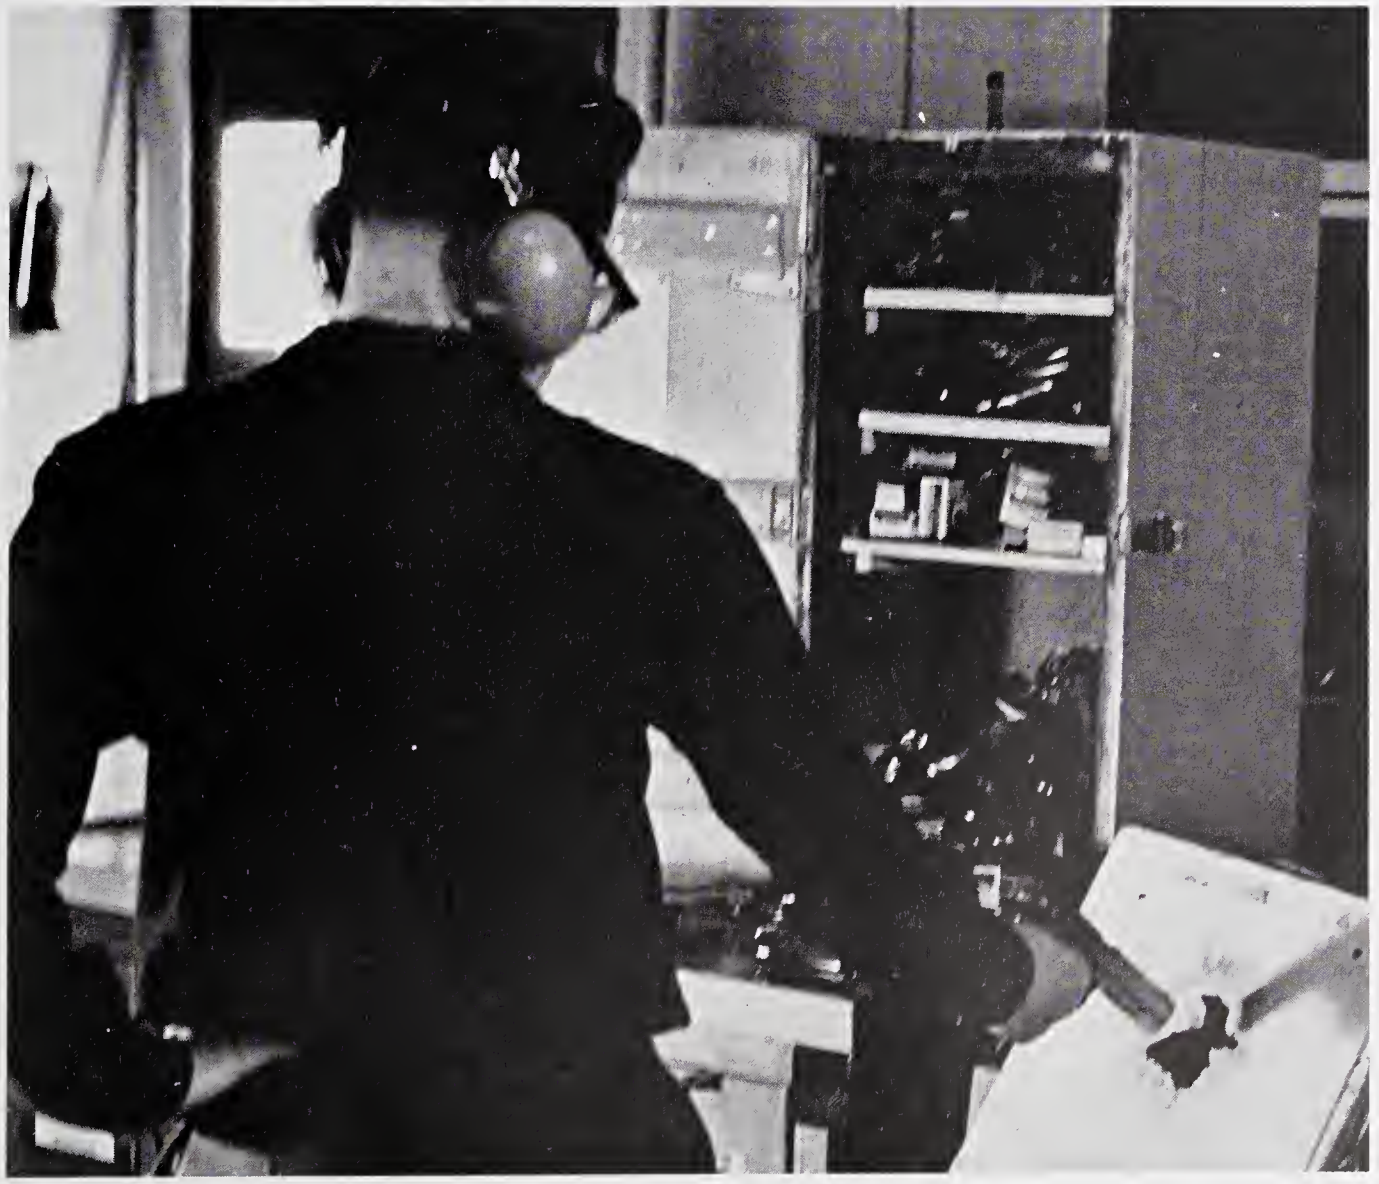

College of Social Science

FOUNDED: 1962

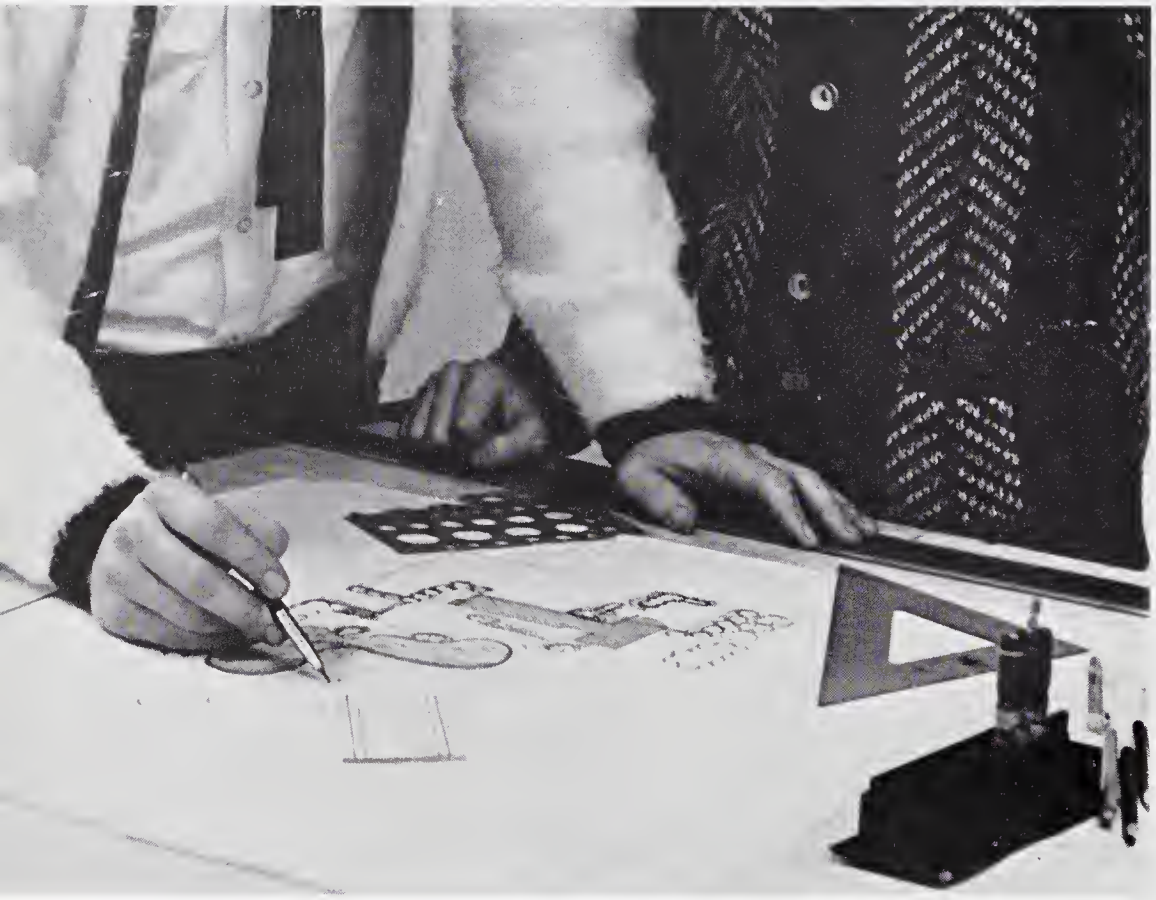

DEAN: Louis L. McQuitty

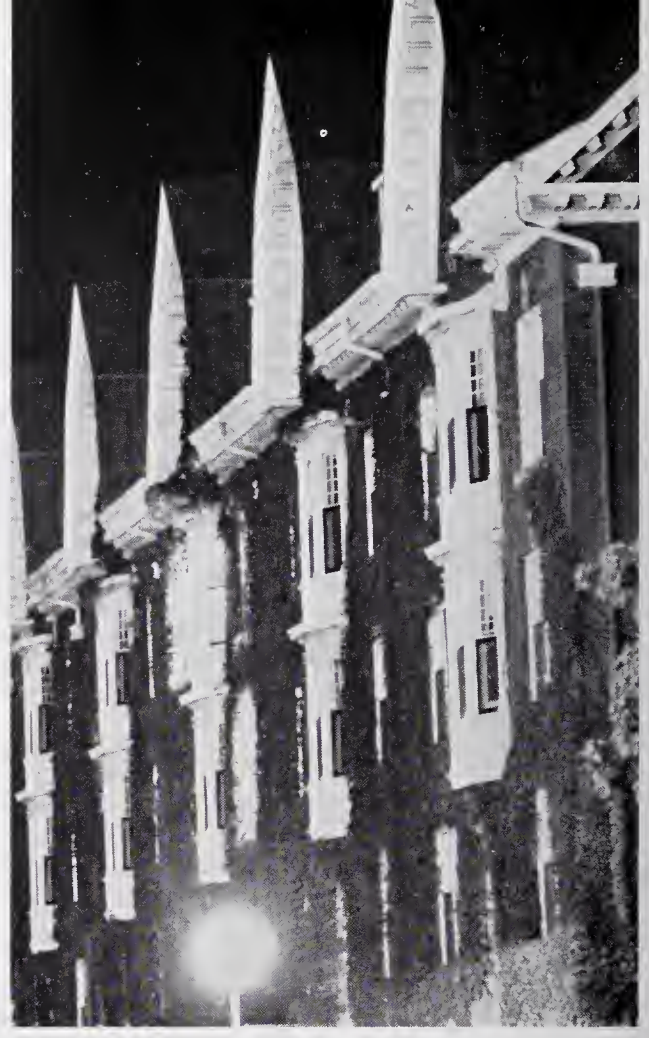

The College of Social Science, along with the Colleges of Arts and Letters and Natural Science, was created in 1962 when the old College of Science and Arts was split. Since then it has focused its major efforts on turning out liberally-educated individuals. Recognizing the importance of developing methods of studying man and his institutions and properly utilizing the knowledge thereby gained, the College contributes significantly to the solution of many problems posed by the practical aspects of human behavior. In addition, it strives for long-term enrichment of the student which will provide immeasurable advantages for him, not only in his private life, but also in his citizenship responsibilities.

A future policeman learns the essentials of ballistic testing.

After careful measuring and calculating, a landscape architect discovers the perfect place for the tree.

Wells Hall, a landmark for 87 years, will be torn down this summer.

Two geographers study aerial maps to discover recent changes in the land.

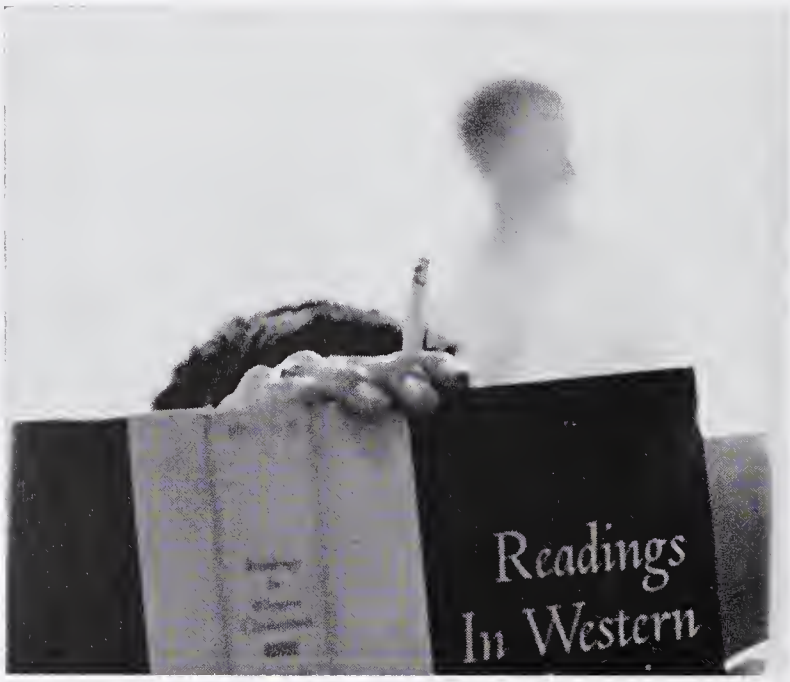

Police Administration students learn the correct procedure for investigating a murder case.

The College is divided into five departments — Anthropology, Geography, Political Science, Psychology and Sociology — and three undergraduate schools including the Schools of Police Administration and Public Safety, Social Work and Urban Planning and Landscape Architecture. All three are professional schools, relating the general concept of social science to the individual's understanding of specifics within his own particular area. Programs are offered at both the undergraduate and graduate levels of study. In addition to its participating in the Evening College Program, the College also cooperates with the Continuing Education Service in offering credit courses in many communities of the state.

Willis W. Armistead, Dean

College of Veterinary Medicine

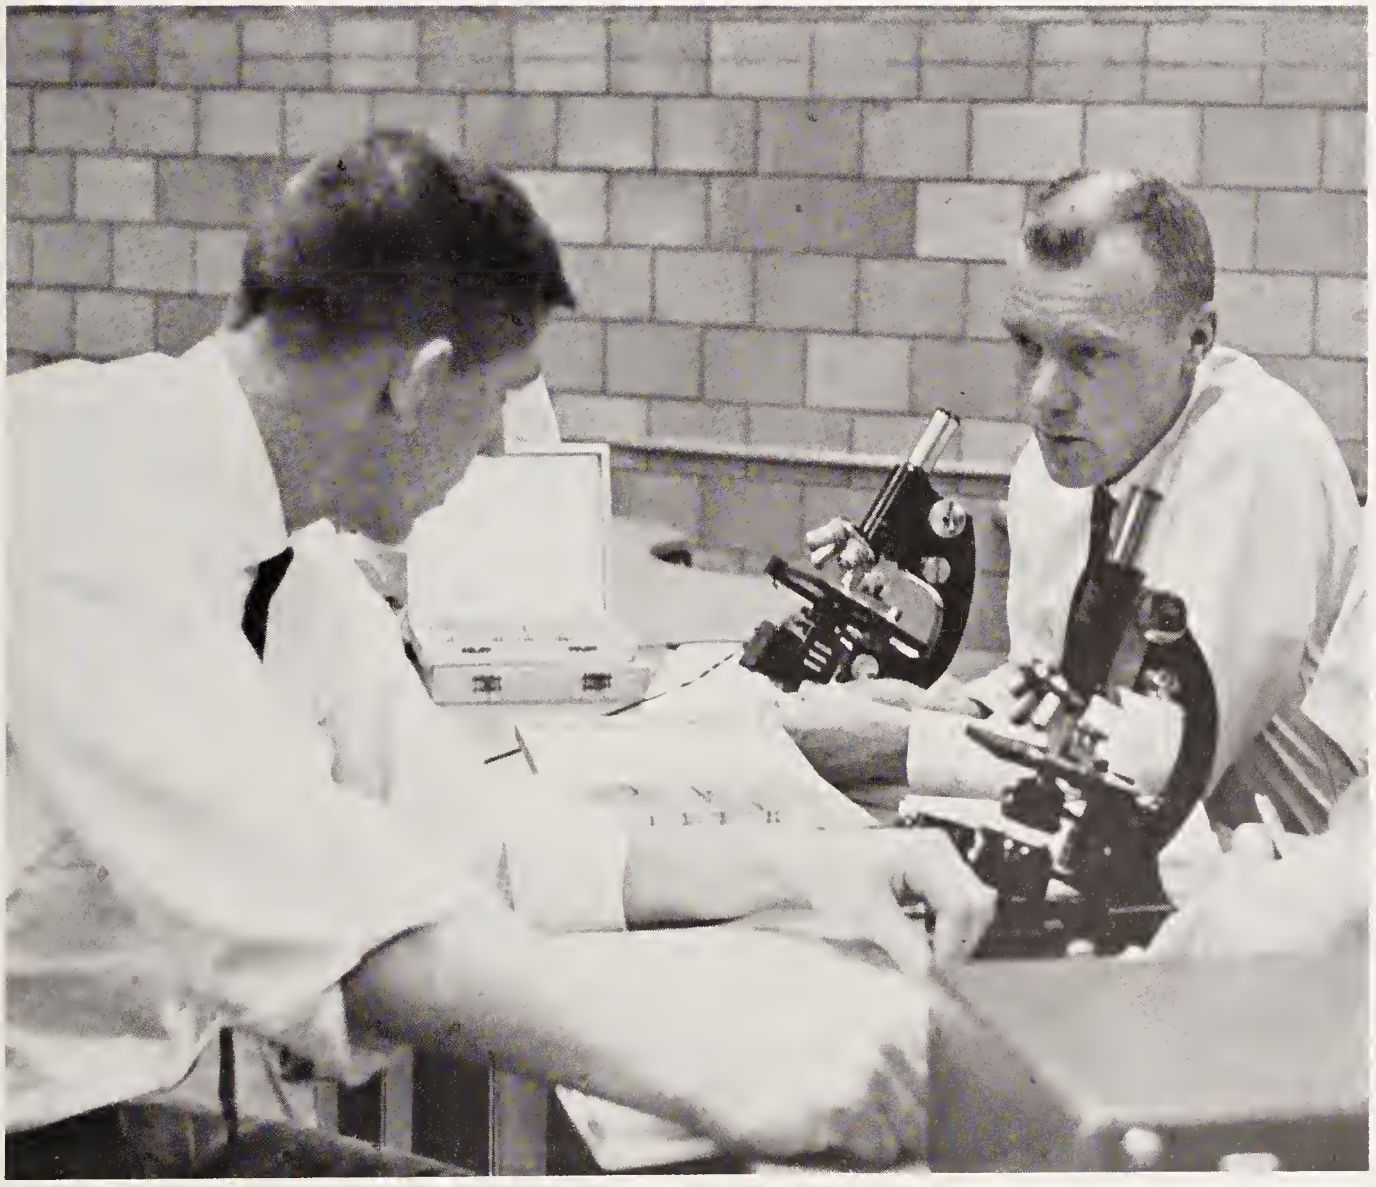

FOUNDED: 1910

DEAN: Willis W. Armistead

Since the first course in veterinary science was offered in 1883, the College has developed one of the most eminent programs in the nation. Established in 1910, it is one of the oldest in the University and is accredited by the American Veterinary Medical Association.

With a full-time faculty of 90, the College offers course work in six departments: Surgery and Medicine, Anatomy, Pathology, Physiology, Pharmacology, and Microbiology and Public Health. The latter three departments are administered jointly with the College of Natural Science. It also includes the School of Medical Technology.

The study of bacteria cultures is an integral part of the Vet Med curricula.

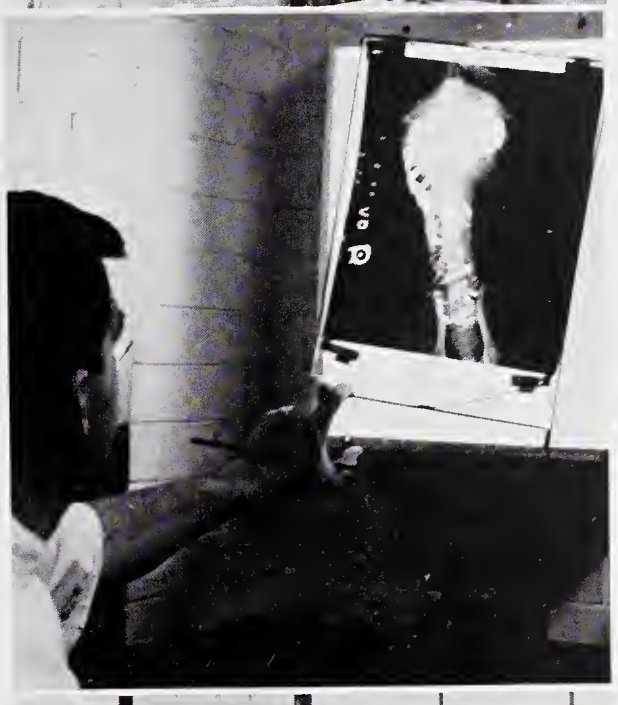

The techniques of tenderness is a valuable asset to a successful veterinarian.

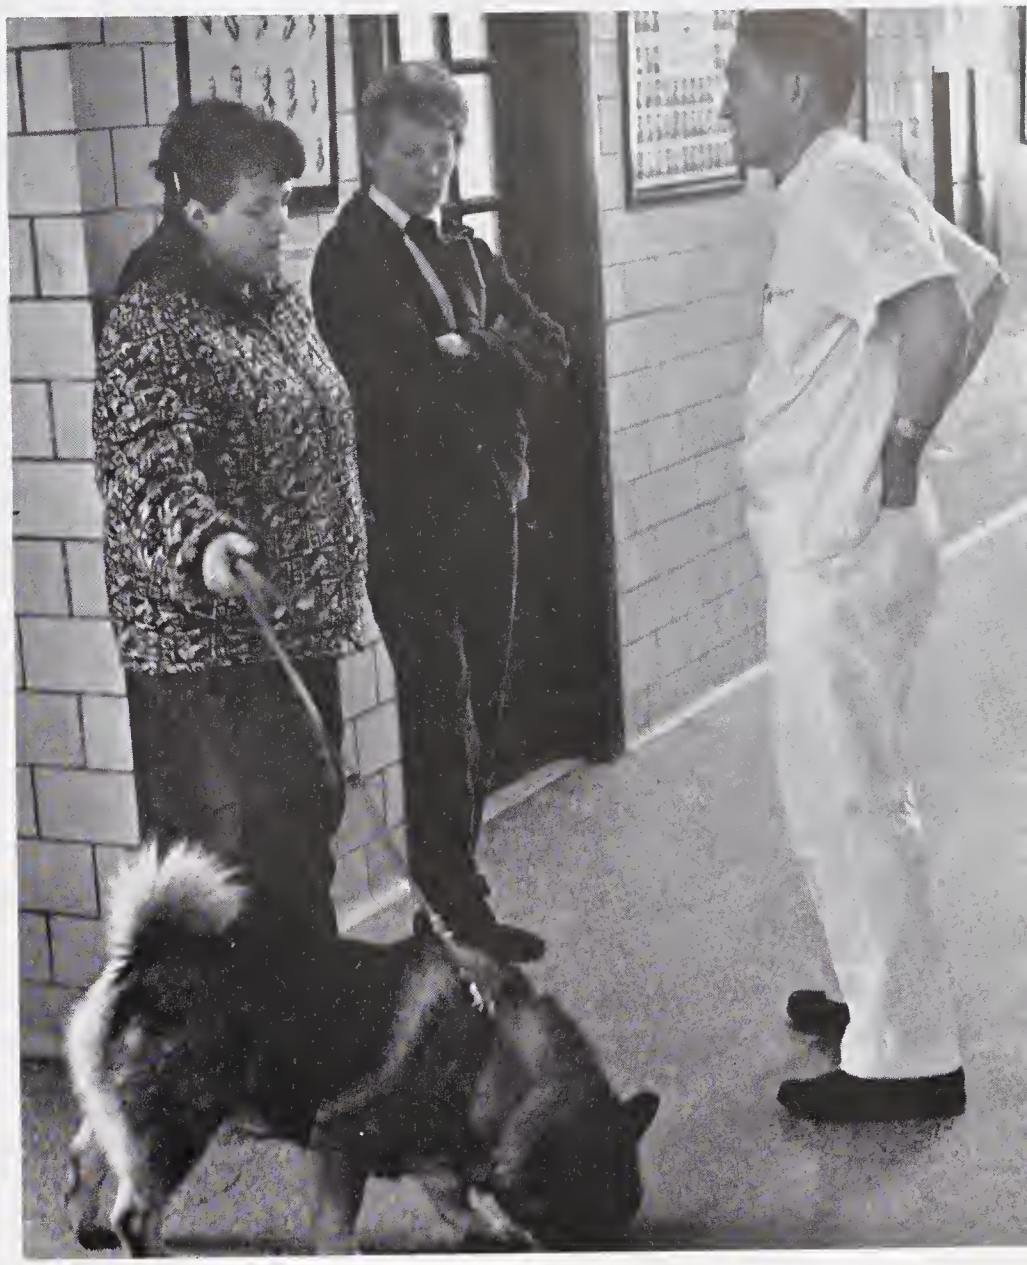

Completion of the new Veterinary Clinic on Wilson Road will contribute greatly to the quality of the College's facilities.

A cured puppy takes a last sniff at familiar halls before leaving the clinic for home.

Animals, like humans, require the skilled hands of a well-trained doctor when undergoing surgery.

In its endeavor to turn out professionally qualified graduates, the College enables the student to augment his academic training with practical experience in the field. This is provided through work in the college-operated small animal clinic, and by answering calls from outlying farms for treatment of sick animals. In radio-equipped cars, these students answer such calls, providing necessary treatment without the benefit of the modernly equipped laboratories within the College.

In addition, students participate in the numerous research projects conducted within the College. Ninety per cent of the 3,000 to 4,000 animals kept at the clinic are used for research. One such project involves the study of the effects of germs on animals both in space and on the earth. From this it is hoped that projections regarding human reactions in outer space may be obtained.

College of Veterinary Medicine

The College, enrolling more graduate students and participating in more extensive and specialized research projects than any other veterinary college on the continent, contains the most versatile and adequate equipment available.

In the area of research, the College is renowned for its work in endocrine disorders, animal parisitology, orthopedic surgery and the infectious and nutritional diseases of livestock and poultry. Recently, long range studies have been undertaken on the histology of laboratory animals, the relationship of certain animal tumors to the human cancer problems and some yet unsolved aspects of tuberculosis in cattle. The College has specialized laboratories for the study of radioisotope techniques, tissue cell culture and the production of disease-free animals.

The College also maintains continuing education programs, a veterinary extension service and a library.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Although it is impossible to express appreciation individually to all the people who have helped with the 1965 Wolverine we must single out several for special consideration.

In the last paralyzing weeks of production, when only special efforts could rescue the Wolverine program from the disastrous effects of an unforeseeable complication, the selfless dedication of a special "crisis corps" made the appearance of the book possible without loss of quality or purpose. To these staffers, especially, a heartfelt thanks: Kathleen Ritch, Patti Prout and Jay Arthur.

Pete Gent also deserves special thanks for the capable leadership he supplied in coordinating the Wolverine's final production. Without his presence the book may not have been a reality.

Behind the regular staff, itself willing to work long hours, are a number of qualified advisors and experts in the field.

Sincere thanks go to Jack Bundy from the S. K. Smith Co. of Chicago for his advice and assistance in planning the cover; to Sam Fields of Delma Studios in New York for the senior pictures; and to Ed Hackleman and Ralph Van Dyke of Jahn & Ollier Engraving Co. of Chicago for their technical assistance with production problems.

As always, William McIlrath, Director of Student Publications, lent his unfaltering support to the staff and guided them through the difficulties that arose. John Vitovsky, representative of Speaker-Hines & Thomas of Lansing, spent many hours helping the staff solve printing problems. Many thanks to these two men.

The Wolverine staff also appreciates the kindness and consideration which all members of the administration, faculty and staff of Michigan State give annually to make the yearbook a success.
